

January 2018

Unseen

Kirsten Russel
Nova Southeastern University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions>

Part of the Art and Design Commons, and the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Russel, Kirsten (2018) "Unseen," Digressions Literary Magazine: Vol. 14 , Article 9.
Available at: <https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions/vol14/iss1/9>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the CAHSS Journals at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Digressions Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Why is God's beauty only visible
When the sky is painted with strips of magenta
Streaked with a hint of cerulean
Splattered with gold, amber, and crimson

Why is God's beauty only valued
While standing atop a mountain
Or peering about the meadows
Or gazing upon the waters

Why is God's beauty only treasured
Because she has striking emerald eyes
And fiery red hair
And pearly white teeth

But wise is one who grasps His beauty
Amidst the darkest of hours
Captivated by the luminescence of the moon
Astonished by the glimmer of the atmosphere

Wise is one who sees beyond His creation
And dives deep into His Word
For sometimes the best things in life
Are the ones unseen

Like her contagious laugh
Her compassion, her selflessness
Her ability to see the decent
Among a world of evil

Her silent power of lighting up a room
With her generosity, her gratitude
And her radiating warmth
Among a world of coldness

Blessed is one who thanks God
For the things unseen
One who sees beauty blindly
Among a world in need