Madeline Penna Speaks Candidly About S.C.O.R.E.

by Richard Deutsch
Contributing Writer

A visit with Madeline Haug Penna, the coordinator of the S.C.O.R.E. program, proved very informative. The interview was based on what S.C.O.R.E. (service for the community, opportunity, responsibility and excellent for students) does with its students.

In accordance with the State of Florida, S.C.O.R.E. is a program that provides grants to first year undergraduates who are entering Nova Southeastern University College of Professional and Liberal Studies in exchange for their commitment to leadership and community service.

Students have to comply with S.C.O.R.E.'s requirements. First, they must have a minimum current GPA of 2.0 and a cumulative GPA of 2.25. Second, they must complete a minimum of nine hours of community service per month. In addition, they are required to take the CLAST and write monthly essays based on their involvement in the community. Finally, they attend mandatory monthly meetings.

S.C.O.R.E. provides various types of special projects, such as a civic participation teleconference which takes place in the Mailman Auditorium in October.

"The S.C.O.R.E. students are expected to attend that because it's something they should be interested in as part of grant requirements and being part of the program," said Ms. Penna.

Despite their conformity with S.C.O.R.E. requirements, some students find community service very difficult. By working full-time, some students find nine hours of community service very difficult.

"They're having a hard time," said Ms. Penna.

Lady Knights Go Four it All

by Dan Jillman
Sports Editor

With a quick flurry at the beginning of the season, the Nova Southeastern University Lady Knights volleyball squad has thrown down the gauntlet to all rivals in their quest for an amazing fourth straight Florida Sun Conference championship. Sporting a record of 15-3, the Lady Knights have only dropped one conference match, that being to St. Thomas University on September 26.

Led by second-year head coach Joanna Sahm, the team had to undergo a major facelift following the graduation of perennial stars Anni Palacio, Thelma White, and Leslie Romero, and the departure of Lisa Box. To fill in the holes, Sahm went to the recruiting wars and lured away four potential superstars in Skye Miles, Katie Banks, Heather Jay, and Michelle Mertens. Each acquisition has paid huge dividends with their scrappy, never-say-die attitude on the court.

Jay and Mertens, two junior transfers, have been simply exceptional. The diminutive setter has controlled the tempo of the Lady Knights' potent offense with her poise and proficient passing ability, while Mertens' strength and accuracy from the outside provides Coach
Postdoctoral Fellowships Available to Minorities

Press Release

The National Research Council plans to award approximately 20 Ford Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities in a program designed to provide a year of continued study and research for Native American Indians, Alaskan Natives (Eskimo or Aleut), Black/African Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanos, Native Pacific Islanders (Micronesians or Polynesians), and Puerto Ricans. In a national competition, Fellows will be selected from among recent doctoral recipients who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education.

This fellowship program, sponsored by the Ford Foundation, is open to citizens of the United States who are members of the designated minority groups, who are engaged in a teaching and research career, and who have held the PhD or ScD for not more than seven years.

Awards in the Ford Foundation PostDoctoral Fellowships for Minorities Program will be made in the behavioral and social sciences, humanities, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, and life sciences, or for interdisciplinary programs composed of two or more eligible disciplines.

Awards will not be made in professions such as medicine, law, public health, nursing, social work, library science, and in areas related to business, administration, management, fine arts, performing arts, health sciences, home economics, speech pathology, audiology, personnel, guidance, and education.

Each Fellow selects an appropriate not-for-profit institution of higher education or research to serve as host for the year of postdoctoral research. Appropriate institutions include universities, museums, libraries, government or national laboratories, private sponsored not-for-profit institutions, government chartered not-for-profit research organizations, and centers for advanced study.

The deadline for submission of applications is January 3, 1997. Address all inquiries concerning application and materials and program administration to the Fellowship Office, TJ 2039, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20418. You may also address inquiries to (infofell@nas.edu) or (http://fellows.nas.edu).
S.G.A. Updates
by Jason Gavril
SGA Secretary

Dear Fellow Students,

It is my pleasure to address all of you for the first time. I am currently serving as the S.G.A. secretary. One of my many duties as the Secretary is to build the S.G.A. web page and keep it up to date. Though I did most of the work building the home page, Nick Catalfo, assistant web master, helped. The web page is currently under construction, but can be visited at http://www.nova.edu/cwi/sga.

If you are so inclined to visit our web page, you will find many interesting items ranging from the Nova College Student Government Association Constitution to the minutes from the last meeting. Our web page features information on all of the clubs and organizations on campus, the minutes from all of our general meetings, the job descriptions on all of the S.G.A. officers as well as a brief biography and picture of them. We also have a inspirational message of the week meant to lift the spirits of the hearted. When this page is complete, we will have links from the NSU home page to our page, as well as links to other student government pages. We also have an email address on the page for any question or concerns you may have. Please feel free to use this, we respond to every message personally. I will continue to update you, the student, on our web page as changes occur.

Homecoming is just around the corner. The S.G.A. is sponsoring the “Anything That Floats” race. This will be held on October 4, from 5:00-7:30. Everybody is encouraged to come out and support the S.G.A. as well as the many clubs and organizations participating in the race. The dance, which has been themed “Operation: Midnight Rendezvous,” is being held at Rolling Hills Golf Resort. It will be on Saturday, October 5 from 9:30pm-2:00am. Tickets are currently being sold at the office of Student Life for $15 per person. Tickets will also be sold at the door for $20 a person. You are all encouraged to come out and enjoy the fun and exciting event.

Sincerely,

Jason M. Gavril

Newspapers Hit the Web

by Nathan Burgess
Editor-in-Chief

A common problem among students is how to get the world news. Standard news broadcasts do not always comply with the average college student’s schedule. On-campus students have the added problem that newspapers will not deliver directly to residence hall rooms.

Alas, what to do? Many simply disregard the news as unimportant or uninteresting. Others drive daily to convenience stores to buy a copy in hope that the store will still have newspapers remaining.

However, there is an alternative. This alternative fits within a student’s strict budget and even allows those who miss their hometown paper to remain informed of hometown news.

The alternative, if you haven’t already guessed, is The World Wide Web. The Web has given newspapers the chance to expand their horizons, readership, and advertising possibilities.

Everything from The Chronicle of Higher Education to the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Sun Times (of Siskel & Ebert fame) has found its place on the web.

The following are some links where you can begin your search for your ultimate source of news, day or night:

Chronicle of Higher Education: Unfortunately, The Chronicle doesn’t print the full story on the Web, for non subscribers as it does in its printed version. However, it’s still worth a surf: <http://www.chronicle.com>.

USA Today: Updated more often than the printed version, USA Today uses its website to the utmost. It’s definitely worth a look, if not a bookmark: <http://www.usatoday.com>.

Sun-Sentinel/XS Online: This site is really only XS Online. But since the Sentinel owns XS, and both publications are marketed in more than one other website together, they are included as one. For all you XS readers out there, here it is for you on the net for free: <http://www.xso.com>.

WINDS (The World Internet News Distribution Source): This site offers a fresh perspective on the news. Many interesting items you wouldn’t hear about normally are offered at WINDS. Worth at least a quick look though: <http://www.thewinds.org>.

Reuters: For those of you who are not familiar with Reuters, they are similar to the Associated Press, but have less of an “Americanized” twist. This site is certainly worth checking out: <http://pathfinder.com/news/latest>.

List: This final site is, by their own claims, the largest collection of online newspapers. This truly is a valuable source to find the right newspaper for you. A must see: <http://freenet.msp.mn.us/people/trasstw/newspaper.html>.

The Fix is Out

by Dan Illman
Sports Editor

Tyson KO 1. That's how the record book will showcase the latest black eye on the face of professional boxing. Less than three minutes of "Iron" Mike Tyson predictably pummeling an obviously overmatched Bruce Seldon flashed across your television screens. Was it worth the fifty bucks or so that you forked over for the privilege of watching this plethora of hard-hitting action? Tyson KO 1. Face it people. You were duped again.

Why do knowledgeable sports fans support such rubbish? Do they enjoy grumbling amidst themselves at the local watering hole the day after these debacles? "Fix, fix, fix," and "Never again" are among the cries of indignation spewed forth by these poor suckers. Yet three months later, we see them bolted to their sofas, hypnotized by the hyperbole surrounding the latest "Must-see Fight of the Century."

Is it the yearning for the macabre that drives these people to watch? If so, then these despicable creatures were denied their thirst for blood. Did anyone see the blow that sent Seldon reeling like a souped-up wino after last call? Despite Don King's claims to the contrary, Tyson-Seldon wasn't going to be an athletic contest. This wasn't Ali-Frazier. It wasn't even Ali-Mildenberger. It was a pitbull against a poodle, a grizzly bear versus a kitten, the Big Bad Wolf against Chicken Little. This couldn't be "The Sweet Science" of boxing. It looked more like two chemicals thrown together by a mischievous thirteen-year old. The result seemed clear on paper. Nostradamus' scrolls didn't need to be consulted to formulate an opinion on who would emerge victorious.

Aren't fans annoyed enough by the outlandish salaries these pugilists receive? Bruce Seldon saw a few million bones thrown his way in his tribute to the movie, Fear Strikes Out. The pay-per-view audience lost money when they were caught looking. Give me a few million, and I'll actually let Tyson hit me. Once.

Could it be that viewers tune in for the chance to root for the underdog? I'd say that this reason is the most likely. Yet time and time again we cheer for the little guy, only to see the fruits of his labor plucked away by an unpopular decision. Just look at Chavez-Randall II, Louis-Walcott I, every Jorge Paez fight. It makes one wonder if these and countless other bouts are predetermined like the extravaganzas thrown by the World Wrestling Federation. Wanna root for the underdog? Watch "Rocky," or "Rudy." You're guaranteed at least two hours of action for the price of a movie rental.

Don King is laughing at you all the way to the bank. This is your last opportunity, true believers. Tyson KO 1. You already have enough "Iron" in your system.

Too Early to Tell in the NFL

by Patrick Smith

Welcome sports fans to Super Bowl XXXI. Today should be an exciting matchup between two undefeated teams: The Carolina Panthers and the Indianapolis Colts. The upstart Panthers overcame the Minnesota Vikings in the NFC Championship game to get here today, while the Colts defeated the Kansas City Chiefs in another amazing fourth quarter comeback to win the AFC crown.

For those of you who are actually dreaming of this outcome after only the first four weeks of the season, I quote that great football philosopher Troy Aikman, who said, "GET REAL." While the Panthers and Colts have been impressive up to this point, to say they are Super Bowl bound is premature.

The Carolina Panthers are a great second-year team. They have good coaching, a consistent offense, and a solid defense. Last week against the San Francisco Forty-Niners, they showed that they are not a team to be taken lightly. The Panther offense showed a consistency that we have come to expect from the Niners, and their defense outplayed last year's number one rated defense, with former Niner Eric Davis shutting down Jerry Rice. On the surface, one could make a plausible argument that the Panthers have the Niners' number. This might be a premature statement. The Panthers and Forty-Niners have only met three times with Carolina winning two.

While this is an impressive feat, it does not qualify them as owning the Niners. The Forty-Niners traditionally see THE page 11...
Video Pick: The Rock

by David Cooke, Contributing Writer

Action movies of the past few years such as Die Hard, Speed and Mission Impossible have centered around the principle that 'everything blows up real good.' Although The Rock, starring Sean Connery and Nicolas Cage, shares this trendy quality, it does stand out as a more original action movie.

The movie opens with ex-Marine General Francis X Hummel (Ed Harris) holding 81 tourists hostage in Alcatraz and demanding $100 million dollars for their release. If his demands aren’t met, he threatens to fire missiles into the populated area of the San Francisco Bay.

Owing to the circumstances of having to rescue 81 hostages and defuse 15 missiles without anyone being killed, the FBI forms an elite SEAL team. This team consists of Stanley Goodspeed (Nicolas Cage), one of the best chemical warfare technicians in the country, and John Patrick Mason (Sean Connery), a former escapee of Alcatraz.

The narrative of The Rock was fairly original compared to most of the recent terrorist-type action movies. In most terrorist movies the terrorists are foreigners. But in The Rock, the terrorists are radical domestic ex-Marines. This native terrorism indicates that the terrorists may have had a more rational reason behind their rebellion than just insanity.

The Rock was not more of an original action movie only in its storyline, but also in its use of editing. For example, the SEAL team’s entrance into Alcatraz was through the tunnels and sewers underneath Hummel’s position. This signified the FBI’s inferior position to Hummel at that time.

Another creative piece of editing occurred when the SEAL team came through a manhole to the surprise of Hummel and his mercenaries perched high in their positions. They were in the superior position and the SEAL team was at their mercy. This was significant to the relationship between Hummel and the FBI, where Hummel was calling the shots and the FBI, feeling helpless, was taking his orders.

The Rock possessed one more factor that the other movies didn’t: the chemistry of Connery and Cage. Throughout the movie, Connery and Cage took turns wanting to kill each other and also took turns saving each other’s lives. They made the serious, fun and the intense, comical. The charisma and class of Connery and Cage transformed this trendy action movie into something very worthwhile to see.

The Rock has it all: action, suspense, explosions, gun-fights, humor and even a little romance. Because of its storyline, editing and the chemistry of Connery and Cage, The Rock stands out as superior compared to action movies of the last few years.
VOLLEYBALL TEAM LOOKS FOR ANOTHER FSC TITLE

from the cover

Sahm with another deadly weapon in her already-stacked arsenal. Mixing in these fresh elements with All-Conference scoring machines, junior Sherri Waddell and senior Vanessa Gutierrez has given the Lady Knights a winning formula for hard-hitting, smash-mouth volleyball.

Miles, another junior transfer, gives all-important depth with her middle-blocking skills, and is often shuffled in-and-out of the lineup with defensive specialist Andrea Solheim, a sophomore from Lake Worth, Florida. Banks, the lone freshman, shows considerable promise on defense, and in the passing game.

After winning their first three matches at home, the Lady Knights dropped their next two contests against Florida Tech and the University of N. Florida. The latter defeat was marred by the injury of Vanessa Gutierrez with a severely sprained ankle. Gutierrez, the archetypal of the all-around player, was relegated to crutches for most of the next week, but returned to help spark the Lady Knights versus previously undefeated rival Embry Riddle-Aeronautical University. The Lady Eagles, who entered with a record of 8-0, were mesmerized by the all-around effort from Nova Southeastern.

Gutierrez, showing extreme toughness, played in digs, kills, and block assists, and was too tough to contain from her outside hitting position. Jay offered up thirty-five assists, marking the “Twin Towers” of Mertens and Waddell, who combined for twenty-one kills, nineteen digs, and four blocks. Banks offered three service aces. In the surprisingly easy 15-7, 15-11, 15-7 victory, the Lady Knight defense took away Embry-Riddle’s major offensive weapon in Senia McIntyre, who became invisible for most of the contest. “Consistency wins ballgames,” Sahm exclaimed afterwards. “We were consistent tonight.”

Brimming with confidence, Nova Southeastern consistently dominated their next six matches, winning the next eighteen ballgames to improve their record to 10-2, 6-0 in the FSC. The complete game of the Knights shone through during this stretch, with Jay deftly setting up Mertens and Gutierrez from the outside, as Waddell continued to dominate play in the middle.

If one blinked, it would not be difficult to miss a whole match during the winning streak, as Flagler, Lynn, and Warner Southern each fell in less than an hour. Waddell’s ten winners sparked the Lady Knights versus Lynn, and Mertens’ ten kills led to the defeat of Warner Southern.

Perhaps the best effort of the season came on the road versus Palm Beach Atlantic. Winning in three convincing games, (15-4, 15-5, 15-13) the Lady Knights were the picture of smoothness. Waddell was brilliant, amassing thirty-nine assists, while Gutierrez, Mertens and Waddell combined for thirty-seven kills. Banks added fifteen digs, and Solheim produced thirteen in the victory.

But all good things must come to an end. Conference foe St. Thomas rolled into town, and upended Nova Southeastern before the home crowd at the BCC George M. Mayer Gymnasium by scores of 15-11, 15-4, 15-9. The visitors (10-2, 7-0) looked extremely tough in wresting the conference lead away from the Lady Knights. Rita Gallo had sixteen kills for the Lady Bobcats.

But the mark of an excellent team is how well it responds to adversity. Traveling to West Palm Beach to compete in the Palm Beach Atlantic Fall Classic, Sahm’s charges hammered Clearwater Christian to advance to the semifinals. Jay deposited forty-five assists, while Gutierrez and Mertens combined for twenty-nine kills and forty-five digs. In the semifinals, the Lady Knights destroyed Palm Beach Atlantic to set up the rematch with Clearwater in the final. After dropping the first game, the Lady Knights would not be denied in their comeback. Jay’s fifty-three assists proved too much for Clearwater Christian (22-2). Mertens had twenty-two kills, and twenty-two assists, Waddell threw down thirteen kills, and Gutierrez tallied twenty winners. All three were named to the All-Tournament team.

The Lady Knights have three more home contests this season, hosting Webber College on October 11, Warner Southern the following afternoon, and Palm Beach Atlantic on October 22. In the midst of a pennant race with St. Thomas, continued intensity, hunger and consistency will be the keys to victory for Nova Southeastern.

Correction to Issues 2 and 4

The Editors of The Knight would like to take this time to correct two unfortunate errors in our publication process. The first error was in Issue #2 in the article, “Dive-in Movie: A Splash,” in which there was no cash bar, or hamburgers as listed in the story.

The second error was in Issue #4, on the cover, in the article entitled, “The Bookstore Controversy.” The correct books, and total should have been as follows:

Think you know football?

In the October 17, 1994 issue of The Knight, I issued a daring challenge to the Nova Southeastern University community. Trying to break the bonds of lethargy on campus, I encouraged all students and faculty to enter an NFL handicapping contest sponsored by this paper. The turnout was disappointing to say the least. We received four entrants with an entrance fee. After Super Bowl XXXI, the student, faculty or administration member with the highest winning percentage against the point spreads posted by the NFL expert, Patrick Smith, and myself will be featured in The Knight. If by some chance, a tie occurs, it will be broken in the following order:

1. Most winners picked in a single week.
2. Most underdogs selected.
3. Player whose last name begins with the letter “I”. (Hey, I’m biased.)

Good luck to all, and may your field goals be straight and true.
"I" Creator Speaks Out

by Nick Moore
Assistant Layout Editor

Allow me to welcome you to the greatest enigma of school newspaper comic strips ever known to mankind: "I". The strip is a tale of conquests both national and sexual and of things that shouldn't be but are anyway. But it's basically a tale where, as one of the characters put it so succinctly, "power dreams, petty squabbles, and sexual fantasies come to life."

Quite a bit of you have come to me asking, "Nick, what happened last year? I'm confused with this story." A large portion of you have also come up to me and gone, "What are you smoking? I gotta get some of that!" Well, I will tell you what everything is about in two or three issues of this fine newspaper.

The premise is (and you psychology students can pipe in at any time) that Thomas Ratskull, last year at age 18, wakes up in the collective human subconscious (mainly the id or "I"). Everything seems normal until he reaches the city of women, Valhalla. The strip chronicles his adventures in this world with a banished Valkyr named Vesta Elrohir.

I feel, although it will be touched up later in the strip, that I should mention briefly the history of the "I." So here it is.

Three thousand years ago, a political correctness movement, much like ours, occurred in the Elven homelands. The women got fanatical with their newly-given rights, and uprisings started the unrest. Eventually, a gender civil war wiped out many on both sides, and the males won. Those brought to trial and who apologized were kept in the homelands; the rest were banished forever.

The women roamed the "I" for years, creating children along the way by raping the men for sperm. About two-hundred years after the war, they built a city and named it Valhalla after the Nordic city of female warriors. They also continued the Nordic tradition and called themselves Valkyrs. These athletic but deadly beauties honed their swordsmanship and not too long afterwards started attacking nearby provinces.

First fell Loeb Forest, then the Sandman's Dream desert. Conquest after conquest, the Valkyrs rolled along like an unstoppable juggernaut. Eventually, the only province standing in their way of total domination was, naturally, the Elven homelands.

The battle went on for years, neither side giving an inch. During a slow time, the Valkyrian leader, Helios Nefara, went to the Elven Council to try and create a truce. However, she was killed outright. This caused the entire female army to go into a berserk fury and slaughter the Elves. The war ended with that move and the male Elves were considered sex slaves while the female Elves had a lower status than the males.

So, this remained the status quo for three thousand years. Next issue: the story of last year's "I".

The Super Bowl isn’t Played in Four Weeks

As for their victories in games one and two, they beat two teams that are currently winless. In a combined seven losses, these teams have given up a total of 192 points. Bad Atlanta plays the run-and-shoot on offense and the HIT AND MISS on defense. The Falcons are a team struggling to find its team and this will pay big dividends for the Forty-Niners. The Aints are said to be a team in transition. Most analysts starting about running the ball to Tony Bennett and Ellis Johnson, linebacker Trev Alberts, and running back Marshall Faulk. The Colts play well together as a team and will pay big dividends in the playoffs. They have several role players who do their job. The defense is steady and does not give up the big play. This means that the Colts are always in a game until the end. The Colts are off to a great start and should be proud of what they have accomplished. However, if we look closely at their first four games, we might have to question whether their fantastic start spells out S-U-P-E-R-B-O-W-L.

Game one was against those terror of the desert, the Arizona Cardinals. The Cardinals are a team starting over again. With a new coach and many players who are past their prime, this team could not have been considered a threat to the young Colts. A Cardinal win would have been a major upset. The Colts then went on to defeat the New York Jets, arguably the worst team in football.

Playing the defending Super Bowl Champions was going to be the Colts’ first major test. They went into Dallas with nothing to lose and everything to gain. The reality of the situation was that Dallas was missing Michael Irvin and Jay Novacek. All-Pro Emmit Smith, Darryl Johnston, Mark Tuinei, Erik Williams, Charles Haley, and Leon Lett were also listed as having injuries that would limit their playing time. The Colts knew that they had a prime opportunity to come away with a victory in Dallas.

Finally, we come to the big showdown against Jimmy Johnson’s Dolphins on a Monday night. Again, everyone said that this was a real test for the Colts. It was claimed that “the Dolphins have a running game, Dan Marino, and an attacking, never-say-die defense.”

The running game has not really been that great. It came up big for two reasons. First, the Dolphins played the Patriots, Cardinals, and Jets. The Patriots’ front line is not considered that good and Johnson had all preseason to work out a game plan to defeat them. The Cardinals and Jets had several key injuries to their front lines. Both teams are read-and-react defenses which will give up yardage on the ground to prevent giving up the big play. Second, the threat of Dan Marino was always on their mind. Most teams develop game plans to combat their opponents’ most lethal weapon. This meant that these teams had to worry about the pass first and the run second. The linebackers played back for pass coverage, allowing for wider running lanes. Against the Colts, Dan Marino was hurt on the Dolphins’ first possession. He did not return after that series. This meant that the Colts could focus on the running game. The only thing the Dolphins had going for them was their defense. By allowing the Colts only ten points, the defense did their job.

The Colts should make it to the playoffs again this year. A team needs a certain amount of luck in a sixteen game schedule, but luck is fickle, and can turn at a moment’s notice. Luck usually does not equal a Super Bowl team. The Colts have a tough second half schedule against teams that should be hitting their stride in November. Look for the Bills, Chargers, Eagles, and Chiefs to put them to the test.
Purpose of S.C.O.R.E. Program

working full-time, they're attending school full-time and trying to fit their service activities in. It can be really difficult."

Despite 80 students in its program, S.C.O.R.E. did not admit any freshman this fall. The students who want to receive grants are concerned about S.C.O.R.E.'s decision.

"It's just the nature of the way the funding comes in from the state and the time of the year which the funding comes in."

However, Mrs. Penna said that S.C.O.R.E. will accept approximately 27 new student in next fall.

The S.C.O.R.E. program expects that students view community service as a responsibility of all citizens. The program hopes to make students independent decision-makers in the future.

"S.C.O.R.E. stands for service to the community. And that's our goal. That we try to perform services that are going to meet community needs," Mrs. Penna concluded.

Consequently, S.C.O.R.E. offers students a wide choice of meaningful community service opportunities.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

Can't afford to save for retirement? The truth is, you can't afford not to. Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning.

By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: Set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $172,109 by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $219 each month to reach the same goal.

Even if you're not counting the years to retirement, you can count on TIAA-CREF to help you build the future you deserve— with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over 1.8 million people in education and research put TIAA-CREF at the top of their list for retirement planning. Why not join them?
