“We invite you to explore and discover NSUWorks, a repository for NSU research, scholarship, and creative output.”

Lydia M. Acosta
Vice President For Information Resources and University Librarian

“NSUWorks has proven to be an outstanding method to not only consolidate the scholarly works of NSU faculty and researchers, but to also provide an excellent avenue for increased outreach about NSU productivity and access to information for the university community, academics everywhere, and the community at large. I highly recommend it.”

Dr. Richard E. Dodge
Professor and Dean, NSU Oceanographic Center and Executive Director, National Coral Reef Institute

“NSUWorks is great for our scholarly journal because its simple to use interface makes it easy for my authors, reviewers, and editors to submit and monitor their work products and its accessibility means more readers will find the articles we publish.”

Dr. Ronald J. Chenail
Associate Provost, Division of Applied Interdisciplinary Studies and Editor, The Qualitative Report

ARCHIVE
your scholarly and creative work

DISSEMINATE
to the world and increase exposure

DEMONSTRATE
impact with monthly usage statistics

HOST
a journal or conference with built in publishing tools

http://nsuworks.nova.edu

Contact:
Nova Southeastern University
Archives and Digital Librarian
nsuworks@nova.edu
954.262.4635

NSUWorks
A central repository for NSU research, scholarship and creative output

http://nsuworks.nova.edu

NSU Libraries
Nova Southeastern University
3100 Ray Ferrero, Jr., Blvd.
Ft. Lauderdale, Florida 33314
NSUWorks is a new service offered free to faculty by the Nova Southeastern University Libraries. It brings together all of the university’s research, scholarly and creative works in a centralized location with the aim of preserving and providing online open access to these works.

1. Centralizing your research benefits you

Your research will:

- Be more visible and accessible worldwide
- Have greater impact and higher citation rates
- Have permanent URLs for easy sharing

You will be able to:

- Maintain your intellectual property rights
- Access download and readership statistics
- Go beyond traditional publications to include datasets, gray literature, working papers, educational materials, open access textbooks, and audio and visual materials

2. Here’s how to get started

Send your resume or CV to: nsuworks@nova.edu

After we receive your documents, we will review your research for copyright compliance and work with you to upload permissible versions of published scholarship to the repository. That’s it!

3. And, there’s much more...

- The opportunity to migrate an existing journal or conference to NSUWorks
- Start a new journal, conference, or symposium to take advantage of:
  - Editorial management tools
  - Built in peer review
  - Customized designs
  - Training and support

NSUWorks is a product of the Nova Southeastern University Libraries. Research, scholarly and creative works included in this institutional repository have been authored and accepted by NSU’s individual colleges, schools, centers and administrative departments. Online access is provided to both printed and unpublished works by the NSU community. This includes journal articles, books, theses, dissertations, reports, conference proceedings, multimedia collections, and a wide variety of other materials. Contributions of scholarship works to this repository ensures long-term preservation and worldwide electronic accessibility. For more information, contact libraryadmin@nsu.edu.