"Art washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life."
-Pablo Picasso

The mission of the Department of Performing and Visual Arts (DPVA) is to develop arts innovators through interdisciplinary scholarship, arts research, community outreach, exhibition, and performance.

Welcome to Nova Southeastern University's

Department of Performing and Visual Arts Newsletter.

By infusing classroom learning with hands-on opportunities, our students learn how to apply theory to practice. DPVA faculty work professionally in South Florida and beyond, and then share their connections and experience with the students. The DPVA serves as a cultural resource for the university and the community, providing opportunities for artistic expression and appreciation. We invite you to come visit our wonderful facilities, meet with our faculty, and witness the creative expression of our students to see how the NSU DPVA can help you cultivate your creative self.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

Mackenzie Anderson

Graduating 2017 Double Major in Theatre and Music

What is your favorite thing about the PVA?

I love the relationship I have with my professors in the PVA. They are attentive and caring, and are always ready to talk about anything, class-related or not. It's a family-like bond I haven't found in any other department.

Why did you choose NSU?

I began as a Marine Biology major and chose NSU for the incredible biology program. However, after realizing my true passion, I stayed at NSU for the opportunities the theatre program gave me.

What are your plans after graduation?

I plan to get a few professional theatre credits on my resume in South Florida before eventually moving to New York.

Sharks on the Scene

PVA Shark Talent students kicked off the year with their first companion event on Oct 15th following the Saturday matinee performance of Dog Sees God. NSU's Dr. Michael Reiter from the Department of Family Therapy held a talk-back with the help of the fantastic cast.

Audience members stayed behind to discuss some of the themes touched on during the show, such as suicide, sexual identity, bullying, and drug and alcohol abuse. "Discussing these issues is important, and I am very glad to have been a part of this opportunity to discuss them in a safe space," says cast member Amber Gaffney, a freshman Theatre major. We look forward to future events organized by our Shark Talent members.

This semester in Gallery217, NSU's Art & Design Faculty hosted several gallery programs from September 9th to November 15th, including an Opening Reception, a Print-Making Workshop, and a Walk-n-Talk Lecture.

Kandy Lopez is the newest addition to our department and the work exhibited included pieces from her most recent collection, Armour. This series of programming offered students insight into this artist's influences and inspiration. Next up for Gallery217 - the Senior Exhibition!
