

5-1-2014

Untitled

Giula di Stravola
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Fiction Commons

Recommended Citation

di Stravola, Giula (2014) "Untitled," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 20 , Article 48.
Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol20/iss1/48

This Short Story is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Untitled

GIULIA DI STRAVOLA

PHOTO: ALYSSA BONCHICK

“Welcome to the Machine” accompanied me as my legs involuntarily began to move forward towards the mound of shadows. My body began to melt as I stretched my legs and felt the suede texture hold me. My racing heart caused me to take deeper breaths, and so I closed my eyes. I began to feel a storm underneath my skin roaring as his body innocently lay there beside mine. It was painted vividly: the calm seas colored by a turbulent storm. I don’t think my legs would’ve been able to leave him, even if I wanted to. I placed my body upon this chair. My heart was now in my head and every pulse was felt, throbbing and puncturing my every inch. It was the aftermath of a party; I was able to find this dark room stuffed with these big, comforting chairs that would smoothly recline with a press of a button. The Rolling Stones were now playing in the background as this magnificent chair held me while his pungent odor embraced me with every involuntary jolt. I began to fall under a spell of my ticking heart, I began to match my breathing to his, and my body suddenly began to follow the rhythm of the calming seas. A sharp light illuminated a slice of the room. “Let’s leave.”