Letter from the Editor

Hello CAHSS Sharks,

Welcome to the fall 2019 edition of the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences Dialogues.

Having been a part of CAHSS since 2016, it's easy to see what separates us and all of our departments from the crowd. This past fall, our graduate SGA, faculty, students, and alumni have participated in some truly fantastic work. CAHSS has been evolving with its students, offering new courses that collaborate across campus, hosting workshops to give our students a competitive edge, and taking stands for important issues through community outreach.

It's exactly that kind of giving back to the community and striving for greatness that places CAHSS sharks at the top of the food chain, ready to move on to the next step of their careers.

As this year's editor for CAHSS Dialogues, I am proud to be a member of the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences. As CAHSS sharks, we will all shine brightly. The dark clouds rolling overhead are nothing more than an invitation to break through and make the world glamorous.

Have a great Summer!

Honggang Yang
Dean, CAHSS

From the Dean's Desk:

As the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences approaches its milestone five year anniversary, I delight in the opportunity to reflect on our remarkable and proud journey. Our college's mission includes a dedication to the pursuit of collaborative and equitable means to address human challenge and social issues. The 2019-2020 academic year has been filled with examples of our commitment to that inspiring mission.

The CAHSS Graduate Student Government Association, our beloved SGA, has again demonstrated that we are a student-centered learning community.

From welcoming our newest students at orientation in August to sponsoring our sold-out CAHSS College Social Yacht Cruise to serving our community at NSU's annual CommunityFest (initiated by one of our alums 17 years ago!), our award winning SGA—earning the 2019 STUEY for SGA of the Year!—has provided opportunities for students, alumni, and faculty to connect, to serve, and, most importantly, to enjoy getting to know one another beyond the classroom.

The CAHSS SGA Executive Board and Representative Council, under the guidance of Dr. Rachel Panton, the CAHSS SGA Faculty Advisor, have led by example – supporting a wide range of students events and outreach initiatives, including an Interdepartmental Symposium on Mental Wellbeing and Diverse Populations that featured CAHSS graduate student research and works in progress; a two-part series from the YES Institute on Being an Ally in Higher Education; and even a private showing of the acclaimed film, “1917.”

As of this publication, the 2nd Annual Humanities Student Conference has been postponed, but stay tuned. Please participate in this innovative, cross-disciplinary, interprofessional conference in the future.

Throughout the year, your faculty has been hard at work refining curriculum, adopting innovative modalities, and incorporating new forms of experiential learning, all with the aim to give you, our students, the NSU Edge. I have every confidence in our students and our graduates as successful community members on and off campus. As we enter commencement season, be assured that your Dean is proud of your achievements and always eager to hear your suggestions and stories.

Best wishes!

Welcome from your 2019-2020 CAHSS Graduate SGA!

Jennifer Lawer

CAHSS Graduate SGA President

Hello fellow CAHSS Sharks!

I want to welcome you to the department magazine which shares our Graduate SGA events from the Fall 2019. It is a pleasure to work with the SGA to help give you a wonderful student experience.

Please reach out to us to give feedback and collaborate on future projects! In addition to our main events, the Yacht Social and our Interdepartmental Symposium, we hosted guest speakers, career workshops and other opportunities for student engagement. We are happy to host and create events that will enrich your learning. In connection with NSU's value of becoming a more inclusive community we want to listen to and apply your ideas.

This work is meaningful to me, because it is about serving the students. I believe that you have talents and gifts to share. May your time as students help uncover personal growth and lead to a fulfilling career. I wish you all the best during your time here!

Greetings CAHSS Sharks!

It has been a great pleasure for me to serve as our CAHSS Graduate Student SGA treasurer! I am proud of so many successful student events led by our SGA and I personally enjoyed being able to participate both as an organizer and a student.

We held Welcome Week at the beginning of each semester to help jump-start the campus energy; we held college social in fall and winter, as they are beloved traditional social gatherings; we held the interdepartmental symposium for exchanging research and academic inspirations across disciplines; we held career development workshop to enrich students' experience in Residential institution; we held Grad fair to advocate our diverse graduate programs; and we participated in Community Fest to engage the larger public.

We have also funded The CAHSS Friends of Stable Place Club to facilitate equine-assisted experiential learning; we offered to help Chinese Student & Scholar Association in facing challenges of Coronavirus outbreak in their home country; we sponsored many other student activities including Bill Carter's guest speaking, Men empowerment conference, a private screening of the movie 1917, etc.

I have always been motivated by the fantastic turn out of our SGA work, which could not be achieved without the teamwork of our executive board, department representatives, and supportive faculty advisors. I appreciate the caring and cheerful spirits surrounding us, and I believe these spirits also touch the lives of the many students who cross our path. Now our SGA has been nominated for the 22nd annual Student Life Achievement Awards as Student Government of the Year! We are excited to have this honor.

Cheers! Looking forward to enjoying the upcoming adventures with you all!
Have a great time!

FALL 2019 Events

Fall Interdepartmental Symposium

@ 41st CAHSS Residential Institute

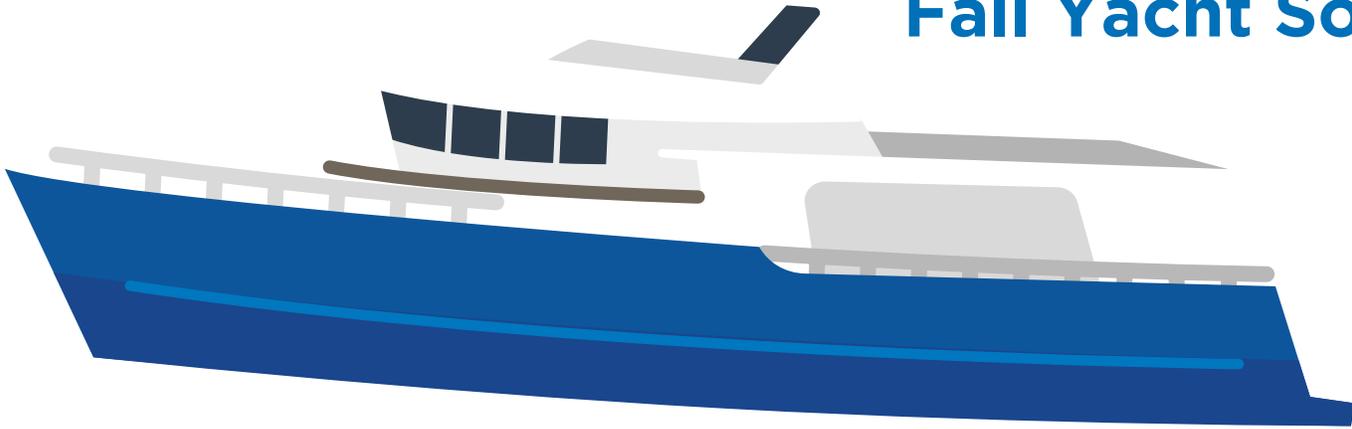

During Residential Institute, the Fall Symposium, Mental Well-being and Diverse Populations took place on September 21st. Dean Yang is pictured here with the four Symposium presenters. The presenters shared research and engaged students and faculty in a dialogue on their topics ranging from mindfulness exercises to social justice.

Sabrina Louissaint, College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS) graduate student in Composition, Rhetoric, and Digital Media Master's program, and graduate assistant coordinator at the NSU Writing & Communication Center (WCC), presented at the Graduate CAHSS Student Government Association (SGA) Interdepartmental Symposium.

Sharks Hit the Water!

Fall Yacht Social

The Fall Yacht Social “Sharks Hit the Water” took place on September 20th. Students, Faculty and Alumni enjoyed a cruise on the Florida Intracoastal for a beautiful night of dinner and dancing.

The “Sharks Hit the Water” Social recurs every Fall and Winter. When the yacht socials resume, come set sail with fellow CAHSS sharks! Keep an eye out, the tickets sell quick!

Conflict Resolution Studies

CAHSS Faculty and Students Present at International Conference on Interdisciplinary Social Sciences in Mexico City

Elena Bastidas, Ph.D., faculty in the Department of Conflict Resolution Studies (DCRS) in NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS), presented at the International Conference on Interdisciplinary Social Sciences, held at the Universidad Autonoma de Mexico in Mexico City. Her co-presenters were April Coan and Jennifer Lawer, doctoral candidates in DCRS.

The title of their presentation was Improving Curriculum Development in Conflict Resolution Programs to Foster International Scholarship of Engagement (ISOE). The presentation included an evaluation of an ISOE model developed by Bastidas in 2012. Colleagues from the U.S., Philippines, Australia, Qatar, among other countries, found the presentation interesting and highlighted the potential of the model to foster Internationalizations initiatives in higher education.

Bastidas' research and teaching interests include quantitative methodology, conflict and international development, environmental conflict, and gender analysis in international development. She is also the director of the M.S. and Graduate Certificates in DCRS.

CAHSS Faculty and Students at AIE Conference in Geneva

Cheryl Duckworth, Ph.D. presenting at AIE.

Cheryl Duckworth, Ph.D., faculty in the Department of Conflict Resolution Studies in NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS), and five doctoral students traveled to Geneva in October to participate in the Alliance for International Education's Conference (AIE). The DCRS students participating were Marcia Brown, Jasmine Sanchez, Michael Walgren, Desiree Van Campen and Jessica Arriola. The students were conference presenters and Duckworth was there as a trustee.

Marcia Brown and Jasmin Sanchez presented, "Transforming International Education with the CHIL Model. Van Campen's presentation was entitled, "Theories of Leadership: How they differ between Cultures." Michael Walgren and Jessica Arriola presented, "Framing Culture in Education".

Family Therapy

Equine Assisted Early Immersion Experiences for Undergrads

Through a collaboration between Stable Place, NSU's Office of Experiential Education and Learning (ExEL), and the Department of Family Therapy, monthly equine assisted Early Immersion Experiences for undergrads are now offered. According to Shelley Green, Ph.D., professor in DFT, "All offerings for this term filled immediately and we look forward to offering more next term, along with some Co-Curricular experiences. Many thanks to Family Therapy doctoral student Caitlin Sickler, M.S., for developing and running this program."

Green initiated the course, Equine Assisted Family Therapy, which was the first of its kind to be housed in a nationally accredited family therapy program. She subsequently created a second advanced equine assisted course several years ago. She has published articles and book chapters on the subject and has presented at national and international conferences.

KPCOM Health and Wellness Coaching Bachelor's Program

The KPCOM received approval to launch its third bachelor's degree program—a Bachelor of Science in Health and Wellness Coaching (HAWC) in partnership with NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS). The new program, which will begin in fall 2020, also offers students an option for an accelerated Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine degree program, as well as an option for dual admission into the CAHSS's Master of Science in Family Therapy program.

The HAWC program will be offered as a traditional on-site, daytime model at the Fort Lauderdale/Davie Campus. Faculty members from the KPCOM, the CAHSS, the Halmos College of Natural Sciences and Oceanography, and the College of Medical Sciences will teach the courses.

The curriculum will provide opportunities for the HAWC students to participate in global and domestic health outreach initiatives with undergraduate public health, nutrition, family studies, and pre-counseling students. Classroom instruction will be augmented with innovative, community-based, experiential learning opportunities that include the use of contemporary information technology.

"We are very excited about this new bachelor's program, since it will provide a unique pathway for students to enter the Dr. Kiran C. Patel College of Osteopathic Medicine," said Phyllis Filker, D.M.D., M.P.H., associate dean of undergraduate, graduate, and community education. "The HAWC major also provides an opportunity for students not interested in becoming a physician to be a vital part of the health care team."

College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences Hosts 7th Annual High School Model United Nations Conference

NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS) is delighted to announce that the 7th Annual NIRAMUN Conference, held on November 8, 2019 was a great success. The Nova International Relations Association (NIRA) welcomed more than 160 local high school students to campus for the conference. NIRA serves as NSU's regional award-winning Model United Nations team.

The faculty advisor, Nelson Bass, J.D., Ph.D., was thrilled with the turnout for the event in its 7th year: "I essentially think of our annual high school conference as a mini-Shark Preview. Since 2012, we have hosted over 1000 area high school students at this event. Not only do the delegates work on valuable skills at the conference, but they get to see our beautiful campus and work with our own students."

NIRAMUN 2019 was the largest conference held to date at NSU, and included students from 8 area schools including: Archimedean Upper Conservatory, Pine Crest School, West Broward, McFatter Technical, Fort Lauderdale High, St. Thomas Aquinas, University School, and West Boca Raton High School. The event was run by NIRA team members and directed by the NIRA executive leadership board. The board consists of NIRA President, Varsha Gopaulchan, an International Studies major, NIRA Vice-President Genesis Alvarez, a Legal Studies major, and NIRA Internal Affairs Director Kayre Alcantara Martinez, a Political Science major. During the conference, high school students act as UN delegates representing different countries and work together to solve pressing global issues while utilizing parliamentary procedure and learning valuable negotiation, writing, and public speaking skills.

Department of History & Political Science Internship Workshops

On October 17, 2019, the Department of History and Political Science in NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS) hosted an internship workshop for undergraduate students majoring in history, political science, legal studies, international studies, and philosophy. The meeting highlighted several local internship opportunities designed specifically for students in these fields. Staff from NSU's Office of Career Services were on hand to talk about the internship process and highlight a range of other internship opportunities available to NSU undergraduate students.

El Cafecito Spanish Conversation Tables

El Cafecito Spanish Conversation Table; September 9, 2019

The Department of Literature and Modern Languages (DLML) in NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS) hosted the first of three El Cafecito Spanish Conversation Table of the semester on September 9, 2019.

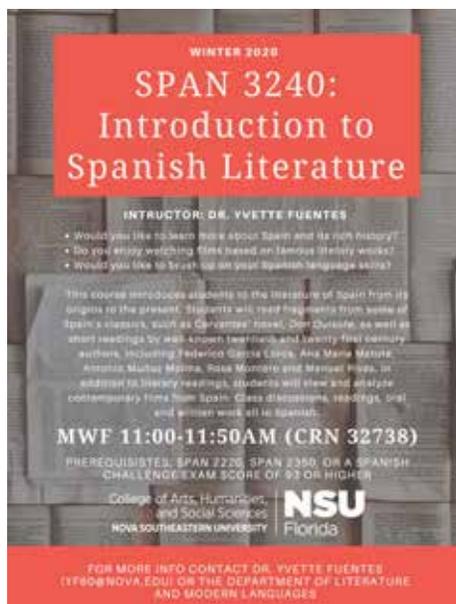

Over forty students, most of whom are enrolled in Spanish courses, participated in the event. Three Spanish faculty members, Yvette Fuentes, Ph.D., Grace Helguero-Balcells, Ph.D., and Carolina Zarate, Ph.D., served as moderators. During the hour, students had the opportunity to chat in Spanish about various topics of interest in a relaxed atmosphere. Participants enjoyed Cuban pastries and Colombian coffee.

The department hosted two more El Cafecito events during the semester, on Tuesday, October 15, 2019 and again on Friday, November 15, 2019. El Cafecito is open to all members of our community who wish to practice their Spanish. All levels are welcome.

CAHSS Offers Spanish courses for Legal Professions and Spanish Literature

NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS), is pleased to announce that the new courses: SPAN 3400, Spanish for Legal Professions, and SPAN 3240, Introduction to Spanish Literature to be offered in the winter 2020.

SPAN 3400 is catered towards professionals in the legal field or for those who plan to enter the field. SPAN 3400 will provide useful language skills as well as valuable information about legal issues affecting the Spanish speaking communities. For those who would like to learn more about Spanish literature while brushing up on the Spanish language, SPAN 3240 will provide those opportunities.

CSA Students Awarded First Place in NASPACase Study and Student Named Outstanding Graduate Student

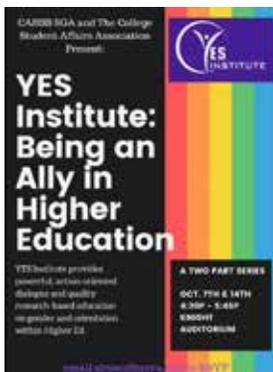

Students from the M.S. in College Student Affairs participated in the Florida Conference for the Student Affairs Administrators in Higher Education, (NASPA), NASPA Florida Drive-In held at the University of Central Florida. When all was said and done, our students received top honors at the conference.

Two NSU CSA teams, made up of Tara Centeno, Dani Durbala, Craig Johnson, Greg Langstaff, Victor Martinez, Julio Perez, Sean Ryan and Samantha Townshend entered the Case Study Competition. The NSU team of Craig Johnson, Greg Langstaff, Sean Ryan and Samantha Townshend won First Place - the first time an NSU team took first place in this competition!

Not to be outdone, CSA student Greg Langstaff was named NASPA-Florida Graduate Student of the Year! This is the second consecutive year a student from NSU has received this honor. Langstaff will now be nominated by the state association for the NASPA Region III Graduate Student of the Year.

Yes Institute Training: Including & Empowering Students with Diverse Gender and Orientation Experiences

The Yes Institute Training took place October 7th and 14th, 2019. The training was hosted by the College of Student Affairs and organized by Daniela Karaki-Suarez. The two-part series featured speakers who came to discuss topics: Including & Empowering Students with Diverse Gender and Orientation Experiences. Dani Domingues, Community Education Coordinator led discussions and exercises on addressing conflict surrounding the topic of diverse gender experiences. Breanne Taylor, of Starfish Consulting also spoke to share insight and guidance on transgender identity topics.

Performing & Visual Arts

Dance Works 2019

Each year, the Department of Performing and Visual Arts (PVA) in the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences presents outstanding visual arts exhibitions and theatrical, musical, and dance productions. This year, Dance Works featured members of the NSU Dance ensemble performing new original work by dance faculty and guest choreographers. This performance featured a diverse range of styles and showcased the incredible talent of the NSU Dance Ensemble.

“Dance Works was an amazing experience for me because I was not only able to improve my skills as a dancer, but I also met amazing people that I will stay in touch with for the rest of my life,” Linoz explains. She notes that she “worked with choreographers that impacted me greatly and was able to find a group of individuals that I identify with in a lot of aspects. It was also great that I was able to help some of them with their papers in the WCC and that I followed some of their comp classes as well!”

PVA Music Program Making Waves Nationally and Internationally

In Fall 2019 the PVA music program has been making more noise than usual. This past August, the first ever NSU Drumline was established. The drumline is made up of PVA music majors, Razor’s Edge Shark Talent scholars, and other Razor’s Edge scholars.

NSU Drumline performing at Seniors Night basketball game

Already the drumline has performed at numerous campus events and exclusive events such as the Celebration of Excellence, along with Canta Sempre (vocal ensemble established by Shark Talent scholars) and the Pistris Ensemble (PVA chamber music ensemble).

This past January, two PVA music majors, Mario Yi and Ernesto Velasquez as well as PVA music professor Jessica Muñiz-Collado attended the NAMM Show in Anaheim, CA. Prof. Collado was also a presenter at the renowned music conference, and Mario Yi was awarded the NAMM Presidential Innovation Award, making him the first ever NSU student to win the award. The PVA music ensembles, and music students continue to perform throughout the year.

Critical Making: A CRDM Exhibit

On Tuesday, July 2nd, the Department of Writing and Communication (DWC), within NSU's College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (CAHSS), held the inaugural gallery opening for "Critical Making: A CRDM Exhibit" in PVA Gallery 217. The event brought together graduate students in the M.A. in Composition, Rhetoric, and Digital Media (CRDM) program, other interested students, alumni, and faculty from across CAHSS for an evening of celebration and critical making.

The exhibit included a wide range of CRDM students' physical projects (board games, print pamphlets, printed posters, fabric bags, etc.) intermingled with several interactive digital projects (websites, audio recordings, etc.) presented on tablets and computers throughout the gallery. Every project in the exhibit had a placard along with a quick response (QR) code. The code linked attendees to a digital version of the gallery that curated and contextualized the projects by the classes for which they were created.

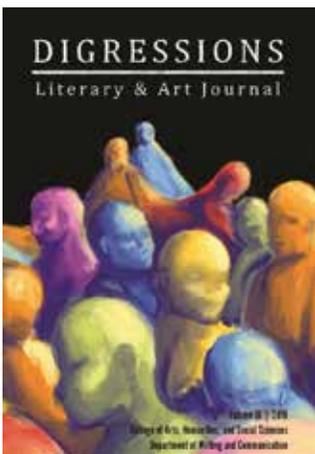

In addition to learning about the different multimodal and digital projects graduate students create in CRDM courses, attendees were introduced to the concept of critical making and the DWC's Production and Preservation Project (P3)—a new initiative the department is undertaking to digitally archive and showcase student works. Attendees were also invited to practice critical making during the event by collaboratively contributing pages to a zine memorializing the exhibit's opening.

"Our CRDM students produce amazing works throughout their M.A. that challenge traditional notions of humanities scholarship," said Melissa Bianchi, Ph.D., assistant professor of writing in the Department of Writing and Communication. Several M.A. in CRDM students attended the event and had their works highlighted, including Nikki Chasteen and Veronica Diaz, who began the program in 2018 and 2017, respectively.

Mario D'Agostino, visiting assistant professor of writing, Bianchi, and Kaitlyn Armstrong, a current CRDM student, curated the exhibit. "After seeing the work being produced in individual CRDM classes, we felt that it was important that the wider NSU community experience these incredible projects," said D'Agostino.

Digressions Literary & Art Journal

The 16th volume featured student work from numerous colleges and degrees across NSU. Logan Stewart, an Art and Design major from the Department of Performing and Visual Arts, directed the journal's leadership. Jenna Kopec, Communication major from DWC served as Associate Editor.

To celebrate the Spring 2019 issue, Digressions: Literary & Art Journal held its yearly launch on April 1 in PVA Gallery 217. "The launch is our culminating celebration of this incredible student work. The journal is created entirely by students, from the content to the publishing process and their hard work deserves acknowledgement and celebration," said Molly Scanlon, Ph.D., co-faculty advisor to the journal and associate professor of writing in DWC.

The 17th volume of Digressions was edited by graduate CRDM students in their Editing, Layout, and Design class, and features a cover designed by PVA Graphic Design students, bringing together the best of CAHSS to publish masterful work.
