Foreword to the Special Issue Ask Errol! Or Try This!

Michael Simonson

Some ideas and suggestions are worth repeating. The editors of Distance Learning understand this, and have decided for the next three issues of the journal to republish the best articles by our three columnists. This issue features the work of Errol Craig Sull, author of the “Try This” and “Ask Errol!” columns. The next issue will feature “Ends and Means” columns by Natalie Milman, and Volume 12, Issue 1, will feature reprints from my “And Finally” column. These three special issues can be used as guides for practice or workshop handouts. We hope that our readers will be able to use these collections of columns as ready references for effective practices of distance education.
