About PCP

Our Mission

To foster a more inclusive, empathic and collaborative society by promoting constructive conversations and relationships among those who have differing values, world views, and positions about divisive public issues.

Who We Serve

- activists in adversarial relationships who are interested in talking with each other directly, rather than through the media, in ways that reduce stereotyping and defensiveness
- groups and networks who seek to more effectively collaborate despite differences of identity or perspective
- civic leaders, political officials, and educators who seek to build community and enhance democracy
- religious leaders seeking to foster dialogue on divisive issues within and across communities of faith
- citizens interested in communicating across deeply rooted differences of perspective, identity or world view
- mediators and other third-party practitioners interested in learning new approaches to the design and facilitation of dialogue
- scholars in the fields of alternative dispute resolution, communication, and community building
- the public

STYLE GUIDE

Submissions for consideration may be in any form AND should include

--an abstract, preferably no longer than 125 words,

--the complete mailing address of the author designated to make revisions, including email address.

While submissions for consideration may be in any form, the following format is required for the final draft upon acceptance. Please submit a short biographical statement.

I. TEXT

In-text references are used with the full information of references placed at the back of the paper (in a section titled "References"). When specifically referring to the author in the text, please use the following style

CONSISTENTLY:

b. Galtung (1996, p. 2)

When listing multiple sources within text – (Alger, 1996; Axelrod, 1984).

When unquestionably necessary, endnotes should be used.

Single space endnotes, the main text, and block quotes.

Indent for each paragraph; No extra spaces between paragraphs.

Italicize titles of journals, documents, court cases, and books which are referred to in the text.

For the first usage, spell out acronyms in full – e.g., Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs).

British and American spellings/formats may be used. For example, centre or center, programme or program, and 15 May 1995 or May 15, 1995 are accepted. However, please maintain consistency throughout the text.

Define terms clearly and, if possible, avoid jargon. Do not use ibid, etc, or similar terms.

Headings must be centered and in Bold. Subheadings must be italicized (left justification). Do not use all caps for either.

Tables and figures must not be any larger than 6 1/2 inches by 8 1/2 inches. Tables and figures must be in the same word processing program as the document.

Do: 1- use Word
 2- be CONSISTENT within your manuscript.
 3- submit the text, endnotes, tables, figures, and references in ONE file document.

Do not use: 1- page headers or footers in the electronic version.
 2- page numbers or a title page in the electronic version.

II. REFERENCES

List references alphabetically in the "References" section at the end of the paper

Peace and Conflict Studies

Use a person's full name.

Roman numerals need to be converted to Arabic numerals, as in volume numbers of journals and books.

Titles of books and journals must be italicized.

Multiple citations of the same author should be listed with the most recent first.

List only references used in text.

Information about books, journals, and magazines must be written in the following manner:

Journal

American Review of China Studies

Call for Papers

The "American Review of China Studies" (ARCS) is the official and refereed journal of the Association of Chinese Professors of Social Sciences in the United States (ACPSS). It is published bi-annually in English for China experts, Asia specialists, college professors and students, academic researchers, and other interested readers. Its goal is to disseminate new research, promote scholarly exchange, and produce an intellectual and more complete understanding of China. It also serves ACPSS members as a forum and a focused outlet for their academic products, fresh ideas, and new and relevant information obtained from research efforts relating to all disciplines of social sciences and humanities.

Manuscript should follow "Chicago Manual of Style." The main text should be double-spaced with endnotes and a one paragraph, about 75-100 words, short abstract, describing the objectives of the paper. On a separate page, personal bios should include author's name, affiliation, degrees, academic achievement, major publications, mailing address, telephone number, and e-mail address. Since the articles are reviewed anonymously, the authors should avoid any identifying text references.

For positively reviewed manuscripts, authors are asked to consider reviewer's comments and make any necessary revisions. Authors must provide the entire, revised manuscripts on computer disk meeting additional specifications. Authors are responsible for the accuracy of their papers and for obtaining permission to publish any copyrighted material. Manuscripts are considered with the understanding that their contents have not been published and are not under consideration elsewhere. Manuscripts will not be returned.

Manuscript and correspondence should be addressed to: Xiaobing Li, Editor, American Review of China Studies, Department of History, University of Central Oklahoma, 100 N. University Drive, Edmond, OK 73034 USA

If you have any question, please call the editor at (405) 974-5483, fax (405) 974-3823, or e-mail: bli@ucok.edu
