- ▶ The first memory I have is of my father, looking into a mirror with me on his shoulders. I was three years old. I still remember the strength of my father's arms and the way we looked as I saw myself for the first time.
- ▶ Many of our first memories are of the men in our lives...the fathers who raised us and the brothers who grew up with us. Later we will remember the lovers who held us, the men who kept us safe and those who obstructed or challenged us, the men who taught us, and the fathers of our children, the partners who grew with us to our life's end.
- ▶ This edition of this journal celebrates men of all ages and walks of life, in all their forms and glory.
- ▶ Enjoy the male form. Remember...
