

5-1-2015

When Desolate

Jack Davidson

Nova Southeastern University

Follow this and additional works at: http://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

 Part of the Photography Commons

Recommended Citation

Davidson, Jack (2015) "When Desolate," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 21, Article 15.
Available at: http://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol21/iss1/15

This Photograph is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized administrator of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Supernova Sonnet

Brianna Gonzalez

Tucked in a corner of galaxy dust,
A giant star takes a shuddering breath.
Its surface has turned the color of rust,
A color all stars do when they near their death.

The outer layer – hydrogen – is gone,
Helium hisses as it burns away.
Silicon, oxygen, carbon, neon,
They all burn off, but iron, cold and gray.

Gravity pushes in, the star fights back,
The surface flickers like cigarette butts.
Abruptly it's over, the star turns black,
And paints the night with all its vivid guts.

But even in death the star still burns
bright
And the gas is a home for newborn light.