

5-1-2014

Daybroke

Ionic Bond
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool\_litmag

Part of the Fiction Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Bond, Ionic (2014) "Daybroke," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 20 , Article 51.
Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool\_litmag/vol20/iss1/51

This Short Story is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Daybroke

Ionic Bond

Once upon a time in a land far too close to home lived a young boy with more potential than physics could ever predict. He was fast, strong, smart, and everything else a boy should be. Every morning, he woke up just before the crack of dawn to see the sun rise twice: once in the sky and once on the sea.

He woke up early to think about what he was, what he could be. With all the time everybody else had, and then some, he could become faster, stronger, smarter, and better at everything else a boy should be. He was nine. For a minute or two, he closed his eyes and daydreamed a dream he could never fulfill, but he tried and tried for the rest of the afternoon. In the dream his fingers caught the sun in the exact way his head couldn't catch his ambition.

He swam to the waves where the four o'clock sun glistened in the water but didn't catch the sun as it set twice: once in the sky and once on the sea.