The Reprimand

The closed S.G.A. meeting on Thursday, September 12, 1985 violated the constitution. According to the constitution (part 5:01, (F)), “All Senate meetings shall be open to the student body. This provision shall apply to all Senate committees and subcommittees.”

Several actions have been taken since the day of that meeting. The S.J.C. (The Student Judicial Council) reprimanded the S.G.A. President, Robert Lamelas. Robert was told that if any closed meeting was held again, impeachment proceedings could possibly begin. Many students weren’t satisfied with the S.J.C.’s reprimand, because it was orally given. The S.J.C. wrote a letter regarding the reprimand and sent it to The Nova Knight.

Robert Lamelas was interviewed regarding the closed meeting and the reprimand. During the interview, he brought out some interesting facts. He stated that the meeting was only a session to reprimand his officers and to make them fully aware of their responsibilities. During the meeting personal information such as telephone numbers and addresses of the officers were given. Robert pointed out that a President should have the right to call his staff together at any time he feels there is a necessity. The constitution of the school does not make provisions for this whereas the U.S. Constitution does. Our school constitution is in essence contradictory to the document that governs the United States.

Mr. Lamelas felt that the entire matter regarding the closed meeting was being taken out of hand. When the S.G.A. does something good, nobody recognizes it; but as soon as the S.G.A. makes one slip-up everyone wants to capitalize on it.

The S.J.C. acknowledges that the Constitution needs some revision. They want the entire S.J.C., S.G.A. and members of the student body to come together to work it out.

The reprimand was given and

National Conference For College Women Student Leaders And Women Of Achievement

On November 1 at 4:00 a.m., eight excited women leaders of Nova College boarded Presidential Airlines, flight 139, destination Washington, D.C. The purpose of the women flew North at that ungodly hour was to arrive in Washington in time to attend The National Conference for Women Student Leaders in Chevy Chase, Virginia. The Conference was to last three days. During those three days the women were involved in panel discussions, career advancement lectures, seminars concerning leadership dynamics, organizational politics and public affairs and communication meetings to name just a few.

The conference opened with a reception at the Capital Building in Washington, D.C., where recognized women of achievement were honored.

On the second day, after breakfast, the women attended a panel discussion with the focus on: Student Leaders, Past, Present and Future. I believe this panel discussion was the best activity in the Conference. Four selected women spoke to us concerning women’s rights, in the U.S., during the time period in which they attended college. One woman spoke of women’s rights in the 1950’s, another spoke about women’s rights in the 1960’s, a different woman who spoke with wonderful humor and zest for the college life and women’s rights, discussed the 1970’s, and the last woman spoke of her years in college as a woman in the early 1980’s.

After the panel discussion’s question/answer period was completed, the Nova women split into groups and attended seminars for the rest of the day.

Sunday morning after breakfast, there was a panel discussion on “Ethics, Value and Health” as

No Student Union Centre?

The students of Nova College want a student union centre built. Why isn’t one built yet? Various possibilities exist. Some are: Administrators can’t afford to build the centre; the students won’t control themselves and will not keep it clean; or the administrators are avoiding the issue. The student body should work together to see that their request is acknowledged and carried out.

The S.G.A. initially began working on the project of a student union centre. Two officers, Eddie Artaus and Robert Lamelas, confronted Dr. Deturk about their project in spring of ’85. Elaborate architectural plans were created. The building was to be built by the 1985-86 school year. Dr. Deturk designated $40,000 to cover construction costs. Unfortunately, the building of the union centre did not take place. President Fischler had other priorities to spend the money on. The student body of Nova University has taken defeat with no qualms or objections. The union centre is for them. The architectural plans for the building are now in Daniel Sullivan’s office collecting dust.

The union centre has a purpose besides being a place where all of the clubs and organizations meet, it is a place for the students to enjoy leisure activities.

Movie Review
Of Faculty Film Festival:
Dr. Strangelove

Made in 1963
The film showed by Dr. Hom on November 12 introduced the concept of a human erred first-strike. To students unfamiliar with Peter Sellers, the film gave three of the dead actor's classic roles: a moustached RAF Group Captain, a bald President of the USA, and the title role who is confined to a wheelchair and confined by a Deutsche accent and a fascist right arm.

I figure it's a good idea for a peacenik to get introduced to a film that bears the subtitle of "How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb." The Green Party of West Germany and the BAN THE BOMB movement both find this film treacherously funny and amusingly terrifying. Anyone who hasn't seen this classic farce missed the following great scenes and memorable lines:
1. Slim Pickens riding with bomb down, waving his Stetson.
2. "Gentlemen, you can't fight in here! This is the War Room."
3. "Clémentead said that war is too important to be left to the generals. Well, today it's too important to leave to the politicians. They have neither the training, time, or the inclination to strategic thought."
4. Reason given for starting the strike: "I've heard enough about the communist subversion and international communist conspiracy to sap and impurify our precious body fluids." (Fluoridation is a commie plot.)
5. Dr. Strangelove's proposal to "preserve human specimens in mine shafts." Sounds suspiciously Aryan, eh? "It would not be difficult, Mein Fuhrer! Animals could be bred — and SLAUGHTERED! Several hundred thousand would be selected by computers using factors like sexual fertility, intelligence, and so forth. Naturally, they would breed prodigiously — there would be much time and little to do..."
6. The paranoid general who blamed fluoridated water on the communists also forbade use of transistor radios since "They might be used to issue contradictory orders." The radios might also provide information which the general might not want the soldiers to hear — such dishear-

George C. Scott gives a gravely interpretation to "I think we ought to look at this from the military point of view."

In short, let's avoid making actors into presidents and let's remember what Clémentead said and hold onto that transistor radio.

ALBUM REVIEWS

Aerosmith

Done With Mirrors

In the song "The Hop" from the new Aerosmith album DONE WITH MIRRORS, lead singer Steven Tyler yells "You'll be kicking ass tonight with the boys in Aerosmith!" Unfortunately, the only way you'll be kicking ass with Aerosmith is to pull out one of their old albums such as TOYS IN THE ATTIC or DREAM ON, because DONE WITH MIRRORS is far too mediocre.

The first problem with the album is that everything is backwards (hence the title). But I mean everything is backwards: jacket, sleeve, labels, everything. When you're trying to read the credits of a band that has not 'really' been together since 1979's disastrous NIGHT IN THE RUTS, trying to read the credits backwards is a real hassle. Face it, it's not as cute as seeing Bloom County backwards on a Sunday morning.

Another flaw is that the album is more a regression than a resurrection. Sadly, it echoes NIGHT IN THE RUTS, the type of material that broke them up, rather than the ROCKS type material of their heyday. How is this for regression, the albums first single, "Let The Music Do The Talking", was the first solo album and single for the Joe Perry Project in 1980.

The album is not devoid of redeeming values. The single does rock, even if it is old. The album features Tyler's exceptional wisdom ("The reason a dog has so many friends is 'cause he wags his tail instead of his tongue")! And when Tyler finally drags out his harmonica for "The Hop", he does whip the boys into shape. Unfortunately, 2 or 3 reasons out of eight songs is not enough to save this album. The only conclusion one can draw is that they are back together because they couldn't make any money apart. So much for a few more heroes of my long hair days.

POSTSCRIPT: You may have noticed I loved the movie "Spinal Tap" (they've been in virtually every crossword puzzle). Well, the reason is that I loved Aerosmith in my High School Daze, and every time I see "Spinal Tap" it reminds me of Aerosmith and more...more. Sorry, we all have our flashbacks from time to time.

Astra

What's going on here, resurrect dead bands week? The way I read it, here is the saga of the eighties first super group.

Their debut album in 1982 topped the charts and had multiplatinum success. Well, it deserved it, it was brilliant. Their second album, ALPHA, moved the already too pop band into bubble gum territory. The main reason for that was Steve Howe and Carl Palmer left most of the writing chores up to John Wetton and Geoff Downes, two lesser musicians. Though ALPHA cracked the top twenty, it fizzled rapidly. Well, it deserved it, it sucked wind.

Steve Howe knew it was bad. Out went Wetton and in came ex-E.L.P. member Greg Lake, who sounded just like Wetton anyway. Asia did a debut concert with Lake live on M.T.V. and world-wide radio. Lake simply could not handle Wetton's parts, and the result was a total embarrassment.

Out went Lake. Out went Howe. In came Wetton and new drummer Mandy Meyer. With Howe gone and Palmer helping pen only two tracks, Wetton and Downes make ASTRA continue the ALPHA bubblegum tradition. Perhaps slightly more rockked out, but fairly mindless-pop nonetheless. With 2/3rds of Asia's releases not much more than over produced dribble, I'm fairly safe in saying they are now, a more 'pop' than 'super' group. Will the slaughter of my heroes never end?

Simple Minds

Once Upon A Time

The bands first release since their number one "Breakfast Club" single "Don't You (See About Me)" finds Simple Minds in excellent form. Jim Kerr and the band have made an album of exceptionally powerful music. ONCE UPON A TIME grooves from the opening title track to the closer "Come A Long Way", and at all points in between. If ONCE UPON A TIME and the albums first single "Alive and Kicking" do not both reach the upper top ten by November's end, I will be utterly amazed.

BOOK REVIEW

HORSE'S NECK

By Pete Townshend

As one reads Pete Townshend's first book, HORSE'S NECK, one can never be sure if Pete is writing about himself, an alter ego, or a fictional character. There are several Petes in the book; one is a guitarist, another a singer. There are several alcoholics in the book, all in various stages of the disease (Townshend is a recovering alcoholic). There are many other times in the book when we are not sure if these are true life experiences or fantasies spawned in the imagination of one of Rock's most literate members. At either level, HORSE'S NECK is an insightful journey into the tormented mind of a brilliant songwriter, recovering alcoholic and confused person. Perhaps I am reading too much into HORSE'S NECK. As Pete himself says at the end of a chapter entitled "Horses": "Nothing has anything to do with you or me."

HORSE'S NECK (the name of a mixed drink), is more a collection of short stories than a complete novel. The stories are totally unrelated to one another on the surface. At a deeper level we can make many connections about their meaning. Townshend claims, "Each story deals with one aspect of my struggle to discover what beauty really is." HORSE'S NECK is beautiful, but it is also painful and shocking at times, making it more endearing. In a segment on the assassination of John Lennon, Pete makes an observation only a star of his magnitude could; "Their words are ignored even while they are being cherished." Many other insights and observations help make HORSE'S NECK an "Amazing Journey" in its own right.

Ari's Hideaway

Saludos my daahlings and welcome to the Hideaway. Today I would like to talk about that maahvelous looking royal couple Prince Charles and Lady Diane. To Armando it seems like a maahvelous life to be a prince, all you have to do is sleep with the prince; who looks like Bella Lugosi on Valium, and to make royal babies. You know that Diane must be a very unhappy girl though, she always has a sour face. Perhaps she doesn't like being Royal "Baby-maker". Unlike traditional princesses, Di is very contemporary. This means that she enjoys modern music and also enjoys to dance. Armando would love to dance the mambo with Diane, but I think she would rather dance with John Travolta. You know he looks Italianish.

Since the Royal couple are visiting the United States Armando feels that everyone should welcome our British friends. Just Cursedly absent) used its powers to confront the S.G.A. problems. They came down hard. The General Representative was impeached for job irresponsibility and the S.G.A. Treasurer was also rebuked for "not maintaining Section 4.02, D., #2, 4, & 5, of the Student Government Constitution; 'responsibilities of each Senator — The treasurer shall."'

The Treasurer has been "put on probation as a result of a Senate complaint, and thus has 10 days to fulfill the work required...or face the consequences of 7.03.A, #1., 'Removal through impeachment'."

The S.J.C. has proven it is strong and willing to enforce the Constitution. As previously thought, they are not dormant. Their actions have shown their (minus one) dedication to the elected posts. The only question which remains is if they will continue the fine job or if they are simply "showing off" before elections. The question can only be answered by them.

concerned specifically with how the definitions of the three words affect women in the 1980's.

The post-lunch time-slot held the enlightening closing ceremony; after which the Florida women headed for the airport.

On a more relaxed note of the trip, the Nova women went sightseeing around Washington, D.C. all day Friday and Saturday. All the convention participants made new friends among the other 300 Women Student Leader's who also attended the conference.

Postscript: I would like to add that the Women Student Leader's Conference was an extremely gratifying experience. Besides having fun, and meeting girls from all over the U.S. that were interested in a lot of the same things as I, I also learned how to become an effective student leader. The panel discussions and seminars offered an invaluable amount of information on how to organize student leader groups, and how to get them running effectively. I also learned how important it is to stand up for my rights as a woman in the 1980's. As Kate Rand Lloyd, Editor at large for The Working Woman Magazine stated, "If women all over the world don't stand up for their rights, and make their demands as equal beings heard, then no one else will do it for them!!!"

No Student Union Centre?

The students asked the administration for the use of an unoccupied donated house. The administration replied no, because the house was located in a residential neighborhood. Since that time the house has been sold for a profitable price. If the administration would use the proceeds, from the house, on a student union centre, construction might begin.

Dr. Deturk suggested that the students form a committee for the student union centre project. He feels the student body can help raise some money for the centre. The student's interest in the project would be clearly defined. A sum between $30,000-$40,000 could be raised if the students really tried. The students would have a greater chance of getting the school to give money because of their efforts. Several students and faculty disagree with Dr. Deturk's ideas. The students feel that they pay enough money in tuition and fees. The building of a student union centre is a project for the administration. It is not the students job to raise money for the school, because the school already receives contributions from distinguishable figures in the community. They money should come from that source.

The tidiness of the student lounge could pose a problem for the students. The administrators could say that if the students can't even keep a small room in order, how can they keep an entire building in order. The argument is strong. The students should act in a manners fashion towards the lounge. In simpler terms they could keep the lounge clean. The lounge looks as though it were a breeding bin for pigs, not a place used by college students.

The existence of no student union centre is a problem. The problem should be addressed formally and fast. The student body as a whole should come together as a whole and form a committee that represents the opinions of the entire student body. The committee should address the administration as to what they want done. Rome wasn't built in a day and the student union centre can't be built in one, but the centre will be built much faster if work would start soon.

think, you too can shop at J.C. Penney like the Lady Di. How much money do you think J.C. Penney paid poor bleeding England for their visit? England's new pastime is bleacher sports; you sit in the stands of a soccer game, and then light fire to yourself. Another fun variation of this is called "Trample me to death you English fellow".

But don't get the wrong idea, Amando sympathizes with any country that is suffering a severe economic depression. After all who cares if half of England is broke, Diane needs a new dress. And you people should know it is better to look good than to feed your Country. When Diane and Charles go on a million dollar a day shopping spree, everyone in England is included. Before you know it everyone in England will be turning a deep red color from the American sun. By the way those English look so silly with a tan, but it's so easy to spot a British person at the beach. All you have to look for are people that wear socks with their beach thongs. Their socks are usually brown, but maybe there's a scientific explanation for that.

Speaking of science Amando wonders what the Royal family's sex life is like. Of course Amando doesn't mean to get personal, but looking at Charles he seems to me to be the kinky type. You know like maybe he likes to play games. He used to have a butler live with him at all times, now Charles is all alone. His butler wrote a book about this fact. Perhaps Charles' favorite game is called, Mommy, "mommy I want to be the King, so die already". Diane likes to play this game too. Of course Diane's version goes, "If your mother lives much longer, Charles, I'll become celibant." But again Amando must say goodbye until next week, so remember it is better to look good than to feel good.....
