Panama Center

Nova University's Panama Center, in celebration of 9 years of existence, invited His Excellency Ambassador Dominador Kaiser Bazan, Panama's representative to the United States to be its guest of honor at a gala reception in Palm Beach. Dr. Carol Crosswell of Palm Beach, former member of Nova's Law Center and benefactress of the Nova Panama Learning Center, co-hosted the reception.

Ambassador Bazan, who is a member of the Panama Center's Board of Advisors, said that Nova in Panama is playing an important and cooperative role in creating leaders and managers in Panama who will assume major responsibilities in the private and public sectors.

Dr. Martin C. Taylor, Dean of the Panama Center, noted that Nova contributes to the well-being of Panama by offering access to education to Panamanians who cannot travel to the U.S. But most importantly, he said, "the continuing U.S. presence in the educational sphere enhances relations between the two countries."

Dr. Taylor, with a Ph.D. in Hispanic studies from U.C.L.A., a renowned scholar on the Nobel laureate from Chile, Gabriela Mistral, called attention to Nova's programs in Panama. By September 1986, the Panama Center will have graduated 277 students in 7 academic programs over the past 9 years.

Nova University Honors Staff Members for Five, Ten, and Fifteen Years of Service

At the anniversary luncheon held in December, more than 200 faculty and staff members gathered to honor their colleagues who have been at Nova for 5, 10, and 15 years. Dr. Abraham Fischler, president of the University, distributed the presents for each category: Nova University mugs for a fifth year anniversary; pewter engraved plates, "In Appreciation, Nova University" for a tenth anniversary; and Cross pens in holders with plaques for the fifteen year celebrants.

Along with the anniversary presentations, two other celebrations were held: Dr. Abraham Fischler received a crystal ball "better to be able to see the future of Nova University" in appreciation for his leadership from all the staff of Nova University; and Dennis Dannacher, National Chairman, Nova Alumni Annual Fund, gave plaques to all the Phonathon volunteers who participated in the 1985 Annual Fund raising.

Truly a delightful luncheon! Many thanks to its organizers, Sharon Fredda, Nancy Varner, Ines Calderon, and all the others who helped make it an unforgettable event.
Conferences and Meetings: A Report from the Oceanographic Center

Several of the faculty and staff members of the Oceanographic Center have recently attended or plan to attend scientific meetings and conferences. Their travels take them all the way from Pakistan to Hawaii.

Dr. Julian McCreary and Ms. Jan Witte: Honolulu, HI, August 11-15. U.S. TOGA (Tropical Oceans Global Atmosphere) Workshop on the Dynamics of the Equatorial Oceans. Ms. Witte is the Workshop Coordinator; Dr. McCreary is on the Workshop Organizing Committee and will present a paper entitled "Deep Equatorial Jets and Currents." While in Hawaii, Ms. Witte will also coordinate the US-Indo Science and Technology Initiative at the University of Hawaii.

Dr. Pijush Kundu: Baltimore, MD, May 19-23. Attending annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union; presented paper entitled "Inertial Oscillations Generated by Propagating Wind."

Dr. Curtis Burney: Providence, RI, June 23-25. Meeting of the American Society of Limnology and Oceanography (ASLO).

The Creative Arts Workshop Is Inaugurated at The University School of Nova University

Margaret Avery, Oscar nominee for Best Supporting Actress in The Color Purple, holding a gift from Nova University.

The University School and Nova University are pleased and proud to announce that the students in grades 8-12, as well as undergraduate and graduate students, are participating in the Creative Arts Workshop. The workshop, a university-wide effort to provide the students exposure to exceptional cultural opportunities, being coordinated by Sherri Poliakoff, of the parent volunteer group of The University School.

The Creative Arts Workshop represents a university-wide effort to utilize existing cultural resources to create a link between the creative community and the University.

In this workshop the students will not be passive participants. Instead, the realization will dawn that there is a fundamental relationship among all the artists they have seen: that the need for creative self-expression is an ongoing process and that the various styles they have witnessed are but the evolution of the specific medium that each artist has chosen to represent this need.

When the students realize that the dancers, poets, artists, musicians, composers, dramatists, and authors to which they are exposed are representing their creative energies in these various manners, they will perhaps be on their way to finding their own inherent energy.

Thus far, guests have included Douglas Campbell from the Canadian Shakespearean Festival, the Trisha Brown Dancers, and Margaret Avery, an Oscar nominee for best supporting actress in The Color Purple for 1985. Programs in the future will include visits to symphony and theatre rehearsals, to museums, and to artists' studios.

A captive audience listens as Campbell explains his portrayal of King Lear.

Dr. Joseph Randazzo, Headmaster of The University School, opened his lovely home for a reception for Ms. Avery after her appearance at the school.

Dr. Abraham Fischler and Mrs. Fischler with Ms. Avery.

Sherry Poliakoff, Coordinator of the Creative Arts Workshop, greets Margaret Avery.

Dr. Stephen Goldstein, Vice-President for University Relations and Development, congratulates Ms. Avery on her Academy Award nomination as best supporting actress for her role in the movie The Color Purple.

Mrs. Mary McCahill, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, receives a friendly hug from 'Shug.'
Nova University Takes Part in International Videoconference

Leading Journalists and Members of the Nova University Community Exchange Views

Students and special guests of Nova University joined leading journalists around the world on Saturday, April 26, 1986, in an international videoconference on world issues and media responsibility.

The videoconference, sponsored by the Christian Science Monitor, featured live transmission via satellite of panel discussions among leading journalists at three international sites, to Nova University and at least 200 other participating schools in the United States, Canada, Egypt, and the United Kingdom.

Discussions at each site focused on different topics. In Ditchley Park (London), the panelists discussed small wars and terrorism. Relationships between the superpowers were explored in Vienna, Austria. The topic in Kyoto, Japan, was sharing technology and understanding foreign cultures. Senior Monitor editors moderated the discussions from a television studio in Boston.

At the end of the videoconference broadcast, there was a brief panel discussion led by journalists in the area who discussed the press' approach in deciding what news to present to the public and how it should be presented. The panel was chaired by Carol Weber, Associate Publisher of The Miami Herald. Other members were Judy Wilson, editor of the Coral Springs Forum, Elaine Hume, Broward Bureau Chief for WPLG-Channel 10, and Kingsley Guy, editorial page editor for the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun Sentinel.

Law Center Sponsors Symposium on the War on Drugs

On Friday, April 18, Nova University Law Center sponsored a one day symposium on "The War on Drugs: In Search of a Breakthrough" at the Marriott Marina Hotel.

The purpose of the symposium, organized by Steven Wisotsky, Professor of Law at Nova University, was to seek an effective and principled response to the dual problems of drug abuse and drug trafficking.

The panel brought together a diversity of perspectives from medicine and psychiatry, law, philosophy, and law enforcement. The speakers included some of the nation's foremost scholars on drug control and others with important professional experience in the field.

Among them were Senator Jack D. Gordon who has been active in challenging existing drug control laws, and who delivered the luncheon address: "Political Perspectives on Drug Control."

The Panelists Included:
Lester Grinspoon, M.D., Associate Professor of Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School;
John Kaplan, Jackson Eli Reynolds Professor of Law, Stanford University;
Leon B. Kellner, U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Florida since 1985;
Mark Kleiman, Research Fellow, John F. Kennedy School of Government (Harvard);
David A. J. Richards, Professor of Law, New York University School of Law;
Thomas Szasz, M.D., Professor of Psychiatry, State University of New York, Upstate Medical Center, Syracuse;
Norman E. Zinberg, M.D., Clinical Professor of Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School.
Nova's Panama Center graduated the first doctor of public administration in 1984, and four more candidates for the D.P.A. are completing their study. Other programs include the popular bachelor of science degree in professional management, the master's in business administration, the master's in teaching English as a second language and in intensive English and Spanish programs.

Dr. Carol Crosswell secured $100,000.00 that was donated to the Panama Center making possible the opening of Panama's first microcomputer laboratory in March, 1986, at the University level. The facility has IBM equipment. The lab provides Nova's students in degree programs, as well as the general public, access to computer training.

Dr. Taylor plans to sponsor joint seminars and forums with the American Chamber of Commerce in Managing Stress (July, 1986) and Personal Security and Counter-Terrorism (October, 1986).

The Panama Center's enrollment has increased significantly over the past four years with annual registrations rising from 750 to more than 1000. The increase has prompted a search for more adequate facilities, perhaps a mini-campus by 1987.

Dr. Taylor attributes much of the success of the Panama Center to the support given by Nova's president Dr. Abraham Fischler, Dr. Ovid Lewis, and Mr. James Guerdon. He feels that the "gifts of time and patience" provided by the board of trustees and its Chairman Mrs. Mary McCahill, have allowed the center to develop and stabilize over the years.

In Panama, the Panama Center's Board of Advisors, includes leaders, besides Ambassador Bazan, of the calibre of Camilo Fabrega, vice-president of Eastern Airlines; Juan Sosa, chairman of the board of Air Panama; J.J. Vallarino III, vice-president of Coca-Cola; and Fernando Manfredo, deputy administrator of the Panama Counsel Commission.

Dr. Taylor welcomes inquiries from U.S. students about special study programs in the Spanish language and other fields related to Panama, Latin America, and the Caribbean.

Fort Lauderdale Oral School Named to Honor Ralph J. Baudhuin

By unanimous approval of the Board of Governors of the Fort Lauderdale Oral School of Nova University, the title of the School has been officially changed to the Ralph J. Baudhuin Oral School of Nova University. Mr. Baudhuin was on the board from 1964 until his recent death this year and was instrumental in effecting the successful merger with Nova University.

In a statement about the change, Jack L. LaBonte, Chairman of the Board, said, "We are proud and pleased to bestow this honor on Mr. Baudhuin whose contribution of more than $800,000, in the form of a charitable remainder trust, is the largest gift ever received by the Oral School."

Mr. Baudhuin was well-known throughout the community for his philanthropic endeavors. Currently, Mr. Baudhuin was Chairman Emeritus and Director of Valspar Corporation, Inc., one of the largest paint manufacturers in the nation, and Honorary Director of the Illinois National Bank & Trust Company. Formerly he was Director of Central Illinois Electric & Gas, Executive Trustee of Rockford College, and President of the National Paint & Coating Association. Originally Mr. Baudhuin was a resident of Rockford, Illinois. He and his wife Bernice had been residents of Florida for 15 years.

Ralph J. Baudhuin had received special recognition award from Nova University President Abraham S. Fischler and Oral School Chairman of the Board, Jack LaBonte.

Nova Briefs

THE SPEECH AND LANGUAGE PATHOLOGY PROGRAM IN THE BOOKS--Charles Logan in the master of science program had his article "Childhood Stuttering" published in the winter issue of Child Care and Education Magazine; and Mata B. Jaffe had a chapter entitled "Neurological Impairment of Speech Production: Assessment and Treatment" published in the Handbook of Speech and Language Disorders, a volume described by the best known authorities in the field as "THE source book on speech and language disorders."

AWARD--Dr. Robert Heppler, GEM curriculum supervisor for English programs, was awarded the annual scholarship for summer study in England by the Fort Lauderdale branch of the English-Speaking Union of the United States. He will spend three weeks at Cambridge University studying British approaches to teaching of language arts and two weeks examining diverse educational settings in England and Wales.

GUEST AT ROTARY CLUBS--Dr. Barbara Brodman, coordinator of Latin American and Caribbean Studies at Nova College, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club of Plantation in February. This was the second in a series of three presentations to area Rotary Clubs. Dr. Brodman discussed America's crisis in international competence and the certificate program at Nova College for studies in this area. She showed a student produced video of the 1985 Field Study in Mexico.

CORPORATE CLUSTERS--On March 25 and 27 the undergraduate cluster programs office opened two more corporate clusters--this time at AT&T in Orlando--bringing the total to eight new clusters started in fiscal year 85-86. Dr. Deborah Robin, director of the undergraduate cluster programs, reports that currently there are 24 undergraduate clusters operating throughout Florida providing working adults an opportunity to complete the bachelor of science in professional management degree with specialties in business, health care, and computer applications.

NEW APPOINTMENT--Nova College is capitalizing on the rich experience of Dr. Janet Travis by naming her to coordinate the undergraduate functions of admissions, recruitment, corporate services, counseling, testing, developmental services, Intensive English, student activities, and athletics. Dr. Travis has served as assistant commissioner for higher education in Pennsylvania, president of Mansfield State College, provost and professor of philosophy at Northern Kentucky University, and dean of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts at the University of Northern Iowa. Since March she has been serving in the dual capacity of acting director of Intensive English and director of student development at Nova College.

CHILD CARE ADMINISTRATION CONFERENCE--The master's program for child care administrators held its Seventh Annual Conference in Washington, D.C., on March 14 and 15. The keynote speaker was Commissioner Audrey Rowe of the Department of Human Services.Nova University speakers and workshop leaders included President Abraham Fischler, and CAE staff members Dr. Richard Goldman, Vera Flight, Dr. Abbey Manburg, Dr. Al Mizell, Norman Powell, and Dr. Mary Ellen Sapp.

IS PERCEPTION REALITY IN OUR SCHOOLS--On March 18, Dr. Cy Gruberg, career/counseling director at the Upper School of The University School, participated in a panel discussion on "Is Perception Reality in Our Schools." The program was sponsored by the Community Concerns Council of South Broward. Sharing the panel with Dr. Gruberg were Father Chris Conlon, principal of Chaminade High School of Hollywood and Ms. Betsey Bousfield, area superintendent of Broward County schools.

ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION--Dr. Philip DeTurk, Director of Nova College, recently gave the opening address at the Florida Academy for School Leadership Institute in Orlando. As well, he gave the presentation at the luncheon of the Florida Educational Research and Development Council in Tampa and participated in a panel at the Miami Business, Industry, Community, and Education (BICE) Conference.
THE MASTER'S PROGRAM IN SPEECH AND LANGUAGE PATHOLOGY CO-SPONSORS PROGRAM--
"Evaluation and Treatment of Swallowing Disorders I and II" was the name of the program that took place on the weekend of April 18-20. The featured speaker, Dr. Jeri Logemann of Northwestern University, spoke to 110 participants in five different health professions: speech-language pathologists, dieticians, occupational therapists, rehabilitation nurses, and physicians. Among the states represented were Florida, Louisiana, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Michigan, Kansas, and South Dakota.

DR. JOAN MIGNEREY PUBLISHES MANUAL--
Dr. Joan Mignerey, associate in practicums in the Ed. Leaders program, recently published Face to Face Communications, a manual on how to get the best out of your communications process. The manual was published by the Institute of Certified Professional Managers.

FROM THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL--
DR. JEROME CHERMAK, Director of the Middle School, was named to the Board of Directors of the Association of Independent Schools of Florida (AISF). As a board member of this prestigious organization, Dr. Chermak will have the opportunity to visit member schools throughout Florida. DR. ELOISE MCCOY, coordinator of the learning tutorial program, was recently appointed to the Broward County Commission on the Status of Women, a group that evaluates the needs of women in Broward County and initiates action for necessary changes.

NINE VISITORS FROM PENNSYLVANIA--
The University School hosted nine staff members from the Lower Dauphin school district in Hummelstown, Pennsylvania. The district sent these staff members to observe the techniques and innovative ideas taking place at The University School for possible implementation at their own schools in the north. It was a great experience for faculty members from both schools and an honor for The University School.

FINANCIAL AID WORKSHOP--The Nova College Admissions Office and the Office of Student Financial Planning and Resources sponsored a Financial Aid Workshop on March 20th: "Everything You Always Wanted to Know about Financial Aid, but Were Afraid to Ask." Enrolled students, prospective students, and University School parents and students attended. Financial Aid advisors and admissions counselors were available to explain and help complete forms. Both Ken Dose', director of admissions at Nova College and Judy Marty, director of the Office of Student Financial Planning and Resources expressed their confidence in the success of the workshop and said that it would become and annual event.

ALCOHOLISM AND DRUG ADDICTION WORKSHOP--
Sponsored by Nova University and Project Free Way, this all-day workshop held in April, featured such topics as "The Physical Causes of Addiction," "Prevention Programs in Schools," and "Help for the Family." Program participants included Nova staff members Dan Sullivan, Antonio Virsida, and William Grady Ryan. The keynote speaker was Congressman Larry Smith.

WINNER OF GOVERNOR'S SCRIPTWRITER CONTEST--
Ruth Lazarus, administrative officer of the Oceanographic Center, was one of the seven winners of the recent Second Annual Governor's Scriptwriter Contest. The competition was arranged by the Florida Motion Picture and Television Bureau and the Florida Institute for the Liberal Arts and Science (FILAS). Funding support came from the Florida Endowment for the Humanities. Along with the $500 award for her professionally judged script, Ruth also participated in a Governor's press conference at the front entrance to the Old Capitol building and a June 17-19 Los Angeles awards trip. The primary purpose of the trip is to expose the winning scriptwriters to the right people in the "industry."

MIAMI ADVICE--
Over 300 Florida financial aid administrators attended the Florida Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, Inc., Spring Conference at the Fountainbleu Hilton in Miami Beach. Judy Marty, Nova's Director of Student Financial Planning and Resources, was the program chair. Miami and Fort Lauderdale area post-secondary and lending institutions, including Nova University, Florida International University, University of Miami, and Centrust Savings Bank hosted the event. The conference theme, "Miami Advice," was especially timely in light of the need to keep abreast of the proposed changes to federal and state financial aid programs.
The University School of Nova University Selected as a Member of the Coalition of Essential Schools

The University School of Nova University is proud to announce that it has been selected, from among the 300 schools that applied, as a member of the Coalition of Essential Schools. The coalition is a group of schools whose plan is to implement the principles stated by Theodore Sizer in his book Horace's Compromise. Only 20 will eventually form the coalition. The University School is one of the ten independent schools nationwide and the only independent school in the southeastern U.S. to be accepted into this prestigious group of pace-setting schools.

According to Dr. Joseph Randazzo, headmaster, the case of The University School is different in that for the past 15 years The University School has, in effect, been slowly but precisely moving in the direction that Sizer's plan calls for. Says Randazzo, "Our school was created on these very same principles. Our role is to continue expanding into the program that has now become known as the Coalition of Essential Schools. For us it is the culmination of 15 years of dedicated work by our staff members."

In general, involvement in the program will mean concentration on the students' critical thinking skills, the methodology that is currently being used in the Astra and Mentorship Programs of The University School. This basic premise will define the four broad areas of the curriculum: inquiry and expression, mathematics and science, literature and the arts, and philosophy and history.

Students will graduate on "exhibitions of mastery" rather than just age grading. Their progress will be shaped around nine general principles: intellectual focus, simple goals, universal goals, personalization, student as a worker, diploma by exhibition, attitude, staff, and budget.

Sizer, who was dean of education at Harvard and is now a professor at Brown University, says that his ideas are not radical. "My principle guideline is the student as a worker. If they are told something, they forget it. If they do something, they remember it." His report was co-sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and the National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS).

For The University School, whose Upper School will be moving into a new building next fall, acceptance into the Coalition of Essential Schools means a reaffirmation of the values that have traditionally been and will continue to be an integral aspect of the school. Dr. Abraham Fischler, president of Nova University states, "Our goal is to provide and improve education in a way that will present students the opportunity to maximize their potential and enhance the productivity of their adult lives."

Ground Breaking Ceremonies at The University School of Nova University

From left to right, Dr. Joseph Randazzo, Headmaster of The University School; Dr. Abraham Fischler, President of Nova University; Dr. Marilyn Segal, Director of the Mailman Family Center; Mr. Pat Serafino, Chairman, Board of Governors, University School; and Mr. Kenneth Weil, member of the Board of Governors, after the "Turning a Shovel for the Future" ceremony.

Ground breaking ceremonies for the Joe Sonken Upper School Building of The University School were held on Friday, February 3. After a brief welcome by Dr. Joseph Randazzo, Headmaster of The University School, and remarks by Mrs. Mary McCahill, Chairman of the Nova University Board of Trustees; Dr. Abraham Fischler, President of Nova University; and Mr. Pat Serafino, Chairman, Board of Governors, University School, the "Turning a Shovel for the Future" ceremony took place.

The above marks the combined effort of a dedicated, persevering, and hardworking Board of Governors of The University School. The new building will provide the much needed room for an ever-expanding grades 7-12 as The University School of Nova University continues its development as one of the most outstanding private educational institutions in Broward County.

Middle-School Students Go To Court

From Fort Lauderdale News and Sun Sentinel - April, 1986

Janet Long, an eighth-grader at Rogers Middle School, has had her day in court. But Long wasn't a defendant, she was one of the "lawyers" participating in the first Mock Trial Competition for middle school students organized by the Street Law Program of Nova's center for the Study of Law.

"I like cross-examination best because it's easier," said Long, 13. "There's a time discrepancy in one of the witnesses' statements so somebody is lying," she said, obviously relishing the thought of a breakdown similar to one Perry Mason would bring to an unfortunate witness.

The two-day competition, held in April, brought civics students from Bair, Sunrise, and Hebrew Day School in Miami into a courtroom at the Nova Law Center.

The mock trial competitions, which have been held for high school students since 1982, were tested for the first time this year in middle schools. Nova law students are required to spend three hours per week for one semester in participating schools as part of the street-law course taught by Peter Skolnik. "There is a feeling that legal education should start earlier, and this is one of the few programs in the county that addresses that need," said Skolnik, who directs the program.

The students were judged on procedures, rules, statements of fact, opening and closing arguments, and poise, said Steve Hoffman, a Rogers civics teacher. Points were based on how students performed and judges were law professionals from throughout Broward County, he said.

Students themselves made up the jury and acted as bailiffs, witnesses, and spectators. "It's a true hands-on learning experience for the students," said Hoffman. "They are learning the system and rules of the game."

The winning team was awarded a certificate, but the most valuable aspect of the competition was the participation. "Win, lose, or draw," said Hoffman, "you can't beat the experience."

The American Psychological Association Awards Full Accreditation To Nova University's Psy.D. Program

At the 1986 annual meeting of the American Psychological Association, the Association's Committee on Accreditation awarded full accreditation for a five-year period to the doctor of psychology (Psy.D.) program in clinical psychology at Nova University. Along with other accredited programs of professional psychology, Nova's program is listed in the Association's American Psychologist publication.

The Committee on Accreditation commended the program's efforts to achieve greater gender and ethnic diversity among faculty and students, coupled with careful attention to curriculum issues of diversity as well. It also noted the high professional quality of the faculty, with several faculty members being distinguished by the American Board of Professional Psychology diploma.

The Ph.D. program in clinical psychology has been accredited by the American Psychological Association for the past ten years.
