Smoking Issue Heats Up at Nova

By Belinda Gonzalez

An anonymous phone call from the Hollywood Mallman building has made to Human Resource Services (HRS) a few weeks ago concerning smoking on the second floor of the building. The anonymous caller was not logging a complaint, rather the caller was inquiring about the Clean Air Act and whether Nova was perhaps breaking some of those rules.

Martin Green of the Environmental Health Section in HRS received the inquiry and proceeded to call Dr. Abraham Fischler, President of Nova University. Mr. Green was then transferred to Dr. Ovid Lewis' office (Vice President for Academic and Student Services). Mr. Green said that Dr. Lewis was not there, so he spoke to his administrative assistant.

"I informed the office that I had received an anonymous inquiry and that Nova may be breaking some of the laws expressed in the Clean Air Act. I had an ignorable discussion, simply reminding Nova of what the Act stresses," said Mr. Green.

Green stresses that the call was not a complaint, that Nova was not fined, that no one came down to Nova or does HRS have any sort of "records" on Nova. "The call I made was informal and unofficial," states Mr. Green.

However, if a formal complaint is logged, a formal letter will be sent to Nova asking them to comply within 30 days to the Clean Air Act laws. If Nova does not, then county administrators will be sent out to check the area and perhaps hit Nova with a fine.

"Usually, people comply after the first letter; I really haven't had to follow it through," he continued. On Page 13

Students Speak Out About Persian Gulf Crisis

By Sandra Watson and Cleveland Ferguson III

Out of one hundred students surveyed on the Main campus of Nova University, 90% said that they would not be willing to volunteer to serve in the U.S. military armed forces in the Persian Gulf.

Nine percent said they would volunteer. One percent was undecided.

Out of the 90% who would not volunteer, 77% said they do support President Bush's declaration of war for reasons that range from "because he is the President" to "seeing no other way to stop Iraq from taking over smaller countries."

"Saddam is a maniac and must be stopped," stressed Mark Bobak, a freshman. "I would feel privileged to join our forces in Iraq," he continued.

Louis Badami, a senior, stated that he supports Bush's decision because of the allied support. "It's not just Bush, it's the Allied Forces. The Allied Forces are comprised of twenty-eight nations who all feel that Saddam Hussein has overstepped his boundaries by attempting to maintain control over Kuwait," he said.

Linda Scherman, a freshman concurred.

"Kuwait is entitled to the same freedom of government that we in America take for granted," she said.

"The concept of forced democracy is no democracy at all," she continued.

Perkins Loan Fund Falls Short

By Kevin Hawkins

A few students probably won't be very happy this semester when tuition refunds come due. Why not? Because Nova University's Perkins Loan Fund is suffering from a five month accumulated shortfall of roughly $50,000.

About 30 Nova University students will have had their Perkins Loans adjusted in late January. "Maybe 5 or 6 students will not have enough money to pay tuition," said Geraldine Castora, Director of Financial Aid.

Financial Aid examined student cases on a one-to-one basis to see whose award letters could most afford decreases in their Perkins Loans. "No one's ever going to be happy," she said. "No one's perfect," added Castora about the altered award letters.

About 96% of the affected students will be short around $250 in refund money.

The school is trying to make alternative plans of payment with students who are unable to meet the costs of tuition. Said Castora, "Nova is very sensitive to the fact that it isn't the student's fault."

The Perkins Loan Fund receives money from two sources. One major annual contribution to the fund is a government allocation titled 'Our Fair Share.'

The second source of income for the Perkins Loan Fund are the monthly loan payments by former loan recipients. The Perkins Loan is a revolving fund. This means that the money being paid back to the school for past loans goes to new students who qualify for the loan.

Nova University's shortfall is the Perkins Loan Fund is a result of loan repayment problems. Since

Nova Student to Serve in Gulf

Walter Roqueut would have thought you were crazy four years ago, if you had told him he would have been in the Naval Reserves.

He might even have told you where to go.

Four years ago, Walter was into the street scene. He was always fighting. He was a member of a few gangs.

His father wanted him to change all that. So, he made him enlist in the Naval Reserves.

He felt it would make Walter, "an officer and a gentleman."

Today, Walter Roqueut, 19, a freshman from Caracas, Venezuela, received a call from his recruitment officer to prepare to possibly go to war.

Walter went through many emotional periods when he got the call for training.

"Friends thought I was being very cold the first day. Then the next day, they saw me crying," he said. "Then they said, 'Oh my God! You are scared,'" he continued.

Walter now feels confident about his forced change is plans.

"Now, I think it's a great honor. I'm not really scared because Iraq doesn't have much of a navy. They only have gunboats and water mines. It's not a big deal," he said.

His family is worried. "They are scared," most of his family members cry while we are on the phone. They tell me not to go. They can't understand why I'm doing this," he recalled.

I just told them it's something I have to do," he continued.

America will visit the system, being a witness or participating in civil or criminal litigation.

The average person's perception of the law is concrete. Many people feel that if they ever have a problem with another, they can rectify it in the courts. The courts will uphold Justice, by seeking the truth.

How accurate is this shared misconception? It's not accurate at all.

Stuart Nagel once said, "Theoretically, the American adversary system presupposes that the prosecution and the defense will compete in such a way that an impartial judge [or jury] can conclude the truth somewhere between the adversarial positions." However, our present adversary system has been tainted by immoral, unethical, and greedy players within the system.

Because of this fundamental truth, the concept upon which the system is based seems to have been theorized by utopian oriented philosophers. Over time, some judges become extremely partial. Some jurists will always be biased by personal beliefs. The concept of an "impartial jury" is wishful thinking. Many lawyers use the cross examination process to manipulate witnesses in order to win the case; not to find the truth in the case.

The perversion of the system has led some prominent lawyers such as George Barnard Shaw to explain the theory of the adversary system as, "if you set two liars to exposing each other, eventually the truth will come out.

If the adversary system is to be reformed, then murders to be examined in three significant areas: lawyers, judges and jury selection.

The single most problem-causing area is the lawyers. Many of their cases center on not all that is known, but avoiding truths that hurt their cases.

Anne Strick, author of the book Injustice For All, Our Adversary System of Law victimizes and Subverts Justice, says that "[Lawyers] must attack and counter attack [the opposition], discover and avoid discovery [in order to win the case]."

Consequently, the main concern is to win the case at any cost of their moral or ethical fabric.

One of the major areas in which this is evident lies within the cross examination process. Some have called this process the "greatest legal engine ever invented for the discovery of truth." Theoretically, it exposes evidence hidden or underdeveloped during direct examination. Tactical goals include obtaining helpful testimony, discrediting harmful testimony and making witnesses look incompetent.

More importantly, the cross examination process is used to discredit and confuse honest witnesses. A lawyer should not be professionally permitted to destroy the character of an innocent witness through cross-examination. But the American adversary system allows it.

The next abusive tactic is that many lawyers continue to prove their cases by demolishing the effectiveness of a key witness with the manipulation of the expert witnesses.

lawyers seek jurors who would vote their way, a judge is expected to be impartial. The judge regulates the destruction of the jury or, if it is a bench trial, decides who won.

Unfortunately, it is also naive to think of all judges as impartial, for everyone has opinions. The moral and ethical fabric of the system is being overtaken by greed, and monetary success as number one goal in life. Fortunately, it seems that many judges are of the political age and opposed to on of greed.

It is the lawyers who need the most moral and ethical training to change the adversary process. Because of the lack of these necessary attributes, some experts have had to form under codes of ethics to combat unscrupulous lawyers.

For example, the credo of the National Society of Professional Engineers states "Engineers shall issue public statements only in an objective and truthful manner... they shall be truthful in professional reports, statements, and testimony." This acts as a shield for the unprincipled lawyers in the adversary system. By forcing the quality of expert testimony to rise, lawyers cannot manipulate and distort facts as easily as if they were false.

In addition, judicial personnel are not free from blame. Consequently, there should be more attention directed to such sources of information, when the majority of citizens in the United States believe the National Enquirer is a reputable source of information.

It is virtually impossible to have an impartial jury. Those who expect it, are naive. While a lawyer is expected to be partial, and during the voir dire

The Nova Knight

Editorial Response to: "When We Don't Work in Unity, No one Wins."

By Kevin M. Adams

Since the publication of the Nova Knight, Vol. 1 Issue VII, I have received two verbal and written complaints that the editorial "When We Don't Work in Unity, No one Wins" is, in the least, inaccurate. I apologize, initially, for the blatant layout error that led to the mistaking of Ms. Gonzalez's editorial as a news article. Amid the discussions that have ensued in the wake of this piece, I resolved to discover the facts surrounding the 'recycling issue' for myself, as those in Ms. Gonzalez's editorial seemed highly in question.

The idea for a recycling program was brought up at a meeting of the College Administrative Council (composed of the Directors of academic and administrative centers at Nova College). At this meeting, Dean DeTurk urged it was not an appropriate time for the college to attempt any concerted recycling efforts as a University-wide program was being coordinated. Some time after this meeting, no one has been able to provide an exact date, a memo regarding a Student Body recycling effort began to circulate throughout Nova College. This memo appeared with the Nova University letterhead atop it, and was attributed to Tina Cerra and Yvonne Murphy.

Both staff and faculty members of Nova College were concerned by this memo. Hadn't they earlier agreed to forestall any concerted recycling efforts so the entire Nova University community could act in accord? If so, who were the people responsible for the memo in question? A meeting with Ms. Cerra and Ms. Murphy was arranged with the aid of Ed Pattison.

At the faculty meeting, at which Ms. Gonzalez claims "the students were confronted," were Stuart Horn, Ed Pattison, Ben Mulvey, Doug Flemmons and John MacCuff. There may have been more present at the meeting than those mentioned here.

The faculty members with whom I have spoken claim that there was no intent to berate or browbeat the students for their actions. I can, however, understand how Ms. Cerra and Ms. Murphy may have interpreted the meeting such. At the meeting, a unanimous decision was reached regarding the structure of the University-wide recycling program. Ed Pattison placed the proposal on to Ovid Lewis who in turn presented it to the University's Academic Council (composed of all academic Deans and some Vice- Presidents of Nova academic centers).

The proposal was accepted and led to the foundation of a University-wide committee that would steer all Nova University environmental awareness efforts, and help to structure a strong recycling program. The Director of each Nova College is to choose two people from his or her center to present it on the council. According to Ed Pattison, one of these representatives must, if at all possible, be a student. The other representative can be either a faculty or staff member from the center.

This committee, the name of which I have yet to discover, held its first meeting on January 31st in Sonken High School's conference room. Campus representatives were present from the Law School, the Center for Advancement of Education, the School of Psychology, the Social Sciences and System Studies Center, the Oceanography Center, Sonken High School, the Family Center and Nova College.

The committee agreed that its desired aims were to both set up a comprehensive recycling program (plastic, paper, aluminum), and also raise environmental awareness throughout the Nova community. Other aims included a larger student representation on the committee (only two or three students were in attendance), and ensuring that each center will be sufficiently represented on the committee.

Again, I apologize for the layout error that led to the misinterpretation of Ms. Gonzalez's editorial as a news article. However, as to the content of her editorial, as an editorial, I fully support her right to speak her mind, however distorted the facts she mentions may be. Hopefully, as has happened in this case, the Nova community will bring to the attention of the Nova Knight any misinformation that may appear inadvertently in the publication.

The Nova Knight has committed itself to a recycling and environmental program. This is not the place to analyze placement of other elements of this article. Nevertheless, I do want students, staff and faculty to know that to my knowledge there has never been any attempt or desire of faculty to gain control or "get credit" (this is truly an outrageous charge) for this program.

The University has put in place a recycling and environmental program. It is a faculty and student initiative, and is embraced by the students of the University community work as equals. Those who wish to insert political agendas into this important process should consider the resultant of such subversive activity. I believe we all agree that: "When We Don't Work in Unity, No One Wins."

To the Editor:

Belinda Gonzalez, "When We Don't Work in Unity, No one Wins." Nova Knight, Vol. 1 Issue VII, p.3) is both disconcerting and dangerous. This article, which purports to be an objective news report, portrays the history of the recycling efforts at Nova within the context of a battle of control between intolerant, self-serving students and rapacious self-serving faculty. Ms. Gonzalez claims her sources for this article to be "some of the students involved," and "some faculty and administrators," though, curiously, no names are offered.

It is correct, that some time ago a number of administrators, faculty and staff (myself included) attempted to begin a recycling program on the environmental group on campus. This was not an easy task, since the goal was to include students, staff and faculty across the University. We held the belief (and hope) that the crisis of our environment transcends [the] issue of control, ownership and credit. I attended the meeting mentioned in the article though I was never asked to give my views on what prompted that meeting, or what was unanimously agreed on. I was shocked to read: "the faculty was infuriated at this memo [written by two students] and demanded that the project be turned over to them. Issues of responsibility, liabilities, control, authority and recognition, [and] "credit" were the focus of the faculty meeting in which the students were concerned. The article failed to note that "the students" consisted of two students. This is a distortion and misrepresentation of what occurred. I request Ms. Gonzalez and/or the Nova Knight to offer the evidence from others who attended the meeting that confirm the article's claims.

The danger of this article is that it presents an objective news article, and objective news. Moreover, it violates the fundamental canons of journalistic standards and throws doubt on any piece presented as objective news in the Nova Knight. Hopefully, as has happened in this case, the Nova community will bring to the attention of the Nova Knight any misinformation that may appear inadvertently in the publication.

As well as I can understand, with the information I have gathered, a University-wide joint ecological awareness and recycling program was first proposed in September of 1990.

As many of the hundreds of students who have taken Ms. D'Alessio's environmental studies courses will attest, there are more educational opportunities here concerning environmental awareness than Ms. Gonzalez would have us to believe.

In short, in my involvement with efforts to organize a recycling program on campus I have encountered no faculty or administrative opposition. All "upset" with student efforts or who in any way disapproved of the projects, have encountered nothing but support and encouragement from all quarters. If anything, faculty and administration has been calling for exactly what Ms. Gonzalez suggests, working in unity.

Nova College will be expanding its FIELD STUDY PROGRAM IN MEXICO for 1991. The program will still provide everything it did in the past: thousands of miles of travel through Mexico, Belize, and Guatemala, intensive language study, residence with Mexican families, and the adventure of your life. Now the program has been expanded to include a three credit hour Preparation for Field Study course in March (LAC 485). Because the program has been expanded, you will have to make your decision earlier this year. If you do not enroll in LAC 485 (the "prep" class) in March, you will not be able to go. Minimum and maximum enrollment limits will be strictly adhered to this year; so, if you want to go, encourage your friends to come too... but don't wait too long.

The Field Study is fully applicable toward the Certificate in Latin American & Caribbean Studies and in many cases, toward your major. If you are interested in the Field Study and would like to be notified of future events, please drop off or send your name, phone number, and the program you're interested in to Dr. Barbara Brodman, Parker 352, (305)-475-7001.

Car Theft Seminar At Nova

By Harry Stone

On January 16th, Nova University public safety held a car theft prevention seminar at the Rosenthal Building. Law enforcement, consumer and manufacturing group representatives were present to talk about the methods of car theft and prevention.

One of the simplest ways to steal a car is to crack open the base of the steering column, a task accomplished with a common screwdriver. Once this part is broken, the car can be started without a key.

According to Officer Jacques de Dafler, car thefts can be foiled by simple measures, such as rolling up windows and locking doors whenever you leave your car. Other measures that can be taken are: kill switches (the most effective), steel steering column collars, and glass etching.

The kill switch is the most effective way to protect against car theft, as the thieves will abandon your car if they have any problems starting it. A car thief is not willing to search for a kill switch if he knows another of the same type that probably will not have this protection. Most thieves make lists of cars and their locations.

"Anything you can do to make your car less attractive is very effective," said de Dafler.

Another method of deterrence is glass etching with your car's VIN (Vehicle Identification Number). With this number etched into your car's glass, a thief cannot cheat the identity of your car with a junker, and sell it with clear title, unless he replaces all the windows.

Car alarms are not as effective because they are often not set off by professional thieves, and instead are often not activated by the owner.

The most effective way to protect your car is to be alert and take as many precautions as possible.

Walter feels that his political differences don't hold him from supporting President Bush's decision to declare war on Iraq.

"Although I am a Democrat, I agree with President Bush 100%. He is doing the right thing in Cheir. We [as reservists] are in no position to question him. He reasons it out. He wants to be decisive and I think that's how war should be fought," he stressed.

Walter has a negative opinion of peace

"Now that the war has started, the troops need everyone's support."

"There is nothing more encouraging to me than [in the Persian Gulf] and seeing a bunch of peace protesters on television." [Continued.]

It makes you feel like they don't care about you, they're not going to help with the war," he emphasized.

Walter plans to pursue a career in the Navy as an F-18 Hornet pilot.

Presently, Walter is a 3rd class anti-submarine technician.

He didn't understand why he was called to the reserves.

Walter will be in training for four months.

If the war lasts longer than four months, the reserves can't guarantee he won't see combat duty.

"I guess I'm just unlucky I won't see combat duty," he concluded.

Leah Gloe, Editor of the Nova Paladin (yearbook) concurred.

"I don't believe in any kind of violent acts to solve international problems. We are much too advanced to bring ourselves to this point."

"The situation in Kuwait is not endangering our personal affairs. It is not one's position to interfere in "aggression in the Middle East," continued Gloe.

These acts of taking over other countries and gaining power and prestige are an act that has been going on for thousands of years. The situation should be handled by the countries of the Middle East! Not the US!," Gloe concluded.

Perkins Loan

July of 1990, a noticeable amount of former students haven't been paying back their loans and the results are becoming readily apparent.

The true worry for Financial Aid at this time is a growing default rate. If the school's default rate on student loans goes over 10%, the 'Perkins Fair Share' money allocated to the school goes down.

This trend is doubly dangerous. If both Federal funds and students payments dwindle, the school will be obligated to lessen the amount of financial aid it awards.

"Perkins is making some steps this year to be a lot stricter with our borrowers," remarked Castora, "if the blame is anywhere, it is in the responsibility to pay back to your school.'"

There is a small possibility, Castora mentioned, that in either May or April the affected students will be reimbursed. This is dependent upon the success of collection efforts on delinquent accounts.

"Less money that former students repay for loans, the less money the school can afford to loan out, Castora continually mentioned. "The pulse of the country is getting weaker to realize it is a loan."

Editorial: When We Don't Work in Unity, No one Wins

By Belinda Gonzalez

[Ed's Note: Ms. Gonzalez's editorial When We Don't Work in Unity, No one Wins is being reprinted in this issue because of layout errors in its first publication. Please refer to pages 2 and 3 for her original response to this piece.]

September 99 marked the beginning of a new school year for many students here at Nova. For some students, it marked the beginning of a battle, I refer to college financial aid efforts by certain students and faculty to establish a recycling program on campus.

Certain students banded together and spent the last few months trying to get paper bins, soda containers and recyclable paper products into dorms in the hope of establishing a recycling program.

Numerous meetings were held with recycling companies, Nova Physical Plant and recycling consultants. On Nov 1, a memo was passed out to all Nova Employees and the Student Body explaining how the recycling program was to be implemented. However, this memo marked the end rather than the beginning of the student's efforts.

According to some of the students involved, the faculty was infuriated at the moment and demanded that the project be turned over to them. Issues of responsibility, control, authority and recognition ("who gets the credit") were the focus of the faculty meeting in which the students were confronted.

The students felt that they had lost the battle and conceded to the faculty.

However, the faculty and administrators of Nova have their views also. According to several of the faculty members, the Nova administration has been trying for years to get some type of recycling/ecological awareness program on campus. Just this week the faculty have been in the process of establishing a committee which will delegate duties and services among the entire University. The representatives are to be faculty members or students. It is hoped that by involving all facets of the Nova community in the project, that it will be better coordinated, well-established and successful.

Student Life Flyaway Party Soars
By Jaime Velez

On Friday, Feb. 25, the department of student life held its second annual flyaway party at the new Masters' Gym in Davie. The party was a success and the turnout was great. Close to two hundred students attended the event but only one was fortunate enough to win the grand prize: A trip to the Bahamas.

The lucky winner was George Carney, a freshman from New York. George will fly to the Bahamas with a guest of his choice and one hundred dollars to spend on suntan lotions and taxi fares. The trip and money are courtesy of the office of Student Life, headed by Brad Williams.

The second prize, a full years membership to Masters' Gym, was won by Brian Ouellette, a senior majoring in pre-law. Brian can now pump iron at Masters' Gym, which is now located in Davie, behind the U.S. postal office.

Masters' Gym, the new Nova 'hangout,' will also house the second annual Toga party. The Toga party is hosted by Nova's chapter of P.A.D.

Dance Show Features Nova Cheerleaders.
By Patricia Robinson

The Nova Knight Cheerleaders were a hit onstage as they made two special performances for the nation to watch. "UNDER 18 NOT ADMITTED" is the title of a new dance show filmed right here in sunny Fort Lauderdale.

Moreover, party animal Jamie Kirkham, owner and manager of Masters' Gym, was very pleased with how well the party turned out. "This must have been the best party Nova has had," said Crazy Jamie, a WNKR D.J.

Staff members from the national TV program Dance Party USA, who were filming a new dance show, assisted at the event also. One of the members added, "Nova students know how to rock the house."

Because of his outstanding effort in organizing the Nova student dancers, Rob Armstrong of WNKR, was hired by the director to fill the position of local promotional dance coordinator.

If the "UNDER 18 NOT ADMITTED" pilot is successful, our very own Rob Armstrong and the Nova Knight Cheerleaders could become stars.

Dining Out with Brian Ouellette
Sebastiano's Pizzeria and Ristorante

This family-owned restaurant is the place to go if you want authentic Italian cuisine at moderately low prices. The menu offers everything from New York style pizza to four-course dinners. The atmosphere at Sebastiano's is pleasant; the service efficient, personal and warm.

Personally, I recommend the Veal Parmesiana, served with a side of spaghetti or ziti, a caesar salad and garlic rolls. The price for this meal is extremely cost-efficient at $9.95. Reservations are not accepted, and neither are most credit cards (they only accept American Express). Business is slow during the week, but be prepared to wait for a table on Friday and Saturday nights. Sebastiano's is located at 7902 Pines Blvd. (Phar-Mor Plaza), Pembroke Pines. The phone number is 963-1924.

Dear Dixie,

Is kissing with roommates and share meals preparation time. If you spend a couple of hours a week cooking, you can have food for the week and freeze portions.

Suggestions: spaghetti sauce, casseroles, macaroni and cheese, dried beans, chili. Make soups which can be a compilation of leftovers plus beef/chicken broth, tomato sauce, etc. Make salads; lettuce plus favorite new vegetables.

TATER TOT CASSEROLE

By: Jax

Like so many other students around campus, I'm always looking for a new way to spend what little money I have. Pari-mutual betting means that what you win is based on what is bet by other bettors which, in turn, sets up odds; and the return on your bet is fixed (i.e.: betting $5 will return you $5). Pari-mutual betting is a variable payout schedule. In layman's terms, this means that what you win is based on what is bet by other bettors which, in turn, sets ups odds; and the house (track) gets a cut of the monetary pool. For example, if you bet $2 on a horse that has 5:1 odds, you stand to make $10...go? It? Good, let's move on to what's here.

Most states have horse racing. South Florida offers two tracks, Gulfstream and Calder. Right now, Gulfstream is the active track and offers about 15 races a day. Post time is at 1:00 PM and they are open all days except for Monday.

Next there's dog racing. Locally, there are 3 tracks which trade off during the year: Flagler, Bayside, and Hollywood (currently active). Monday, Wednesday, and Friday offer matinee races at 12:45; otherwise there is racing everyday at 7:15 except Sunday & Monday.

Finally, for the creme de la creme of pari-mutuals in South Florida, I submit my personal favorite, Jai Alai. This offers thrills and chills and, if you can hit them, big payouts. The game is more difficult to understand than simple racing, but well worth it. There are three locations, West Palm Beach, Miami and Dania. They offer pari-mutual performances Tuesday & Saturday at 12:15 and nightly performances at 7:45, except for Sunday & Monday.

By the way, just as a little note, there is one other facility located in Pompano- Pompano Park Harness Track. I have included the location at the end of this article, but I really don't recommend it since the payouts are really lousy, not to mention we were talking about exciting pari-mutuals.

So there you have it, pari-mutuals around town. If you have the means and the time, I would highly recommend you give them a try since the amount you spend is controlled by you, and it beats the heck out of hitting the movies or doing that research paper.
Technological Backfires could cause an Eye of Destruction

By: Melissa Tecbeu

Eye of Destruction is a new film starring Gregory Hines (Tap, Running Scared) that depicts a technological advancement in military warfare that, as in real life, costs billions of dollars and malfunctions.

Eve (Renee Soutendijk) is an indestructible android that is a new film starring Gregory Hines. Eve depicts a technological advancement in military funds on malfunctioning hi-tech weapons.

In all, Eye of Destruction will please moviegoers who enjoy "seek and destroy" films with excessive violence, and romance carried out by an expensive android. This film will also appeal to any woman who has ever been called "bitch" and wanted to do something about it. On the downside, however, the film does lose the audience yearning for Gregory Hines to break into a spontaneous tap dance routine.

Greencard Is Romance At Its Best

By: T.J. Plaisted

The film, Greencard, is a touching comedy about two people who marry out of need rather than love. The leading man, George, marries Bronte so that he can get a greencard and become a US citizen. On the other hand, Bronte wants to marry so that she can rent an apartment with aSolarium, and the landlords are looking for a married couple.

The trouble begins when immigration comes around and feels that the marriage needs further investigation, so they arrange a heavy question and answer session for George & Bronte. These questions are, what immigration officials feel, things that every married couple should know about each other. Things like why your husband has tattoos on his arms or what kind of facial cream your wife prefers—deep and meaningful questions such as that.

The movie has some heartwarming humor in it, but the plot is somewhat cliche. As one would expect in a movie like this, the couple start out disliking each other but, of course, fall in love like so many leading characters have done in the dozens of love stories movies before Greencard; in Hollywood, all things are possible.

I would recommend this movie for the romantic person, but if a movie with action and deep meaning is more your taste, then Greencard is not for you. Personally, I liked this film because I am one of those romantics who enjoys cliche endings.

Often in the movies, we see one picture copying the aspects found in another. Dismissing Awakenings, such as a movie does not do it justice.

The movie is set in the 1960's when Robin Williams' character takes a job at a mental hospital. Though he has only worked the lab doing research, he takes the transition well, and this change offers Williams plenty of opportunity to use his unique personality and character.

Until just before the middle of the film, we see that the doctor is puzzled by a number of the patients who are catatonic and seem to have lost their will (these parts are filled by actors who put in excellent performances as furniture). It is upon these patients that the doctor tries out a medicine that was intended for treatment of an entirely different disorder. The key to this picture, however, is Robert DeNiro. His portrayal of the first patient to benefit from the new drug far surpasses Dustin Hoffman's role in Rainman. DeNiro is utterly convincing as both a log and a thinking, feeling "normal" person.

Through this metamorphosis, DeNiro finds himself in a world totally divorced from his previous experience, and attempts to cope with the changes in the world around him.

In my judgement, this film is excellent as it touches on many issues such as personal independence, the definition of freedom and intelligence, and courage.

The acting is of the type that gets one's attention: a popular film and suffers no lessening in the course of the film. This is a film to see while your someone can open yourself up to and even cry with.

any major problems with organizations complying with the Clean Air Act," comments Mr. Green. Helen Graham, Director of Human Resources, was very upset because HRS had to call this incident to the-knit. "There is an internal procedure to follow if an employee has a complaint," she said. "It was not followed in this incident and I was very disturbed by this," continued Ms. Graham.

As a smoker herself, Mrs. Graham is aware of the issue and stressed that Frank DePiano, Dean of the School of Psychology, is trying to mediate between the two populations.

She also sees a trend to ban smoking by citing that certain trailers on campus have voluntarily gone smoke free. "People may be unhappy about it, but they are complying," states Ms. Graham.

She also stated that smoking is allowed in common areas as prescribed by the law, "but the lounge in Mallman gets crowded and a cloud of smoke pervades the area."

The stair landings also attract smokers. After the call from HRS, Mrs. Graham asked that all smoking in the lounge be suspended until further notice.

Signs have been posted and monitors are in the area.

To date, she has had no complaints. However, the fact that someone spoke up about the smoking problem in certain areas of Nova had Dr. John Malouff, a professor in the Behavioral Sciences Program of Nova College, excited. He is on a personal crusade to make Nova students, faculty and staff aware of non-smoking areas and the dangers of smoking.

Dr. Malouff is joined by others in the opinion that smoke is bothersome.

Smoking is permitted in private offices, but not in Nova hallways, elevators or lounges. Dr. Malouff simply wants to see some signs put up in the non-smoking areas.

Dr. Malouff states that "smoking causes cancer and respiratory problems for not just smokers, but those around them."

"It also gets into the air vents and circulates around the building. It hurts eyes (especially those that wear contact lenses) and it makes your clothes stink."

Even though he does not always catch people smoking in Parker, Dr. Malouff claims that he can smell it and see the smoke coming from the lounge on the second floor of Parker. Dr. Malouff points out that the garbage cans have ashtrays on top of them.

He may tell students that smoking is not allowed in the hallway, but their response is, "Then why is this ash tray here?"

The garbage cans are in the bathroom hence, the same smoking problem.

Dr. Malouff also finds it appalling that smokers put out their cigarettes in the plants in the lounge.

Smokers should also beware that the sofas in the lounge are flammable and so are the rugs.

Dr. Malouff hopes for a stronger effort to reinforce the rules, but he gets the feeling that smoking may be completely banned in some of the Nova buildings.

Dr. Philip DeTurk, Dean of Nova College, is in the process of taking steps to enforce the smoking rules after a faculty meeting brought up the issue.

According to Dr. Joe Laskovitch, Dean of Academic and Student Services, and Dr. Malouff, the trend being exhibited by local colleges (e.g., BCC) is to completely ban smoking inside buildings.

However, before making any definite decisions about the smoking issue, Dr. Joe Lakovitch is circulating a questionnaire to faculty and staff to get a better idea of how to tackle the problem.

He has been assigned to do the research for a task force investigating the smoking issue.

"Before we make any decisions we need to find out what we are dealing with. We don't know if we have 2% smokers or 60% smokers," states Dr. Lakovitch.

One of the questions concerns whether a free smoking cessation class would be effective.

"I'm also talking to BCC in order to see how they came to their decision and its implementation," comments Dr. Lakovitch.

He has also looked into how our insurance rates may go down if we do ban smoking.

He also points out that the dorms will most likely not be included in any ban since they won't be able to have 24 hour monitors.

However, Dr. Lakovitch adds that housing does not force smokers and non-smokers to live together.

Smokers and non-smokers can decide whether they want to live together or apart.

Student Comment: Sides of War

By Ruth Kino

War is the condition which we must endure. Some might see war as necessary, while others find it insurmountable. Some say war is a necessity; A stand which defines a country and its rules unfairness. Others say war is a genocide of innocent people; a shedding of young, brave blood.

Does it achieve a purpose?

War, to me, is negativity, but yet a unification of those involved. We the people on the homefront unify with those who are fighting for the cause. We try to sympathize with their suffering families here at home.

While joining hands there is a ray of hope glimmering in our eyes. A sense of togetherness.

However, we are asking the questions such as "When is daddy coming home?" "Will my newborn get to meet his daddy?" Not only are questions asked but pleas also ring out. "God, please protect my only one and son from the perils of war," and "Please let it end soon."

It is a helpless hand that cannot help but feel sorrowful. I know I am leaving and giving in to war. However even though we may not agree with the policy or the war, we must support our troops, since they are fighting for a cause. They are fighting to maintain long term peace.

Intramural Sports Director

Intramural Basketball season tipped off on Tuesday, January 22. The teams played with a high level of intensity to give their first impressions, and establish themselves as a dominant force. There are nine teams this season that are all determined to secure themselves a spot on the second annual "Cruise of Champions." Last year's winner was the Brewers, led by their manager, Tom Von Aachen. This year's season promises to be even more exciting, as Brad Williams, the Director of Student Life, made arrangements to have lights installed. The first night game was played and all team members enjoyed themselves.

This year's referees are Raybell Lopez, Brian Morris, Craig Smith, Teves Bush, Bob Deutschman, and Brad Williams. They are all very enthusiastic, and hope for the same success that the Volleyball, Football, and Bowling seasons enjoyed.

To recap those seasons, "One Day Late" led by Rob Suydam, won the intramural volleyball season. The next sport was Football. The "Motley Crew", led by Rich Doran, had an outstanding and undefeated season. They won "The Ant Bowl" by defeating "No Sweat" for the title.

Presently, the latest event: intramural Bowling is experiencing the same success as Volleyball, and Football. Intramurals have become very big during the last two years. Brad Williams and his staff have worked hard to make sure everything goes smoothly, and to see that all participants have a good time. Their goal is to make intramurals a part of students' everyday life.

On February 12, 1991, the Second Annual Table Tennis Tournament will take place. Last year's singles champion was Alex Mallory. Last year's doubles male champions were Paul Somers and George Goba.

Last year's season went very well and it was amazing to watch all the teams trying for their last chance to get on the fun-filled cruise. We hope this year's season will be even better and we look forward to seeing all the first place teams on the Cruise of Champions. For all students, staff, and faculty members having any questions, feel free to call Jen Vossellor or Dean Moran at 452-1400.
