

Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine

Volume 20 Triptych Article 45

5-1-2014

Intimate Stranger

Anonymous

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Anonymous (2014) "Intimate Stranger," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 20, Article 45. Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol20/iss1/45

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Intimate Stranger

Anonymous Photo: Sunny Xu

It's been six years and I still don't know you,

And with each year I feel your vessel move further from shore.

I still hear your voice saying my name as if it's the first I have ever heard.

I can visualize your hands,

Large palms with convex veins running up your firm bicep.

Your gentle gray eyes seem weary to me now.

I seldom see them, but when they meet my own the encounter is brief.

I made up so much of your life to sooth the gaps in my memory and feign intimacy.

I am deliriously curious about you with little cause or right. It is true that no one's scripture will ever appear as effortlessly meticulous as yours,

No one's smile will have an angle as puzzling to mathematicians as your own,

And no one will see every street you have seen.

One day none of your details will matter.

One day I'll forget all of it.

One day I'll meet someone who will make me remember something about you.

Your unforgiving sarcasm or the way you exude passion. Something I will love him for.

And I will thank you for teaching me to see it in another person.