

5-1-2012

Unnecessary Distractions

Rebecca Entenberg
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Entenberg, Rebecca (2012) "Unnecessary Distractions," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 18 , Article 36.

Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol18/iss1/36

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Unnecessary Distractions

by: Rebecca Entenberg

I think I'm done with all these dudes.
Guess you could say I've had it with their antics.

They're loud and strange and smelly and rude and
it's enough to make me
frantic.

Don't care if he's tall or suave or smart or rich.
Don't care if he's Mr. Romantic with perfect pitch.

Who gives a crap if he spends his free time rescuing bright-eyed children from the unrelenting arms of evil?

What does it matter if he got a perfect score on the SAT?

I swear that a billion perfect filled-in bubbles
just won't do it for me.

Who even cares that he's got perfect hair?
He'll be bald one day
anyway.

His laugh is just so damn adorable, not unlike the delightful dog I'm sure I'll adore when I finally get around to adoptin' me a puppy,
because the only male I need by my side
is one with a jangling collar and waggin' tail.

Who cares about guys? Dogs are all the rage.

If he walked in I'd just glance away—

Psh, I'm done with you.