University School Honors Top 8th Graders

Six eighth grade students of the University School were honored for their scholarship and leadership ability at a banquet held May 22 at the school.

The students will all receive a $750 per year scholarship for each of the remaining four years at the University School.

The students are: William Blattner, Sonia Howman, Stella Spalter and Homee Meier, all of Hollywood; Kathy Spalter of Pembroke Pines, and William Woodrow of Plantation.

Chris Is Going The Distance

Thirteen year old Christopher Marino of Hollywood, the eighth grader who is the first in the history of the University School of Nova University to qualify for the state track meet, “definitely will be Olympic material if he keeps this up for four more years,” according to his coach, Jim Kenneworth.

“The amazing thing is that Chris just started running last year, and then he couldn’t run a quarter of a mile without losing his breath,” says Almored. “And now, in just a year’s time, he does two miles in 11 minutes, making him one of the best eighth graders in the entire country, in long distance.

“For some, these are things that are so easy he says nothing but winning,” Chris received the school’s ‘Most Valuable Player’ award in track this year.

Toma Goes To School

Toma, the New Jersey police officer who inspired the television series “Barney” and “Toma,” and will soon star in a movie about his life as an undercover narcotics agent, came to the University School last month to warn students of the dangers of drugs. His audience — 6th through 12th graders in the morning and parents at night — were mesmerized by his dynamic presentation.

Eventually, possibly within a year, a new building will be constructed near the existing Mailman Hall on the Pastoral of the University of Miami. The new center will be connected to the Childhood Building by an underground passage.

The Center will comprise six units:

- The Developmental Clinic providing diagnosis, treatment and an educational and consulting program for children and their families.
- The Infant-Toddler Unit providing care and support for parents and children participating in infant play groups in early learning programs.
- The Ring Card, a group program for family experienced children. It is included in this unit.
- The Public Service Unit, providing services in-house, locally and nationally.
- Nova Wives Elect Officers

At the final luncheon-meeting of the year, the Nova Wives elected a new slate of officers, with a ceremony and gift to Dr. Fischer to benefit the library fund. The new officers are: Novi Eschar, president; Florence Haeger, vice-president; Winifred Kingsley, secretary.
