

5-1-2002

A Mother Goose Lesson on Change

Sara Gusky
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Gusky, Sara (2002) "A Mother Goose Lesson on Change," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 9 , Article 38.

Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol9/iss1/38

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

A Mother Goose Lesson on Change

Sara Gusky

A greedy boy once tried to find
The reason he had lost his mind
He had found and lost his success in a day
But did not attempt to try a new way
He hoped and he wished it would magically return
But the little boy refused to learn
That situations change at the drop of a dime
But he was unwilling to give up the time
To figure out what he needed to do
How to forget the old and look for the new.
Too stubborn to accept this change in his life,
The little boy suffered on through his strife.
But finally, one day, he stood up and gave in,
He was determined to find success once again
At last he would take action and rise to his feet,
He would work long and hard, despite any defeat.
Soon he had reached success as he hoped,
But it was different this time; he would know how to cope
If any change were to cross his path,
He would simply slow down and review the math.
Therefore, we all should be modest and wise
We should react to change rationally to prevent our demise.