

5-1-2012

This is Just to Say (after William Carlos Williams)

Pauline Eckart
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Eckart, Pauline (2012) "This is Just to Say (after William Carlos Williams)," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 18 , Article 33.

Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol18/iss1/33

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

The background of the page features three handmade rag dolls. They are constructed from light-colored fabric, possibly cotton or linen, with dark green or brown fabric patches on their bodies. Each doll has two large, dark buttons for eyes. The dolls are strung together with a thick, light-colored twine. The lighting is dramatic, with strong highlights and deep shadows, creating a somber and textured atmosphere.

Artwork:
Do It
by Gillian Newman

This is Just to Say
(after William Carlos Williams)
by: Pauline Eckart

Today when you weren't in the playroom
I ripped the head off Barbie.
I think she might have been your favorite.
But you told me mine was ugly.

I know I shouldn't have done it
And you might cry,
But her perfect face just kept staring at me,
Telling me, "You're ugly."