BROOKINGS INSTITUTE

Nova University Public Administration graduates enter Brookings Institute in Washington, D.C. for meetings with public administrators. Irving Rosenbaum, Town Administrator, City of Davie, Fl. is seen in foreground.

Brookings-Nova Seminar Dictates Need for Effective Leadership in Government

Nova University graduates from the Center for the Study of Administration gathered in Washington, D.C. May 26-29 to meet with public officials in a "Seminar on Public Policy" that Nova sponsored in cooperation with the Brookings Institution. Graduates flew in from across the country and represented such various fields as city management, state government, hospital administration, public utilities and military service.

They came because they wanted a better grasp of national policy and direction to lead their respective agency or institution into the decade ahead with promise. They left with a better understanding of how government works and with the sure knowledge that things ahead are far, far from rosy.

If there was one major theme that underscored every spoken word, it was that now, more than ever before, is the time for effective leadership. For as Sidney Jones, former Asst. Secretary of Commerce for Economic affairs said, "People don't want to hear bad things now." Jones asserted that we, as a country, need economic growth to have social and political growth and that we need growth in order to have national security. He aligned the current political situation in America with a popular song that goes, "They better mean it this time." He concluded his dynamic address with those same words, leaving little doubt in anyone's mind that if we do not turn a corner, we will begin to deteriorate and rather rapidly.

Irving Rosenbaum, Town Administrator from Davie, Fla., could closely identify with the theory of economic growth being so closely tied to social ramifications. Of 44 CETA employees in his town, mostly Haitian, he had just laid off 14 of them. Said Rosenbaum, "Economic policy will dictate where aid will go," and he cited an almost revolutionary tone in Washington, D.C. as all factions struggle for their share of the dollar.

Parrin Mitchell, (D) Md., who feels that the current budget cut is needed, but not without some mooring to hang onto in the interim, said, "When everything else fails and there are no jobs, it is the responsibility of government. For example, as he pointed out, what is the point in training people in CETA for jobs, if there are no jobs? Mitchell, in response to the general conception that this will be a long, hot summer, said, "Next summer will be the long hot summer", for that is when the full effect of the budget cuts will be felt.

Paralleling the theme of difficult times ahead for Americans was the repeated theme that "people will look for other alternatives" when things are going badly and that "people will try anything". Congressman Dan Mica of Florida warned that while Reagan's cuts are severe, if they do not work, the next person in office will be more severe.

Graduates listened intently, looking for answers to their particular situation and for the people they lead. Said Helen Fredrick, a member of the Illinois State Board of Education and former news commentator for CBS radio, "Understanding the public dynamics is most appropriate because everything depends on public appropriations".

Pamela Heuer, Asst. Hospital Director of Tampa General Hospital in Florida, knows well what lack of appropriations can mean in terms of human life. She pointed out that even neonatal care of infants born prematurely rests upon the promise of funding from counties when other monies are not available.

Also of general consensus throughout the four days of meetings was a perception of the change in focus of government. Parrin Mitchell termed it a time of "redefinition," just as the periods of time after the Revolutionary War, the Civil War and the Great Depression. Fordyce Luikart, consultant with the Advanced Study Program at Brookings, asked, "Is this a watershed time?", and answered, "Yes, there is a major shift in focus — to local activity." He pointed out that we, as Americans, have tried to build a system based upon the ideal man, but warned we will never have it because man doesn't act that way. "It takes a coalition, an alliance to make a major policy change," he stated, "with the end result being compromise."

Mailman Family Center Dedication July 25

Broward County will have its first complete family service center when the doors officially open at 3 p.m., Saturday, July 25 to the new Mailman Family Center on the Nova University campus.

Behind those doors will be housed innovative facilities for infants 6 weeks of age to 4-year old toddlers, along with therapy rooms for children and parents alike and the latest equipment for learning disabilities and parent skills programs.

Taking visitors on a tour of the playground, Dr. Marilyn Segal, Dir. of the Center, points out that it is unlike any other playground in South Florida because it is designed for handicapped children as well as for those who are not handicapped. In the playground, there are highways, bridges, a service station with gas pump, and even a garage! Even an infant bin, complete with thatched roof to keep out the Florida sun, makes it possible for infants to enjoy the activity of their older toddler friends. Only seeing is believing this unique playground design. So, your August issue will bring photographs of the dedication, for those of you across the country.

Five two-way viewing windows are incorporated into the three story building with numerous small therapy rooms, each cozily furnished. Several rooms feature, along with the adult size furniture, miniature tables and chairs for the little folks.

Upstairs, in the toddlers' playroom, one is almost overwhelmed with the attention to detail that has been so obvious in the preparation of this room. There are many records of cradle songs for resting and sleeping, as well as counting games, rhythms for the little ones, nursery rhymes, and the much loved "hokey pokey".

Any mother would recognize the many "favorites" ... Kermit the Frog puppet, the Fischer Price "fun jet", the Tupperware ball, and of course the play telephone. But there are many other unusual touches that make one stop and think. In the play kitchen, a basket of play fruit. And tucked below the kitchen sink, a picnic basket! Play dishes, furniture just like grown-ups, hats for all kinds of people (firemen, army, workmen) and, in the middle of all this, a pad for the infants to lie on and be a part of it all again.

Musical toys abound, with bells, tambourines, xylophone and others. Visit the family Center the first chance you have.

The last speaker of the Nova University Executive Council Forum 1981 was Victor Lloyd Tomseth, former American hostage in Iran. Here, Tomseth, left, is seen with Mrs. Mary R. McCahill, Chairman of the Nova University Board of Trustees and President of Nova University, Dr. Abraham S. Fischler.

Computers are for Everybody!

In an effort to dispel the illusion that computers are only for engineers and scientifically oriented people, the Corporate Division has developed a series of courses for the person who would like to know more about computers, but who does not have a technical background. CS 111 - Introduction to Computer Science, which will be offered in the August schedule, is a course designed to teach people how to use computers and programs which have already been written. CS 112 - Introduction to Data Processing offers non-majors an opportunity to learn data processing techniques and their applications in business. This course will be offered in October. CS 201 Programming Methods I is designed to provide the non-technical student with an understanding of computer programming. The Corporate Division also provides bachelor degrees in Electrical Engineering, Computer Science and Computer Systems for those who desire to be specialists in this field.

University School Toddlers Videotape New Reading Program

There was great excitement in Learning Technology recently, when three small children from the University School arrived in the studio. With them, came Dr. Joan Gelormino, Director of the Lower House and Peter Schreck from England.

The occasion was the videotaping, under the direction of Dr. Ethel Radon, of the demonstration of Mr. Schreck's new Acorn Magic Readers. These are a series of nine sets of readers, each set of which is designed to develop specific reading skills in small children through a carefully planned procedure.

The youngest of the three guests demonstrated the Recognition of a Word series with remarkable skill and great charm. The next oldest child demonstrated the Reading of A Word series with equal skill and charm. Finally, the oldest of the three children demonstrated the Reading of a Single Sentence series with great skill.

Working under the expert guidance and help of Dr. Joan Gelormino the children - ranging in age from 2-1/2 to 4 years of age - read with great enjoyment and skill. The delightful videotape of this demonstration is available in Learning Technology for those who would like to view it.

One of Nova's graduates, Dr. Ellsworth Hasbrouck, a Chicago surgeon who entered the DPA program "because I just needed it" in serving on the hospital board, probably summed up the public administration program best when he said, "The program gives you learning tools to think." With compromise and coalitions the avenues to problem solving, it would seem Nova University graduates are well prepared to face the future, and will also gain the much needed new insights provided by such programs as the Brookings seminar.

A famous American once said, "We have met the enemy and it is us." Surely, those words have never needed to be taken as seriously as they should be today.

"Exhilarating ... an excellent opportunity for verbalizing your thoughts and clarifying your thinking." Ray Garritano, Supt. of Schools, Mokena School District, Chicago, Ill.

Praise for the seminar ran extremely high, with Ernest Zaccanelli, Chief Asst. Sheriff, Prince George County, Md., summarizing it best, "If there was an academy award for seminars, this would get it!"

Ray Garritano, Supt. of Schools for Mokena School District in Illinois and a cluster director in the DPA program stated that he found the entire seminar, "exhilarating" and "excellent to verbalize your thoughts and clarify your thinking." Assistant to the Mayor of Chicago Reginald Brown, Jr. had this to say, "This kind of a seminar put on by Nova with Brookings underscores the value that I have always had of my association with Nova. It is an extremely valuable experience to meet with known scholars in the field of public administration as well as to discuss the theoretical. I thoroughly enjoyed myself."

"It really has a value you can't total." Althea Andersen, librarian, Clearwater Public Library, Clearwater, Fl.

Althea Andersen, librarian with the Clearwater Public Library, Clearwater, Fl., summed up her feelings in this manner, "The seminar has enabled me to see the kind of changes in store. I hope to relate this back to policy makers and enable them to make better decisions. It really has been a value you can't total. It's been wonderful meeting with enlightened people."

Personal Report

by Jennifer P. Meriam

On May 14 a very important day occurred in my life. I became a part of the Nova University family. With each day that passes, I become more and more aware of the fact that "family" is just what it's all about at Nova.

Largely due to good timing, I had the wonderful opportunity early in my career here to view first hand the very best of Nova University. I am speaking of the sharing of knowledge ... between students, graduates and leaders in the fields of education, industry and government.

One of our university's most cherished goals is to provide our graduates with lifelong learning opportunities ... not to just ask our alumni what they can do for us, but to have something meaningful to give to them also. That surely was the foundation upon which the Washington Seminar on Public Policy, conducted by The Brookings Institution in cooperation with the Nova University Center for the Study of Administration, was born.

And that is basically how I came to find myself, in no way a seasoned air traveler, aboard a 737 Air Florida jet on the morning of May 25, Memorial Day 1981. Destination ... Washington, D.C. I did have a companion in this venture, Toni Steinberg, Asst. to the Dir. of Alumni Affairs. We took off from Fort Lauderdale Hollywood Airport, only to land minutes later in West Palm Beach to pick up passengers for the flight to the nation's Capitol. It was a beautiful day and a beautiful flight, but I was nevertheless anxious to get on the ground.

Little did I know what was in store for us there! I had not flown in four years, but I did think it a bit strange when we were told that we could not get our own bags. In fact, the area was soon roped off, while a rather harried gentleman quickly unloaded them from the conveyor belt, and snapped to passengers, "I don't have time to answer questions."

Once outside the terminal, it was apparent that something was definitely amiss. You would have thought the world was standing still, so to speak. Taxis were lined up as far as you could see, but not only was no one in them, no one was even near them. Traffic backed up as far as the eye could see. And people, including cab drivers, lined up calmly along the pavement ... waiting for word of what was happening. Soon it came. First the words circulated, "bomb scare," then, "suspicious package." And then, suddenly, words I'll never forget. "Move back, move back! Back past American!"

It's strange how one can picture panic in such a moment. It was obvious a bomb had been found. And I, an Alabamian living in South Florida, could not more tell you where "American" was in this huge city, than I could direct you to the moon. I remember thinking, "My God, I don't know which way to go!" And I said to Toni, "Let's leave our bags!" but not Toni. She said no way would she leave her bags! I grabbed mine and ran in a manner that would have made my Jr. High PE teacher glow! And I was surely carrying at least 60 pounds! The crowd moved quickly and orderly in the direction we were waved. No one screamed, no one really panicked. We just waited.

An army ordinance truck was in front of the main terminal. Word circulated that they were detonating the bomb. A rescue truck was nearby, soon joined by a fire truck. I felt good being with Toni. When I asked her how she felt about it all, she replied, "Oh, I had them dropping on me back in 1941!" Somehow, the knowledge that she had survived in her native homeland of Britain, at the hands of German bombers, made our plight not nearly so fearful.

Within an hour, the ordeal was over ... there was a small pop. The device had been detonated and all was safe. We were on our way into the Capitol.

In this issue of Nova News you will read more about the Brookings Seminar, the speakers and the participants. I hope you can feel some of the excitement of what took place. If you are a Nova graduate, perhaps you would like to note on our Novagram, page 5, the type of continuing education you would like to see in the future.

Mothers and Daughters ... Partnership in Weight Loss

Little girls between the ages of 8 and 10 years of age who are 15% overweight or more, qualify for a free program in weight education and reduction at Nova University.

Dr. Alan Katell, Dept. of Psychology, who is conducting the study, is interested in what part mothers play in their children's losing weight and keeping it off. He points out that the 8-10 age group has been chosen for several reasons. Of utmost importance is the fact that "peer influences are very important in the pre-puberty period, 11-12, following."

The 8-week program will include several components. Some of these are: exercise and stimulus control, limiting the places that you eat and snack, a major part of the problem as Dr. Katell sees it.

This is the first in a series of studies aimed at long-term prevention of health problems. For further information and registration, call Dr. Alan Katell at 475-7559.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Lois Baker, Delaware Cluster, Ed.D., is director of the Early Childhood Center at Drexel University in Philadelphia. Recently, the University paid proud tribute to Prof. Baker and to the model laboratory school she has so competently nurtured for the past twenty years. "Drexel's Early Childhood Center program is the product of 50 years of careful thought, effort and experience, and it is one of the University's most successful efforts at combining education and community service." That statement can, in large part, be made because of the efforts of Lois Baker. Nova University is proud to say that Lois is a part of us, too.

Congratulations to Joyce Blakely, Cluster 4, Ed.D. Early Childhood, who was recently appointed Project Director of the Basic Educational Skills Project in Collier County, Fl. The Basic Educational Skills Project is a longitudinal Research and Demonstration study initiated and funded by the Administration for Children, Youth and Families (ACYF). The BES Project is meant to show strategies and methodologies in the areas of curriculum, parent involvement, continuity, and teacher attitudes and behavior which can be used in other school systems and hopefully improve the basic educational skills of students from Head Start through the elementary schools. Joyce is responsible for program administration and program leadership, coordination of long and short term goals and objectives for each program element, and facilitates overall project efforts through coordination of BES staff, consultants, and visitors to the project.

Lillian B. Brand, a student in the Master's Program for Child Care Administrators, has had her Special Project for Nova published as a book by Prentice Hall. The book, Home-Style Learning, is a collection of 175 easy-to-do activities that parents can use to help their child grow toward a healthy adulthood. The book evolved from a set of workshops designed by Mrs. Brand and her co-author, Philip S. Morse. Mrs. Brand is director of The New York State Experimental Pre-Kindergarten in Hamburg, N.Y.

Dr. Anna Mae Burke, Dir., Corporate Div., appeared on the Broward County Library program June 16 and 19 to discuss her book, Are You Ready: A Survival Manual for Women Returning to School. The program was aired on Selkirk cable television, Channel 25.

Dr. Richard Dodge and Gregory McIntosh attended the Fourth International Coral Reef Symposium, entitled "The Reef and Man," held in Manila, The Philippines, May 18-22. The major topic of the symposium was the effect of bombing near a coral reef area. Dr. Dodge presented a paper entitled "Growth Characteristics of Reef-building Corals within an External to a Naval Ordnance Range, Vieques, Puerto Rico." Mr. McIntosh presented a paper entitled "Artificial Reefs as Fishery Management Tools in the United States." Dr. Richard Dodge will spend the first two weeks of July at the Bermuda Biological Station, St. Georges, Bermuda, working on a grant issued to him by Exxon Oil Company. He will participate in a study of the effects of oil and oil dispersants on corals.

Dr. Joseph Fordyce gave the commencement address to Quincy Junior College graduates in Quincy, Mass. on June 7. The title of his speech was, "The Road Not Taken."

Dr. Richard Gerson, Health Education, spoke on June 16 to the Association of Occupational Health Nurses on the topic, "Making Occupational Stress Work for You." The group consists of nurses working with firms such as IBM, Motorola and Southern Bell. Dr. Gerson has lectured on stress management and time management at many local hospitals, including Plantation General and Perdue Medical Center in Miami, and he has been contacted recently by publishers to compile textbooks on the subjects of stress, health psychology, and behavioral medicine.

Dr. Julian P. McCreary, Jr. was appointed Dir. of the Nova University Oceanographic Center at the Board of Trustees Meeting held on April 27, 1981.

Robert Heidger and Ginny Sewell, Delaware, Ed.D., were selected from their school system to attend a ten-day intensive training program held at Adelphi University National Training Institute.

Dr. James D. Carroll, Dir., Advanced Study Program at Brookings, discusses the Nova Public Policy seminar with Dr. John Clarke and Toni Steinberg, Asst. to the Dir. of Alumni Affairs at Nova.

HEALTHSCRIPTS

by Richard F. Gerson, Ph.D.

Since this is the first column of Healthscripts, I thought it would be best to introduce the concept before delving into specifics. Healthscripts involve understanding what true health really is and what you, as a self-responsible individual, can contribute to your state of health.

Most people define health as being the absence of disease. This is not a good definition. A person who has no observable illness would not be considered healthy if he or she complained about backaches, excessive fatigue, or a host of other minor ailments. Health is more than the absence of disease. Health involves achieving a state of complete physical, mental, and social well-being. In this state, you are growing, learning, and changing to meet the demands placed on your health. Your level of health may be viewed as a continuum, with zero health or death at the low end, and optimal health or wellness at the high end.

Wellness, or optimal health, includes having a high energy level, good muscle strength and tone, an ideal body weight, the ability to relax, proper nutrition, and a well-integrated or self-actualized personality.

In order to achieve this goal of optimal health, you must discard negative health practices such as smoking, drinking, substance abuse, and overeating, and engage in positive health practices. These include a nutritionally balanced diet, adequate amounts of relaxation and sleep, regular exercise, a positive attitude that you are responsible for your health, and the motivation to achieve a state of wellness. In fact, you might say that achieving optimal health is like a D.R.E.A.M. come true.

To help you set up your Healthscript, begin to keep a daily diary that details your behaviors in these five areas of health practice. Behaviors which you identify as obstacles to wellness can then be cleared away and more appropriate ones can be substituted for them. Remember, only you can make you truly health.

Dr. Richard Gerson is an adjunct professor at Nova University and a frequent lecturer on stress management. If you have any questions you would like to address to Dr. Gerson, just send them to the attention of this office and they will be forwarded to him so that he may answer in this column.

Graduation...

On May 24 over 150 very enthusiastic graduates accepted their diplomas from the Nova University Law Center from an equally enthusiastic audience. Seated in the magnificent Parker Playhouse, with producer Zev Bufman seated onstage waiting to receive an honorary degree, the onlookers listened to Dean Roger Cramton give the commencement address.

Cramton, the former Dean of Cornell Law School and currently a visiting professor at Duke University, challenged the graduates to "Keep your eye on ultimate ends" and "Create a story of your life, cherish individuals." He pointed out that in "creating new possibilities for yourself and others, you will create life itself."

Just one week later, 49 graduating seniors from the University School fondly said their goodbyes to a crowd of more than 500 family and friends at the Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood at a Sunday brunch. The graduates were met after receiving their diplomas by their parents, who also had the opportunity to express their sentiments. There were tears, smiles of happiness and many regards to Ms. Carla Monti, Senior Class Sponsor and Coordinator; Guidance and Counseling, who is leaving the University to move to the Orlando area. Dr. James Smith, Dir., Upper School, had special words for each graduate as Dr. Joseph Randazzo, Headmaster, presented each diploma. Dr. Abraham S. Fischler, President of Nova University, gave a special address to the graduating seniors.

On Sunday, July 26, 2 p.m. at Sunrise Musical Theatre a university wide commencement will be held. Undergraduates, graduates and doctoral students will receive their diplomas at that time.

Gold Circle Women Promote Campus Beautification

Gold Circle of Nova University is a women's support group organized for the purpose of generating community involvement to advance the purpose of Nova University.

This year, their goal has been campus beautification. Money has been raised to paint and sandblast buildings and for shrubbery surrounding the soon to be dedicated Mailman Family Center. The group has also initiated a memorial fund through which donations can be made to the university on the occasion of anniversaries, birthdays, or births as well as for memorials. For further information, call Rose Ann Schaeffer, Dir. of Special Events, Office of Development at 475-7425.

27th ANNUAL FLORIDA D

The Florida Derby Ball, which benefits Nova University, is traditionally one of the highlights of the social season, and this year's event was no exception.

Three hundred and fifty guests came to dine, dance and enjoy the splendid festivities of this, the 27th Annual Florida Derby Ball, held March 4 at the new Marriott Hotel and Marina in Fort Lauderdale.

Orchids, the official flower of Gulfstream, were everywhere — as favors for the women, centerpieces on each table, leis worn by the hostesses, and, as customary, the center of attention in the huge Orchid Horseshoe, symbol of the "Run For The Orchids" which the winner of the Florida Derby receives. Many of the guests, caught up in the spirit of the day, were attired in orchid-colored dresses. Their escorts received lucky horseshoe favors.

The overall chairmen, Mrs. James W. (Sherry) Rice and Mrs. R. Basil (Claudine) Rutter, saw to it that the "racing" theme was carried through "Sniff", the lead pony from Gulfstream Park, with outrider Chris Melhorn astride, greeted the arriving guests. Dinner was announced by a bugler, and place cards designated the "gate" (or table) number. Everyone, from perennial chairman Mrs. Robert A. (Millicent) Steele on, agreed that the chairmen had done a winning job.

One of the special features of the Ball was an elaborate hot-dish cocktail hour. It was held in a room overlooking the tropical garden, with the guests seated at tables under thatched roofs.

Dinner and dancing to Marshall Grant's orchestra, were followed by greetings from Dr. Abraham Fischler, president of Nova University. Dr. Fischler presented gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Donn (Mr. Donn is president of Gulfstream Park) and to Mrs. Joseph Fowler, the former Mary Anna Donn, whose late husband, Jimmy Donn Jr., was president of Gulfstream.

The Florida Derby Ball attracts guests from Palm Beach, Broward, and Dade Counties, and many dignitaries. Among this year's guests were the Donald LeVines (Liz Anne LeVine is the sister of Princess Grace of Monaco); Jonnie Miller (of golfing fame); and Paul Marriott of the Marriott Hotel chain.

Chapter Activities

Region I

Graduates in Jacksonville held a dinner meeting at the home of Drs. Herman and Ailene Howard (Ed.D.'s '80) on May 8. Toni Steinberg attended and discussion centered around the direction and structure of the new chapter.

The President and officers, who had been elected at a previous meeting, are: President, Cecil L. Allison, Ed.D. '75; Officers: The Drs. Howard; Lucille M. Coberly, Ed.D. '79; Julia B. Fiorentino, Ed.D. '79; and Ann Tillman, Ed.D. '75.

Region I

Herbert Silver, Ed.D., Chairperson of the Nominating Committee of the South Florida Chapter submitted the following slate of officers for the 1981/82 year:

President: David White, Ed.D.; President-Elect: George Emerson, Ed.D.; Secretary: Gloria Mahoney, Ed.D.; Treasurer: Frances Altman, Ed.D. It is interesting to note that these graduates represent three of the Nova University national field based Doctor of Education programs.

The Annual Meeting to elect the above nominees was held on April 3 at the Miami Marriott Hotel.

We wish the South Florida Chapter all success as they reorganize to include all Nova University graduates.

Articles And Publications

Region II

Archie Morris, III, D.P.A., 1976, presented a paper to the Eastern Economic Association's 7th Annual Convention in Philadelphia on April 10th, entitled, "Motivation and Productivity Among White Collar Workers". Dr. Morris holds the position of Chief of Facilities Management Division in the Administrative Services Department of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C.

Charlay Van-Esquire Hart, D.P.A., 1980, has written an article entitled, "Data Gathering - An Achilles Heel," that has been published in the Employment and Training Administration's (Department of Labor) Analyst Exchange, March, 1981 issue.

Region IV

Jim Murphey, D.P.A., 1980, was recently featured in an article that appeared in the Troy, Ohio, News and the Greenville Advocate (Ohio) which described the graphic methods he employs in teaching Consumer Behavior to students at Edison State Community College in Ohio. Dr. Murphey bases his philosophy on the concepts of Roger Blackwell of Ohio State University who invented the term, consumer behavior, and published a book on it.

Region VI

Fannie E. Brown, Ed.D., 1978, has had her dissertation, "Improving the Applicant Selection Process of the Nursing Program at City College of San Francisco," included in the national ERIC data base, giving ERIC document number ED164066. The citation and abstract for this document appeared in the May, 1979, Resources in Education. Her most recent article entitled, "Juvenile Prostitution: A Nursing Perspective," has been published in the December, 1980, issue of the Journal of Psychiatric Nursing and Mental Health.

Region II

The National Capitol Area Chapter hosted a cocktail party at the Georgetown Hotel on Tues., May 26, the evening prior to the "Public Policy" seminar, and graduates in the area were invited to meet Dr. Fischler, Dr. Clarke, members of the faculty and national preceptors. Toni Steinberg from the Alumni Office also attended.

The evening was an unqualified success and graduates who had earned DPA's, Ed.D.'s, JD's and MS's were in attendance.

* * * * *

The Mid-Atlantic Area Chapter held a first Anniversary Meeting on May 27. An interesting program was planned and four members of the Philadelphia High School Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of the School Music Director, provided a background of their jazz interpretations during the dinner hour.

The guest speaker for the evening was Dr. Bernard G. Kelner who gave an excellent and timely address on professionalism in the school system. Toni Steinberg also attended and brought greetings from the central staff and a Nova update on alumni and university activities.

The Chapter officers are: Pres., James E. Barksdale; Treas., Richard Strauss. Committees: Membership, Marvin A. Goldenberg; Coordination, Mathew Knowles; Certification, Sadie S. Mitchell; Program, Walter H. Scott. All of the above have earned a Doctor of Education degree.

Region IV

A Breakfast Meeting to which Dr. Fischler was invited was held in Chicago on June 6.

In Memory

Nan Hutchinson, Ed.D., 1975 (1921-1981). Dr. Hutchinson founded the Areawide Council on Aging in 1972 and served as its Director until her death this winter in Fort Lauderdale. It was the first Council of its kind in Florida. Through her position as director and her constant efforts on behalf of the aging, she gained local and national prominence. She appeared on national and local radio and television programs, testified before the Congress on senior citizen's issues, and served on several national boards. Recently, she was appointed to a technical committee on the media for the White House Conference on Aging for 1981. She also served as Dean of Girls at Fort Lauderdale High School and Dean of Women at Broward Community College and Florida Atlantic University.

The Broward County Commission held a ceremony in May at which a plaque in her honor was installed in the Broward County Courthouse.

Geraldine Robinson, M.S., 1979 (1946-1980). Ms. Robinson was a teacher with the Marion County School District in Ocala, Florida until her death in May of 1980, a victim of a homicide. Ms. Robinson has been interred in Ocala, where she had made her home.

Donald E. Wharton, Ed.D., 1979 (1921-1980). Dr. Wharton was a member of the Alumni Association in Chicago.

A tree has been planted for each of the above Nova University alumni, in their honor, on the campus in Fort Lauderdale. Each tree will bear a marker commemorating the graduate.

Clementine Skinner, Ed.D. '76; Donald A. Newberg, Ed.D. '76, and Regional Coordinator; Thomas Gluntz, CPA, Resource Leader at the Alumni Tax Seminar in Chicago.

Honors And Awards Region I

Melvin A. Johnson, Ed.D., 1979, was recently honored by Region 19 Vocational Schools in Orange County when he received the "Outstanding Vocational Educator Award" for 1981, at a banquet held in Altamonte Springs, Florida. Dr. Johnson has also been nominated by Region 19 for the Florida FVA Outstanding Educator, which will be presented at the FVA Conference in August, 1981.

Betty Holmes Thompson, M.S., 1979, was named "Teacher of the Year," in Pinellas County by a committee of teachers and administrators in the Pinellas County School System. This makes Ms. Thompson eligible to become "Teacher of the Year" candidate in the state competition later this year. Ms. Thompson is a member of the faculty at Madeira Beach Elementary School, and has been in the teaching profession for eighteen years.

Region III

Leonard Smith, Ed.D., 1975, Immediate Past-President of Phi Delta Kappa in Long Island, reported that Dr. Alexander Schure, President of NYIT and Chancellor of Nova University, recently was involved in two dynamic interactions with the Long Island Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, when, as an invited guest, he gave a talk on "New Technology in Higher Education" when the Chapter met on the NYIT campus. This was followed by a tour of some of the laboratories on the NYIT campus. In appreciation, Phi Delta Kappa awarded their Certificate of Recognition to Dr. Schure, which was given "in acknowledgement of distinguished service to education, and in appreciation of his leadership in relating the aims, purpose and objectives of Phi Delta Kappa to public education."

Region IV

Major Armstead, Jr., Ed.D., 1976, has been honored by the Phi Delta Kappa chapter at Northeastern Illinois University as "Educator of the Year" for 1981, along with eight other outstanding educators in that area. In an article in the Chicago Tribune, it was announced that Dr. Armstead had also been honored by the Citizens Schools Committee by presenting him with the 1981 Outstanding Principals Award. Dr. Armstead is principal of Foreman High School in Chicago.

Region VI

William Yamada, Ed.D., 1980, automotive mechanics instructor at Honolulu Community College and certified by the nationally recognized National Institute of Automotive Service Excellence, has been named a member of the Customer Arbitration Board, opening under Federal Trade Commission guidelines, by the Chrysler Corporation which has established the board in Honolulu.

This board will be one of 55 to be established nationally that will provide owners of Chrysler products the opportunity to appeal Warranty disputes, free of charge.

Alumni Represent Nova

Harold L. Daniel, Ph.D., 1978, served as representative of Nova University when Dr. David L. Jester was inaugurated as the ninth President of the Wayland Baptist College, and the first President of the Wayland Baptist University in Plainview, Texas, on the first of May. Dr. Daniel is Resource Developer with the Panhandle Health Systems Agency in Texas.

Paul T. Harakal, Ed.D., 1976, represented Nova University at the inauguration of Dennis D. Bell as the tenth president of East Stroudsburg State College, Pennsylvania, on April 25.

Dear Graduate:

We are pleased to report that the Alumni Association is taking giant steps forward in terms of chapter structure and program direction.

More and more of our graduates are recognizing the value of associating with alumni from other programs, and chapters are becoming Nova oriented rather than program oriented. We believe that this change will create a much stronger, more dynamic organization and we are delighted to see it evolve.

The Alumni Tax Seminar in Chicago was a great success. The Alumni "Public Policy" Seminar in Washington, D.C. was superb and met all the criteria for continuing, quality education.

On the social scene, there will be two events to look forward to. First, there will be the Commencement Dinner Dance at Pier 66 in Fort Lauderdale on Saturday, July 25, 1981 when, in addition to celebrating with the 1981 graduates, we shall honor the anniversary classes of 1971 (10th year) and 1976 (5th year) graduates. Second, there will be the Third Nova University Alumni/Community Dinner Dance in February, 1982.

I look forward to seeing you at these and other events in the near future.

Sincerely,

Van Steinhilp
