"Campus Rape" Gets Response
By Wendy Myers

On Tuesday, September 17, 1990, Alvenice Swain, RA, and Kim Glazer, Head RA, showed the film, "Campus Rape," sponsored by the Residential Life Department. The videotape was provided by Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center as part of a national campaign to educate students on the problem of campus rape, and the ways in which it could be eliminated.

Nine people showed up for the film, including the RAs. According to Swain, "it was a great videotape and I wish that more people would have come." The film was part of a plan to provide two educational programs per semester. The second one for this semester is tentatively planned to be one on general campus safety.

According to the film, college students are very vulnerable to rape, due in part to the open, active environment in which they live. Another factor involved in the campus rape epidemic is the large amount of alcohol college students consume. "I want people to realize that most acquaintance rapes are alcohol-related. You don't necessarily have to have planned to rape somebody, but the alcohol takes control," commented Swain.

The issue of what rape is and what can be done about it can sometimes become clouded in opinion. Here are several students' views on the subject:

- "Anytime a girl is not in full control and does not give full, sober consent, that is rape."
- "A forcible sexual aggression."
- "An act of violence and aggression against one's personal values."
- "Anytime a girl is raped it is a travesty. Unfortunately, especially at universities, it is a fact that we all must deal with. Like any other touchy subject such as this, the most we can do is educate our students and hope for their welfare."
- "Date rape is forced sexual interactions between two people with a defined relationship, whether they be male/male, female/female, or female/male, when one person, the resistor, is in objection to the aggressor's sexual advances; however, the aggressor persists against the resistor's will."
- "Guys have to learn how to understand when a girl says no, and girls have to learn to say no if they mean it."
- "I think that if men would keep in mind that every woman could be someone's sister, someone's daughter, and treat them with as much respect as they would want to be someone's sister, or their mother, campus rape would be far less a problem."
- "As far as we know, it's not a problem at Nova, but we still need to be careful!"

The residents of Nova said that they think the film is a valuable tool in the fight against the campus rape epidemic. The Rape Treatment Center encourages college administrators to adopt the film as part of orientation programs for all incoming students. The film was recently endorsed by the National Interfraternity Conference, which distributed copies to its members.

"The goal of the campaign and the film is to reduce the epidemic number of campus sexual assaults," stated Abarbanel.

Recent studies indicate that each year, one in every six college women is a victim of rape or attempted rape and one in every 15 college men admit to committing sexual assaults in addition to the film, which contains important information about rape and prevention strategies, campaign materials include powerful ads and posters for colleges to adopt, and proposals for state legislation requiring colleges to implement written procedures for handling sexual assault cases and mandatory rape prevention programs for freshmen.

"Students must understand that rape is not sex; it's an act of violence with devastating consequences," stated across Dey, who thinks the film is a valuable resource in educating students by exploring campus rape and its impact through interviews with four college women actually assaulted on college campuses.

IT Only takes a spark to re-start--A FIRE!

By Cleveland Ferguson III

Recently, I walked with two fellow colleagues who were arguing. One was upset because the other wore a "Black Bart Simpson" shirt sporting the slogan: "It's a Black Thing. You wouldn't understand!"

The other student was angered because her colleague wore a hat with a Confederate Flag on it.

Each student contended that they wore the symbols to express pride in themselves and their respective beliefs. The student with the hat argued that his "kind" in our generation would set things right. There would be no lynching, raping and burning of property to keep minorities down. He felt that because too many of us (Blacks and other minorities in general) gathered have too much. They (the new movement, inferred) would align their factions together to obtain superiority through the democratic process of voting. "Liberals out of office..

"We are going to look out for our own," he said.

Counterattacking, the other student concluded that because it would be impossible to function in such a battlefield she would find employment at one of the rapidly growing minority-owned businesses, so at least she would have the chance to exercise her degree.

She felt that she would have the chance to prove her worth and wouldn't have to deal with any. "White people."

Later, I reminded her that if it weren't for many fair and honest Whites, we as a people would not have the opportunities that we have. For instance, civil rights laws had to be passed through a predominantly "WASP" Congress. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., had the support of President Kennedy and the awesome political power of President Johnson as well as others.

But perhaps more important, we cannot divide ourselves from those who have given us a chance to prove ourselves in a society in which we weren't—and to a great degree weren't meant to be treated equally—the open minded people.

I most certainly wouldn't be the editor of a newspaper of a private university if it weren't for them.

While we, as a people, still need to continue to contribute to our minority-owned companies, it would be difficult to function amicably if we feel like the narrow minded individual feels towards another race. She agreed.

Both the young lady and myself as well as many of you know, that our counterpart speaks the truth in regards to this new, subtle wave of economic, social and political racism.

The bottom line is this we cannot afford to create or add to this new wave of racism. It only takes a spark to re-start—fire.

It is time that comments, symbols and philosophies like these cease to exist.

It affects not those who are closed-minded, but those individuals who are trying to make a difference—trying to build bridges, heal and unity society—in our own way. While everyone has the inalienable right to the freedom of expression and speech, if we aren't sensitive to each others feelings and concerns, unity between any race shall never be ours.

So, wake up all of you closed minded individuals from all races. Treat everyone on an individual basis, for who they are and not a media-based stereotype. Open YOUR MIND AND THINK BEFORE YOU SPEAK!!

This is a Reprint from the Florida Review.

Women's Studies and Afro-American Studies are like bad jokes being bellowed by some drunken vagrant outside of church while services are in session. Like the drunken vagrant, the mere mention of their name results inowan smiles and uneasy foot shuffling. Like the vagrant, they shouldn't be where they are, not where they are doing. But like the polite church goers, just who wants the dirty job of removing them goes unanswered.

The administration knows that these fields of study, interdisciplinary majors or whatever have nothing to with scholarship; they were political sops thrown to radical vocal minorities in the 70's.

Come on, Afro-American Studies? That's close to three or four politically correct labels behind the times. Since then there has been "people of color," "Black," and now a la Jesse Jackson we have "African American."

Truly, the name is not important, but as a reflection of the times and the mentality that phallicarotic oppression of women, then she is either discredited or summarily dismissed.

As for any other piece of literature, history, study sociological phenomenon, one will be sure to see a women's studies scholar sniffing about for just the faintest trace of political purity. If a writer like Flannery O'Connor, possibly this century's greatest short story writer, refuses to sell the world in a phallicarotic domination that can be blown out of proportion and used to bludgeon the first passabry of the opposite gender.

Like a sick parody of Our Gang's "Herman's Woman Haters Club," the so-called scholars of this department see men as the root of all evil and demand of men the unanswerable question, "Why can't a man be more like a woman."

Say No to Drugs and Yes to Jesus!!!

By Wendy Myers

On Saturday, September 22, I participated in a march through Liberty City in Miami. The march was sponsored by an organization called We Are One, and the theme was "Say no to drugs, and yes to Jesus." Hundreds of people from churches all over Miami participated in the march, in an effort to provide people with an alternative to drugs.

I can't tell you everyone's personal reasons for participating in the March, but I can tell you why I felt it was important.

First of all, we all know that drugs are a major problem in America, and we know that something must be done to solve this problem. Yet, we seldom get past discussing the issue. Very little is actually being done by the general public to provide a solution.

Although the march did not by any means solve the drug problem, it did, I think, make a statement to the people that there is an alternative to drugs.

Another reason that I chose to march with the others is that I truly believe that Jesus, not drugs, is the answer to life's problems. Not everyone believes that, but I do, and I feel that it is our obligation to stand up for what we believe in.

It is time for us, as Americans, to wear ourselves of the apathy on which we've been nursing. If we truly want to see a better world, then we need to take an honest interest and actually strive for change.

Something else that I felt was an important statement to the general public was that this war against drugs is not controlled by any ethnic boundaries we might try to draw. Every race is affected by it, and the best way to beat this problem is to attack it as a unified force.

It is high time that we all realize that the color of a person's skin is simply that, a color. I think I heard it best on a "For Kid's Sake" commercial that said "When you're five, colors are for crayons." I think that statement should apply for us as adults too.

We need to stop blaming society for our problems and realize that we are society, and if we want things to change, then we must do something to change them.

I did not anticipate that this march would bring the end of the drug problem in America, Miami, or even Liberty City. I do hope, however, that it did touch some lives, and make a difference. If it helped even one person to realize that drugs are not the answer, then I feel it was time well spent.

What is C. C. M.?

Catholic Campus Ministry is a small group of students who gather together in an effort to celebrate their religious faith. C. C. M. represents students who are interested in bringing religion into social and academic settings, and discussing respect for life issues that are important to them in college and general life.

What does C. C. M. do?

Catholic Campus Ministry sponsors masses on campus several times a year, especially during the holiday seasons. For those of you who would like to attend services more frequently, we hope to provide, through the Office of Student Life, several shuttles to Sunday Mass and Sunday Pancake Brunch after Mass during the regular school year. We also would like to visit St. Mary's Cathedral and hear the archbishop deliver Mass, and tour the Spanish Monastery in Miami.

Does C. C. M. participate in community services?

Sure we do! Catholic Campus Ministry will sponsor a toy drive this year so that less fortunate children in the community can have a cheerful holiday. The drive will start Mid-November and run through the end of the fall semester. For the campus C. C. M. will sponsor guest speakers to come to the main campus and discuss with students respect for environment and human life issues.

"N.B. - President, Nancy Kelly Sanguigni, was installed during the Spring Induction Ceremony."
Summer was great, wasn’t it? But now you’re back to the books at Nova College. Next year, wouldn’t it be nice if you could start summer in May, but travel and earn 9 credits while you’re doing it? Sound good? Then read on.

Nova College will be expanding its FIELD STUDY PROGRAM IN MEXICO for 1991. The program will still provide everything it did in the past: thousands of miles of travel through Mexico, Belize and Guatemala, intensive language study, residence with Mexican families, and the adventure of your life. Now the program has been expanded to include a three credit hour Preparation for Field Study course in March (LAC 485) that will introduce you to the language and culture of each country to which you may earn money to help subsidize your trip. Of course full financial aid is already available. Because the program has been expanded, you will have to make your decision earlier this year. If you do not enroll in LAC 485 (the "prep" class) in March, you will not be able to go.

Minimum and maximum enrollment limits will be strictly adhered to this year; so, if you want to go, encourage your friends to come too ... but don’t wait too long.

No other university offers a program as comprehensive and inexpensive as this one, so don’t let this once in a lifetime opportunity pass you by. And remember, the Field Study is fully applicable toward the Certificate in Latin American & Caribbean Studies and, in many cases, toward your major.

If you are interested in the Field Study and would like to be notified of future events, please drop off or send me your name, phone number, and the program you’re interested in. And ... make sure you don’t miss our open house "fiesta" coming soon.

Start planning now, and join us for the 1991 Field Study in Mexico.

Sincerely,
Barbara Brodman
Coordinator of Latin American & Caribbean Studies

"U.K. Comes to the U.S.A."
by Kimberly R. Larkins

Thursday, September 13, 1990, eleven Nova students set-up and judged some very bizarre competitive games. I was one of these eleven students. We watched, for example, a four way tug-of-war, where one side was dragged across the green by the other three sides, and that is NOT how you play the game.

Now, you may ask why would Nova students want to do something like this, and exactly what were they doing anyway? Well... Bristol-Myers-Squibb (BMS) held their employee competition for their regional offices located in the United Kingdom here in the United States, at Markham Park near Bonaventure. The theme, "BMS New World Challenge" classified the employees as "astronauts", and Nova Students as "Team America" marshall.

Basically we (the students) were just having fun, but depending on who you asked you would get a different answer as to why we were doing this.

This event was a fundraiser. For what? A field study perhaps, funds for a conference trip, or maybe something called "Club Nova". No matter which answer you chose you were right. The students participating were raising funds for their individual on-campus interests or a mutually agreed upon upcoming campus event.

Hmmm... I wonder what that last item is all about. Next issue you may just find out!

Your options are options are broader than ever before, and depending on the scene you will either achieve phenomenal success or suffer the consequences. The astrological tug-of-war heats up noticeably, pulling on your moods and desires. Your behavior might surprise even you.

Aquarius: This month relationships are destined to keep you on your toes. Bask in the attention, and don't worry where it will lead. If you accept things as they are and Don't let your emotions get the best of you, you will avoid spoiling what could otherwise be the high point of the year.

Aries: Friendship, romance, and work allegiances are of prime importance this month. Unfortunately there may be difficult people headed your way. If you are involved in a career that requires you to deal with the public, keeping the customer happy will be especially challenging, but it is worth your while to pass the test, even if you must eat humble pie. There is no situation a little patience and compassion can't help.

Gemini: Show that there is some true grit behind your somewhat flighty personality. Others are now depending on you to perform at your best. Don't let your team down. Be a go-getter and prove that you are worthy of respect.

Taurus: You will feel as though the success you so desire will always elude you. Be patient.

Cancer: Time's winged chariot may not currently be running according to your schedule, but it won't leave you stranded either. The most dangerous of all Cancerian inclinations is to accept defeat and give up on the situation or people considered too difficult. Rise above the level of the obvious and see the big picture. This month take a few liberties and have some fun. A holiday or at least a shopping spree is in order. You've worked hard and deserve a reward.

Leo: You are the star pupil of the toadie: at this time, as the lessons of life are coming at you hard and fast. For better or worse, the rules, relationships, projects, or decisions formed over months have made it apparent that major rethinking is in order. Don't rely on the past performance-you have to update your approach. Separating the tangled aspects of your world will help resolve conflicts.

Thoughts from the Wall Street Journal

You've failed many times although you may not remember. You fell down the first time you tried to walk. You almost drowned the first time you tried to swim, didn't you? Did you hit the ball the first time you swung the bat? Heavy hitters, the ones who hit the most home runs, also strike out a lot.

R.H. Macy failed seven times before his store in New York caught on. English novelist John Creasey got 753 rejection slips before he published 564 books. Babe Ruth struck out 1,330 times, but he also hit 714 home runs. Don't worry about failure. Worry about the chances you miss when you don't even try.

Mr. Bias has much respect for the University. “I like the progress and the potential of Nova University,” he said. “Now we are establishing the history and building its future. This school is small enough that everyone can make a difference,” he added.

“My degree is the one honor I worked the hardest on,” he laughed. He is also an instructor Miami Dade Community Police Academy. As the Director, he has established an upgraded alarm system for the new buildings that are being projected at Nova University.

Nova University is a nontraditional school in that its faculty members’ experience isn’t limited to the classroom.

“There are seasoned practitioners. They aren’t just theorists. You get information and are taught in a style that makes your degree more usable when you graduate,” Mr. Bias affirmed.

He also feels that Nova fosters personalization. “Most students are on a non-Nova personnel. Their goal is to give maximum protection and service” to the student body. “I impress and encourage upon the officers that they are here for the students,” he emphasized.

Mr. Bias has also been appointed a Crime Prevention Officer: Paul Sohmer.

When someone is at your door, never open it until you know who is there. Repair and sales people, police and survey-takers carry identification. Ask to see it and call the company to verify their identity if you have any questions before you permit their entry.

There is no soliciting on campus. If someone wants to use the phone, make the call for her/him without opening the door.

In addition, the manual offers some important tips that we often overlook or take for granted in terms of being tracked.

- If you are going out, tell someone where you are going and when you will return.
- Don’t walk alone at night. Take a friend with you.
- Stay in well lighted areas.
- Always lock your doors and don’t lend the key. Keys can be duplicated.
- If you lose a key or believe that someone has a key to your room, report this immediately to the Residential Life Office of 475-7052.

Public safety officers have a unique tool called a Radiophone.

Emergency phone call is not handled from an office, but a Public Safety Officer. This way they are able to respond without having a dispatcher try and locate them.

“The advantage is that you don’t need to go through two or three extensions and the officers don’t have to go use another phone,” stressed Mr. Bias.

“The instant communication may save a helpless person’s life,” he reiterated.

The Radiophones have been working so well for the past three years that Broward County Community College will be switching systems.

In addition to Public Safety’s Safety Manual, they have provided a packet for Hurricane Procedures which can be obtained at the Public Safety Office located at Entrance 3.

Who Is Public Safety?

The mission statement of the Public Safety Department is: “To improve the performance of Nova students and graduates.”

Their goal is to give maximum protection and service” to the student body. “I impress and encourage upon the officers that they are here for the students,” he emphasized.

Mr. Bias has also appointed a Crime Prevention Officer: Paul Sohmer.

Public Safety Tips

Simple actions include:

- Locking doors at all times (residences and vehicles).
- Do not “pme” doors open.
- Exercise, travel, or jog with a friend or partner.
- Be aware of unusual or suspicious persons or conditions.
- Stay in well lighted areas of the campus.
- Call Nova Public Safety to report crime or suspicious activity. Nova 475-8999.
- If you suspect danger, or are threatened, call the local police (911), then call Nova 475-8999.

The public safety manual stresses the importance of checking the identification of non-Nova personnel.

A Chase Manhattan Press Release

Chase Manhattan, the nation's second largest credit card issuers, is offering college and university students Visa and MasterCard credit cards with a minimum credit line of $500 and no annual fee for the first year (a savings of $20).

To qualify, students need only proof of college or university enrollment. They are not required to have a prior credit history or parental cosigner and there is no minimum income requirement.

According to W. Gregory Kerwick, Director of Student Marketing, Chase developed this special offer because market research indicates that today's students are highly concerned with establishing a strong credit history.

"By offering a special credit card for students, we're providing them with a service that they need when they feel they need it most," said Mr. Kerwick.

"Our recent nationwide tests have concluded that students are among the most responsible users of credit and regularly adhere to payment schedules," he added.

Chase hopes to develop long term relationships with student cardholders, ultimately serving all their financial needs. Supporting this effort, Chase will immediately extend its relationship with students by designing a student newsletter and a series of educational brochures containing credit guidelines and personal finance tips to include with monthly statements.

Chase will also offer students special services and benefits designed exclusively for the students market; such as discounts on retail items and educational materials. In addition, all Chase credit cards currently offer collision damage coverage for rental cars, automatic merchandise protection and an extended warranty program.

According to Mr. Kerwick, the student market has demonstrated the greatest growth for Chase's Direct Response Banking Group, which, with an account base of more than 9 million, offers credit cards and unsecured lines of credit nationwide. He expects the number of new student accounts to increase dramatically in 1990 as a result of Chase's increased commitment to the student market.

Chase Manhattan will distribute direct mail pieces to more than four million students and application displays to 1,800 colleges and universities this fall. Applications can also be obtained by calling the Chase Information Center, 1-800-AT CHASE, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

I hope our film will help reverse the alarming campus rape statistics," she added.

Actor Bernsen cited his support for the campaign, commenting, "Men must take a strong stand against rape. The campaign gives college men an opportunity to become part of the solution, rather than part of the problem."

"College students are more vulnerable to rape than any other age group," said Abarbanel.

To compound the problem, studies have shown that more than 90 percent of campus rapes go unreported. Our campaign provides colleges with effective materials and programs to end rape on campus," he added.

"College administrators and student groups have to work together to solve the problem of campus sexual assaults," said Jonathan Brant, Executive Vice President of the National Interfraternity Conference.

"We strongly endorse the campaign and have distributed the film to our members nationwide to initiate student support of this effort," he noted.

To specifically address college administrators, the Rape Treatment Center mailed its booklet, "Sexual Assault on Campus: What Colleges Can Do," to every college president. The booklet urges adoption of a 10-point rape prevention program model which includes mandatory educational programs about rape, increased disciplinary hearings for offenders and comprehensive programs for assisting victims.

The Rape Treatment Center has also been a pioneering force in initiating tougher sexual assault legislation. As a part of its national campaign, the Center has called upon governors nationwide to support legislation requiring colleges to have a written procedure for handling sexual assault cases, similar to a new California law supported by the Center. The Center is also encouraging the states to required that colleges provide rape prevention information during freshman orientation, as New York state recently did.

Abarbanel also commended the many talented members of the entertainment industry who contributed their time and made the film and ads possible. "Campus Rape" was written by Emmy award winners Allan Burns and Seth Freedman. Compact Video donated film duplication services. The public service ads poster were contributed by the prestigious advertising agency Dailey and Associates.

For more information regarding the "Campus Rape" film, contact The Rape Treatment Center at Santa Monica Hospital, 1250 16th Street, Santa Monica, Calif., 90404.

"To compound the problem of campus rape, we need for Back-To-School from competitive student prices. At Koenig you'll find everything you need for Back-To-School from pencils, pads, T-squares & paints to tables, chairs and lamps.

10% discount with valid student ID. Can not be combined with any other discount.
"Oh, God, here comes Geoffrey Perkins—pretend we haven’t seen him."

"Will your new possessors not come to your benefit?"

"I owe all my success to college." "You mean the courses were that good?" "Nope, that’s when I got my first credit card."

The Best Advice That I Could Give Students: "Make The Most Of College."

On October 23, 1989 Nova University informed Lori Savka that she procured the clerical position that she sought. Within a month Lori accepted the position and moved to Florida. Recently Lori received a promotion and a new title, she is the new Student Activities Coordinator. Her responsibilities will include: Nova's 17 clubs and organizations, Student Life work-studies, and student events. Lori is estatic about her new position and optimistically adds "I know Brad and I will make a great team. We have the same goals for the program and really enjoy what we do." The best thing about her new job is that she will be able to work directly with the students.

Lori received her Bachelor of Arts Degrees in both Communications and Journalism from Duquesne University. Lori plans to begin work in Education on the Master's level in January of 1991. In closing Lori expressed her views on Nova and student relations; "Nova is a very supportive environment for students, both academically and socially. We've got some great staff people who give much more of themselves than the job requires and who really CARE about the students. I feel very lucky to be a part of that process." Lori is a very special friend, and she is also one of those staff members who gives so much of her time to students. The Nova Knight staff wishes you continued success!

By Errol Bodie

Davie, Fl.-Nova brought their record to 2-0 (3-3) with a big win over Embry-Riddle College on September 21st, 1990. The Knight's soccer team led 3-0 at the half, going on to win 5-0. A crowd, estimated at over 200, was present to witness the Knight's big win.

For Nova, sophomore Manny Romalci scored three goals giving him his first "hat trick" in his collegiate career. Sophomore Alex Acosta and freshman Kevin Folmar each added goals for Nova. As it stands, the Knights coach, Stephan Strand.

"Manny Roland really came through for us," said assistant coach, Stephan Strand. "The rest of the team also performed very well."

Nova was able to out shoot Embry-Riddle 23 to 3. Combining for the shutout were Phil Salvagio in the first half and Alex Pizarro in the second.

RESPONSE

BY ERROL BODIE
SPORTS EDITOR-WRITER.

In the second issue, September 14th, of this year's Nova Knight, page 11, I had the opportunity to spotlight the newest addition to Nova's Female Tennis team, Ms. Ali All.

The Nova Knight has received numerous letters from students who were concerned about the correct seeding (position) of Ms. Ali. According to Head Tennis Coach, Roger Morris, Ms. Ali is indeed the number one seeded player on the team for the upcoming season.

Although the tennis season does not actually start until January, I will be involved in feature articles and spotlights on each individual member of the team. Ms. Ali was only the first.

Thank you for your concerns, and I will address each matter personally as it comes to my desk.--EB

Team Captain And Leader
By Jorge Herrera

Harry McMurter led the Men's Cross-Country team on September 15, at the University of Miami's Greentree Invitational. Running his best time ever, Harry took the number one spot, at least third temporarily, away from his teammate Steve "Singleton" Vasquez. In third place for Nova's team was Daniel Heeren, a new promising runner. Harry Stone and Carlos Lopez took fourth and fifth place for Nova.

The meet was special because for the first time in several years, Nova University was represented by a complete Men's Cross-Country team. The team took fourth overall. "We are still working on the women's Cross-Country team, we have three runners, we need to more. It is never too late to start," said coach Jorge M. Herrera. Nova's Cross-Country will compete on Saturday 29 at FIT, and will travel to compete against Stetson on October 6. The Cross-Country State Champions are on October 19, at USF.

Autumn

cold shivers of autumn moons, sunlight wrapped in a wreath of decaying leaves.
dreading the sounds of sounds of frosty feet, offering nothing but disturbance of my thoughtul world.
hers efforts in vain, the sun weeps its sorrow leaving me alone to face the visage of the night.

Someone Special

Send me someone special Lord.
All I need is love and care,
someone to hold me and always be there.
Please God help me find that someone special, someday, somewhere.
I need a caring hand to get me through the day,
Someone who will take my pain and tears away.
Someone who will love me
forever and get me through the day.
Is it asking too much, God,
for someone to hold me and always be there.
Someone who will make me smile,
and fill my world with cheer.
Someone who will mend my broken heart, touch me and hold
me and never want to part.
Send me someone special Lord.
With a gentle touch, so that love can only do so much.
So please dear Lord help me find a love to make me glow.
Someone that will mend my mortal heart, touch me and hold
me and never want to part.
Send me someone special Lord.
With a gentle touch, so that my life may be brightened, cause love can only do so much.
Love is all I'm asking for,
I hope it will someday,
come knocking on my door.
Someday soon I pray.
I just sit and wait day after day.
And when that day comes,
I will open my heart,
With special love to give.
Then maybe someday,
I will learn to live.

Despair clutches my heart,
surveying another night alone.
threads of truth refuse to be woven,
resist through hyperbolic exclamations.
simple terms escape me,
lending acceleration to the fear I feel.
I grant, however,
one thing simple and true.
I fear myself,
I fear you.
But most I fear the night without me and you.

REVIEW

Was Short Circuits' robot #5 not alive enough for you? Did you find D.A. Z. Y. L. too much like the boy next door? If so, then MARK-13, war-droid in Richard Stanley's science fiction thriller Hardware, may be the machine you're looking for. More closely related to the Terminator than C-3PO, the Mark-13 is ultimately the main character of this pulse-pounding, futurist nightmare that will keep you on the edge of your seat.

It is the Mark-13 that seems to put most people ill-at-ease. Playboy magazine has called Hardware a "computerized bloodbath." In a movie where nearly three quarters of the main characters die, this is a valid statement.

The violence in Hardware is extremely graphic at times. From drilling bits into skulls, the MARK-13 can out-chop a food processor and even inject a lethal drug into it's victim which sends it dooming on a quick but deadly high.

Like watching any other screen killer, tension mounts with time, with the audience waiting for the robot to strike. Against an industrial "Metro-polis" skyline, the raucous DJ Angry Bob (Iggy Pop) welcomes you to the war-torn, radiation soaked Earth. In the movie, those who were not in the Army or scavenging cities are supported by welfare programs. The government's latest solution to an increasing population of post-nuke mutants is a comprehensive sterilization program.

The action begins when soldier Moses (Dylan McDermott) returns home, unwittingly carrying a MARK-13 robot as a Christmas present for his girlfriend Jill (Stacey Travis), an oxyacetylene torch wielding artist.

These tough-as-nails lovers have little time to develop anything beyond the sketchiest personalities between love scenes and the MARK-13's rampage. What we do learn is that Travis loves smoking dope, 'Government Brand - Major Good Vibes', and that McDermott can sleep through a heavy-metal thundertstorm.

The handful of other characters almost upstage McDermott and Travis. John Lynch plays a memorable role as Moses' drogued-out buddy as does another actor portray a high tech voyeur. Though they may be highly individual, nobody acquires any real depth.

The saving graces of Hardware are hard put when stacked against mechanical blood-letting and little-to-no character development, but there are three factors worth mentioning:

1) Attention to detail. Although only a handful of locations dominate the film, each is located with atmosphere. Post-nuke United States is on the brink between technological wonderland and a junkyard. Skillful use of the television provides a gradually opening view of this world. Food substitutes, poisoned waterways, MTV and corporate logos await us. The exaggerated present is Stanley's blueprint of the future.

2) Mistrust of government policy is evident and makes good breeding grounds for healthy paranoia.

3) A clear-cut battle between good and evil is drawn out. Though biblical references are abundant, most of the symbolic ones are easily recognized. Stanley's depiction of the role of religion is tasteful and sometimes subtly executed.

The film's conclusion is reminiscent of the Terminator, and by the time Travis is ready to archaize with the robot for another round, the audience is in threat of boredom.

Thankfully, the screenwriter was thoughtful enough to throw in an almost intelligible dialogue that draws the film to it's inevitable end.

As a message film, Hardware could use more character development and spend less time emulating Friday the 13th. It works pretty well as a 'computerized bloodbath', but there's more to it than that. Perhaps the first "cyberpunk" movie to hit the screen, Hardware is loud, hard-hitting and prophetic.

INTENSIVE LANGUAGE ON THE MOVE

The Intensive Language Program of Nova University provides a wealth of educational opportunities to meet the academic and social needs of students from different backgrounds. The program has a sincere commitment to fully accommodate the student not only in academic instruction in English as a Second Language at multiple levels, but also to provide cultural counseling to facilitate the international student's integration into American life. This commitment and concern for the international student with American Society. This integration and cultural exposure to American life is reinforced by social events. This highly coordinated program provides and special remedial tutoring program to bolster any academic inadequacies the student might encounter. It also has implemented an integration of acculturation studies into its curriculum to acquaint the international student with American Society. Introduction to American values. Control: Americans believe every person should control his/her immediate situation: friends, work, life and lifestyle. We believe whatever happens to a person is his/her own responsibility, not a result of "fate" or "luck." It is also expected for people in the U.S. to look for our own interests first. This "me first" attitude is not rude.

These are the goals of the Intensive Language Program:

1. To offer intensive and accelerated language instruction in English to a variety of students populations.

The best advice I could give Nova students: "Don't waste time being nonsensical."

By Cleveland Ferguson III
Ana Maria Eccles, International Student Advisor for the Intensive Language Program, has quite a bit of responsibility. "I have to make sure they have all of the necessary papers to enter the country whether they are academic or financial," she noted.

Some of her other duties include: matching foreign students up with families that she mentors, advising them academically once they come to Nova, and takes care of their well being.

"For instance, I warn all students not to sign any papers on the spot. They should take them home and review them or bring them to someone they trust," she emphasized.

She advises approximately eighty to one hundred twenty students a semester.

The majority of students enrolled in this year's class where from Columbia, Japan and Venezuela with twenty-five, twenty-five and sixteen respectively.

Students are required to have at least a high school diploma, but students come here with Ph.Ds as well.

"Some students come here to learn English just for their own personal knowledge," she pointed out.

One may think that because they are many from various cultures, that problems may occur.

"Most of the students get along very well and become friends for life. Some become so close, they get married," she expressed while pointing up an 8x10 of a married couple.

How do students feel not being on the main campus?

"When they first come here they complain that they aren't on campus. Later on when they begin to attend the main campus, they miss being here, at Orange Plaza," she concluded.

First in sales satisfaction. There are a lot of dealerships selling trucks out there today. But there can only be one number one: GMC Truck. That's according to an independent survey conducted by J.D. Power and Associates* in a ranking of the sales personnel of all major brands of compact trucks, foreign and domestic, GMC Truck buyers were the most satisfied with the way they bought their truck, how they were treated by salespeople, and the quality of their truck when it was delivered.

Highest ranked domestic compact sport utility in customer satisfaction. And in a separate J.D. Power study that ranked compact sport utility vehicles after a full year of ownership, we were the highest ranked domestic model The S-15 Jimmy from GMC Truck was the highest ranked domestic in its class.

It's GMC Truck.
