

5-1-2014

Untitled

Rachel Morton
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Photography Commons

Recommended Citation

Morton, Rachel (2014) "Untitled," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 20 , Article 30.
Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol20/iss1/30

This Photograph is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

“Dream, dream, dream!
Dreams that spiral in my head,
Will they ever come true?”

*Grenades like meteors fall through the midnight sky Fire and light are dancing at the edge between heaven and the dark-shadowed side.
I am lying in a narrow trench staring into the endless canopy upon high In the pungent odor of gunpowder memories like illusions with my heart fly.
Whose hairs are as soft as the silks dyed by the brightest gold reflected by the warmest sunshine Whose voice is as beautiful as the melody sung by the most marvelous bird that can bring me light My love, whose life exists in a far-away land will I still have a chance to see her gentle eyes?
The sound of bugles ring on the battlefield waking the tired soldiers with their dreams still in mind Who would have ever known the next one running toward the end of his life If I were also on the list of death please bring back my soul to the verdant land of my lovely home to the sweet dream belonging to my dear wife The sound of explosion thunders in the air shaking the ground with the yell of people in fight*

*In where the crimson dances with smoke and dirt
I see my dream Swaying in the deep midnight sky*

*Cold wind shakes withered leaves meandering down the lifeless street.
Feeling chilly air takes away my body heat*

I lower my head Letting the endless hunger and tiredness greedily swallow my conscious mind Until snow flowers like fairies jump onto my palm Surprise flows through my face Memories stream slowly, passing by my ordinary dream.

*Winter never became chilly in the South
My brother and I stood in the back yard Gazing as leaves spiraled off the Phoenix tree
"How amazing would it be to be snowy!"*

"Sister, have you ever seen snow?"

"Me? Yes, when I was at an age younger than you..."

"What did it look like, and how did it taste?"

"It looked like ice cream everywhere and tasted so sweet..."

"Just like the description in the fairy tale we read."

"Wow, I wish I could also see a snowy day!"

"Sure, you will."

*I rise up my head
Thousands of little fairies wearing their white dresses pirouette in the mid-January sky Tears like shining pieces of glass drop from my face Snow blankets the vast earth Accumulating on the baked-clay roofs and bare branches Covering all the murky crimes with a pure virgin white*