

5-1-2007

Acceptance

Megan Seely
NSU University School

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Seely, Megan (2007) "Acceptance," Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine: Vol. 14 , Article 73.
Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/uschool_litmag/vol14/iss1/73

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by the University School at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hieroglyphics: the NSU University School Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.

Acceptance

Megan Seely

Everyone is different.

Some people love red,
Others despise it.
Some people dance in the rain,
Others can't stand it.
Some people see the truth,
Others refuse to believe it.

Some people want to be president,
Others want to play guitar.
But a dream is a dream is a dream,
And all dreams are the same.

Some people can walk on water,
Others can't walk at all.
Some people can hear sweet, sweet music,
Others can't hear at all.
Some people can smell the faintest hint of dew
on the meadow,
Others can't smell the strongest odor or even smell at all.

Some people close their eyes when they feel utterly alone,
Others double two's or sing a song until they are comforted.
But a way is a way is a way,
And all ways are the same.

The only difference between the prince and the pauper
Is the crown on top of his head.
For the prince remains envious of the pauper,
Whose crown stands mountains higher.
Many ignorant beings believe the king is so much greater,
For they refuse to see the crown that lies modestly atop the pauper.

It takes only a moment
To turn off the light
And see that we are all the same.
The only thing that keeps us from acceptance,
Is our own insecurity.
For deep down inside we know,
That a person is a person is a person.

And the fact that everyone is different makes us
all the same.