

5-1-2003

Life Goes On

Dana Perkins
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Perkins, Dana (2003) "Life Goes On," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 10 , Article 83.
Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol10/iss1/83

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Life Goes On

Dana Perkins

Life has its tragedies,
And moving on seems impossible.
Closing the door on life feels like the best option,
You don't think anything else is plausible.
While no one can understand,
It is best to endure the pain alone.
Though for you the world might have stopped,
For others it has not.

Those close to you can't stand seeing you like this,
They try everything in their power to help.
Acknowledging that they care for you and want to help,
But knowing you are the only one who can do so.
You know that eventually you have to move on,
But for right now being alone and depressed is what feels best.
It is not fair that this had to happen,
But it did, and you have to just accept it.

Should you just roll up and die?
What about the others?
Can you really be this selfish?
No, life goes on.