CENTER FOR PSYCHOLOGICAL STUDIES

NOVA SOUTHEASTERN
UNIVERSITY

Nova Southeastern University's Center for Psychological Studies provides professional preparation focusing on the integration of training, research, and service. Among the center's distinguishing strengths are the following:

- nationally recognized faculty members
- a diverse learning community
- training opportunities within multicultural settings
- a selection of concentrations
- a 65,000-square-foot classroom and clinical training facility
- a Psychology Services Center offering faculty directed child, adult, and specialty programs
- more than 35 years of experience delivering quality professional graduate psychology programs in Florida

Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D. program)

The Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology degree program is based on the scientist-practitioner model. Specifically, its goals are to train future psychologists in the core knowledge areas of the discipline; to prepare them to advance this knowledge by evaluating, developing, and scientifically examining important applied aspects of professional practice; and to acquire necessary skills in evidence-based assessment and intervention techniques. 119 credits

Doctor of Psychology (Psy.D. program)

The Psy.D. in Clinical Psychology degree program is based on the practitioner-informed-by-science model. Specifically, its goals are to train future psychologists in the core knowledge areas of the discipline and to prepare them to provide evidence-based assessment, intervention, and consultation services across a full range of populations, settings, and formats. 118 credits

CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY

The doctoral programs provide broad and general preparation. Additional training opportunities include

- forensic psychology
- health psychology
- neuropsychology
- psychodynamic psychotherapy
- long term mental illness
- child, adolescent, and family psychology
- multicultural/diversity

The Ph.D. and Psy.D. in Clinical Psychology degree programs are full-time, on-campus programs with residency requirements. The programs typically require four years of coursework and one year of internship; the Ph.D. dissertation may take longer. Students are eligible for an en-route master's degree upon completion of the first two years of either doctoral program.

Gain practical experience with on-site clinics providing expert care in addiction, behavioral modification, counseling for older adults, depression, family therapy, neuropsychological assessment, pain management, parenting skills, psychodynamic psychotherapy, stress management, trauma, and numerous other services.

Center for Psychological Studies

CPS is dedicated to providing the highest quality of education to its students, superior mental health care to the community, and research contributions to the mental health sciences. The center offers master's degrees in general psychology♦, mental health counseling, and school counseling; a specialist degree and a Psy.D.♦ in school psychology; two American Psychological Association-accredited doctoral programs (Ph.D. and Psy.D. in clinical psychology); and a master's degree in clinical psychopharmacology. The center also has an

APA-accredited predoctoral internship program and sponsors the Consortium Internship Program. Both internship programs are members of the Association of Psychology Postdoctoral and Internship Centers (APPIC).

♦Review and approval by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACS-COC) to include programs within the scope of NSU's institutional accreditation is currently under way.
