The Ocean

Brooks Rogow

On top of the ocean it is very deceiving.
To understand the ocean you have to go beneath it,
On top it is just a lot of water.

The underwater world is massive.
It stretches across thousands of miles
And has mountains bigger than the Himalayas.

Every animal is special
They all have their own jobs, and their colors are extraordinary.

Underwater there are no restraints.
You have an endless world in which to float freely.

During the day it is beautiful;
At night it is even better.

At night you get a true feel of freedom.
Glowing bioluminescence makes the dark water seem
Like space with billions of stars.

Every time you move, the bioluminescence sparkles around you.
You could stay here forever.

The ocean is wonderful!
