

1-1-2015

In Training: The Life Of A Marine Biologist

Rebecca Quinlan
Nova Southeastern University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions>

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Quinlan, Rebecca (2015) "In Training: The Life Of A Marine Biologist," Digressions Literary Magazine: Vol. 12 , Article 19.

Available at: <https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions/vol12/iss1/19>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the CAHSS Journals at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Digressions Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

In Training: The Life of a Marine Biologist

Rebecca Quinlan

Salt in the air & fins on my feet,
There is nothing as sweet as a day spent at sea.

Wind on my face & sun in my hair,
Clear skies and a sea of glass; no conditions could possibly compare.

Sunglasses on & ready with a smile,
We plan to be at sea for a while.

Rash guard on & ready to float,
I slide myself off the side of the boat.

Face in the water & fins kicking along,
The life in the water calls to me like a siren's song.

Ears equalized & mask snug on my face,
My descent to the deep begins the never ending chase.

One breath in my lungs & my hair in a braid,
To the bottom I slip, my welcome never over-stayed.