Laughs Ensue at The Flight Deck Follies

by Alyson M. Dion
Campus Life Editor

With the dudes in drag, the women took center stage at The Second Annual Flight Deck Follies on Friday, March 26, sponsored by The Flight Deck and the Women's Resource Institute. Ten of Nova's bravest male students and staff donned women's clothing to participate in the Possum Queen contest. The men, including Mike Gabel, Rob Reyes, Roger Roa, Brad Kazynski, Ricardo Arriaza, Troy Railsback, Shawn Mostal and Francisco Gonzalez, participated in two main categories in this event: evening dress and talent competition. Amazingly enough, most of the men appeared rather comfortable with their feminine side.

Editor in Chief

Ed Fry, the Education Chairman for Pre-Med Society, was elected as National Associate Trustee for pre-med regions 5 and 1 [a total of 6 states]. Ed competed against 20 candidates for nine positions. This happened at the National Convention for the American Medical Student Association (AMSA), which took place from March 12-15 in Chicago. Furthermore, Ed Fry served in different committees during the convention (Pre-Med Committee, Humanistic Medicine Committee). NSU Pre-med society did a presentation on Basic Life Support (BLS) and a poster session. NSU Pre-med was runner up in Community Health for their BLS presentation, the only undergraduate submission.
HEAL Gets a New Name

by Kai Thorup
Contributing Writer

The AIDS organization, HEAL (Health Education AIDS Liaison), that sprung up a little over two years ago at NSU and has been challenging the HIV/AIDS theory ever since, is going through changes.

Among these is a change of name. It will now be called Students Re-appraising AIDS (SRA) and work as a division of the new organization Alive & Well, Alternative AIDS Information Network. SRA's goal is to actively campaign other university and college campuses to raise awareness of the AIDS controversy and encourage students to challenge the HIV/AIDS theory by starting other SRA chapters around the country.

The recent lecture by Dr. Kary Mullis, 1993 Nobel Prize winner for chemistry, has generated interest among students at Broward Community College, Florida International University and Florida Atlantic University where the next three SRA chapters are currently forming. There has also been interest from the University of Miami, Georgetown University, Basta University, SUNY-Purchase, Florida State University and Yale.

Alive & Well is the newest alternative AIDS organization joining the ranks of HEAL, the Group for the Scientific Reappraisal of the HIV/AIDS Hypothesis, COBRA (Spain), ACT UP and others. Spearheading the project is Christine Maggiore, Director of HEAL Los Angeles, and Kai Thorup, Director of HEAL Fort Lauderdale and founder of HEAL at NSU.

As directors of two of the most active HEAL chapters, Maggiore and Thorup have developed a strong working relationship and made the choice to break away from HEAL in March.

Christine Maggiore explains the decision, "all HEAL chapters are separate, independent organizations that share only a common name and some similar goals. Since our goals and our approaches to meeting them differ enough from that of HEAL's founding chapter in New York, we elected to express this difference openly and celebrate our independence with a change in name."

In addition to SRA, other divisions of Alive & Well will include M.O.M.M. (Mothers Opposing Mandatory Medicine), a project to develop cable access television shows reaching audiences in rural areas and a media response center that will work closely with "The Group," a band of several thousand scientists, journalists and physicians who challenge the HIV/AIDS hypothesis.

Another newly formed organization, the International Coalition for Medical Justice (ICMJ), will be working with Alive & Well and the other alternative AIDS groups to raise funds for the various projects. This year's goal was to raise $500,000 with a two-year goal of $2 million. In just two months, ICMJ had already raised over $400,000.

With everything that is going on, some things have remained the same. For example, SRA is still the only student club at NSU with a Nobel Prize winner on its scientific advisory board. In fact, SRA retained its entire advisory board in the transition from HEAL. Other advisors include Dr. Peter Duesberg, a Nobel-nominated member of the National Academy of Sciences and discoverer of oncogenes; Dr. David Rasnick, developer of 15 protease inhibitors; Dr. Charles Thomas, (ret.) professor of biophysics at Harvard Medical school and Johns Hopkins and Peggy O'Mara, editor and publisher of Mothering Magazine to name just a few.

Students who want to get involved in SRA should call (954) 382-9995 or send an email to kai@thorup.com. Also, meetings are held each Thursday night at 6:00 PM in the Flight Deck.

A Big Waste of Time

by Hunter Wooleyhan
SGA Editor

I went to the last student government meeting on Sunday March 20th. I walked in and only four senators were there. Great, I thought. I had rushed over to The Flight Deck to get something to write about and this is what happens. The meeting was adjourned within 2 minutes because of the lack of representatives. I sighed heavily, I needed the election results but they were nowhere to be found because the person who was supposed to read off the results did not show up. I was informed that the Vision team apparently prevailed after many rigorous hours of campaigning. I am trying to get a word with the new president elect Erik "Enis" Challew, but more on that later. I was thinking all this when suddenly the meeting was reopened to discuss the absences of all the senators. All the senators voiced their opinion that they were upset with the way things have been going recently and this was a perfect example. It was alleged that many of the senators now just do it to get their Free Nova Bucks. One senator even broke into a profane dialogue when trying to explain his point. The topper of all this was when one senator exclaimed loud and clear that this whole thing has been a waste of time. He promised for an intact government next term. I even had a chance to voice my opinion when the chair turned to me and asked if I had anything to add. Yeah, umm...This is not helping with the newspaper much. I mean what is the point of me being here, there's nothing to cover I said. They all agreed and a movement was made to fine certain senators for not being their but this was thrown out. The meeting was then adjourned until next Sunday.

Well, Nova's student government has practically run itself in to the ground. The senators never seem to have anything to report and see S.G.A. on page 18.

Thank You

by Earnest DeFalco
Contributing Writer

Theta Delta Chi was the biggest and best fraternity on Nova’s Campus. Then for some unknown reason, things came to a screeching halt. It got so bad, it was almost time for the Founding Fathers to pack it up and enjoy the memories. However, just before that happened, one of the best things that ever happened to this organization occurred. We met this student who had been living across the hall from me for about two weeks. That student was Charlie Miller.

Charlie Miller was a decent guy, made us laugh, and seemed to have a fire in him. So, as a group, rather than pack it up, we decided to place our Fraternity’s Existence in the hands of this individual. He went through his pledge class all by himself, and all we basically told him was, “This is YOUR Fraternity now, you will run it however you wish.” With most of us graduating, we left Charlie in a tough spot. He really did not know what to do and had to figure it out on his own. That is a lot for one man to handle, many would have not even taken that kind of responsibility. However, we are grateful he did. After some mistakes large and small, one day it all came together for Charlie.

That is what this letter is about. This is a thank you from me, Earnest DeFalco a Founding Father of our Charge, to you, Charlie Miller. I thank you on behalf of every other Founding Father, as well as any member that has worn the letters Theta Delta Chi on their chests. You were able to revive the Fraternity we built, and for that we are forever in debt to you. People may not realize the kind of effort you put forth over the last couple of years, not even maybe your own Brothers. After all, they were not here for all of your tenure. They were not here when you were doing it all on your own. They were not aware on how hard you were working on trying to recruit them. I will never forget the day you told me that you were going to take this fraternity over, well you did, and I am happy for it. Because of your hard work then, you have made things easier on the charge now.

Over the last couple of years, I have watched Charlie make sacrifice after sacrifice both in his academic and personal life, to fight for the organization he became a part of. It is that kind of spirit and refusal to lose that has made Charlie a highly respected individual, and in this person’s opinion, the most important figure in the brief history of Theta Delta Chi at Nova Southeastern University.

Once again, Charlie, thanks. There are many more words that cannot be put on paper as to what you mean to the Organization. Now that it is time for you to graduate, you will have to step away. But remember you are not stepping away from an organization you were a part of, you are stepping away from an organization that you re-built. And for that, in twenty years when the pledges are learning about their local Theta Delta Chi history, your name will be right there, just as important as the Founding Members.

As for the rest of the organization, I must also congratulate them. There are many more words that cannot be put on paper as to what you mean to the Organization. Now that it is time for you to graduate, you will have to step away. But remember you are not stepping away from an organization you were a part of, you are stepping away from an organization that you re-built. And for that, in twenty years when the pledges are learning about their local Theta Delta Chi history, your name will be right there, just as important as the Founding Members.

And of course, Thank you, Charlie.

Message of Unification

by Megan Greenberg
Greek Life Editor

Early this semester, executive board members from the Panhellenic Association, International Fraternity Council, and other chapter leaders joined for Greek Advance 1999. During the weekend retreat, many new and exciting ideas were brought up. Together all of the attendees came up with a Greek Life Resolution. The resolution was written to help unite and establish a common goal for the Greek system. It is with immense respect for one another.

Greek Life Resolution

Whereas we constitute the members of the Nova Southeastern University Greek Community; whereas we pledge ourselves to strive for excellence in academic and extracurricular activities. It is our intent to cultivate our programming in the areas of education, unification, philanthropy, community service, social events, faculty relations, and demonstrate respect for one another.

And in conclusion, we pledge ourselves to our individual organizations: loyalty, lifelong friendship and to be an ongoing support system. As a Greek Community, we pledge ourselves to be the best leaders and role models at Nova Southeastern University.

Boxing: The Greatest Show on Earth?

by Michael L. Citron
Sports Staff Writer

What is the deal with boxing lately? The sport has certainly lost its flash and appeal. No more great rivalries like the battles between Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier or between Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran. Instead, the spectators are forced to watch one-sided fights or bogus draws.

The most memorable fights from the last years included a fighter biting off part of the ear of another, a hang glider landing in the ring during the bout, and a fighter having a nervous breakdown while in the ring. Unfortunately most fights, as of late, have been fixed. We should change the "sport's" name to something more like "circus sideshow or how about professional faking—I mean fighting. At least, when I watch Hulk Hogan and Professional Wrestling, I know that what I am seeing is acting—just a show to appeal to the spectators.

Every regular bouts are one-sided where a champion-caliber fighter is matched against a Joe Nobody. Does anybody remember Gerry Cooney or Peter McNalley? Both of these so-called fighters were matched against boxers who basically annihilated them, never to be heard of again. I wonder where the promoters even find these bums, maybe at local pubs?

Not only has the sport become unappealing to watch in person, but the prices to view these events on pay-per-view have gone through the roof. Pay-per-view charges can exceed forty and even fifty dollars in order for a fan to watch a fight. Before the main event goes on, which is not until after midnight, I am stuck watching four bouts with oblivious fighters, that I have never heard of. Who gets all the money from pay-per-view sales? The greedy boxing promoter—the Don Kings and Bob Arums of the sport are to blame.

King has promoted many of the most recent criticized fights. Most fans want to see sensationalism, so King puts on bouts, which are out of the ordinary. It is like a Jerry Springer show, except you pay big bucks to view it. You never know what the result is going to be. Lately the outcomes have been awful!

On March 13, 1999, I saw the coup de gras—the worst ever—a fight that made me ashamed to call myself a boxing fan. The hype of the unification of the championship belts between England’s Lennox Lewis and America’s Evander Holyfield left fans opening their wallets hopefully to see history in the making. This was supposed to be the crowning of the undisputed heavyweight champion of the world. Of course, this all came crashing down when the decision was a bogus draw.

It is time to revisit the IC section of the paper for motivation, wisdom, and vision. The great athletes and enlightened people of our time and past give us their words to cherish and assist us during our daily grind of life. While using their messages as references, remember that there are three types of people in this world:

(1) Those who make it happen
(2) Those who watch it happen
(3) Those who wonder what has happened
Be number ONE!

"Champions keep playing until they get it right."
Billie Jean King, Tennis

"Be a dreamer. If you don’t know how to dream, you’re dead."
Jim Valino, Basketball

"There are a lot of fellas with all the ability it takes to play in the major leagues, but they never make it. They always get stuck in the minor leagues because they haven’t got the guts to make the climb."
Cookie Lavagetto, Hockey

"You can accomplish a lot if you don’t worry about who gets the credit."
Bill Arnsparger, Football

"Never accept mediocrity, and be committed to your beliefs. Live by the Golden Rule, and read biographies to learn how successful people overcame their problems and became winners."
Roy Simmons Jr., Lacrosse

"I don’t want to be liked. I just want to be respected."

"Happiness is found along the way, not at the end of the road. People will soon forget the records. What they remember is the way you hustled, the poise you had, the class you showed."

WEEDNESDAY, MARCH 24

Junior Ryan Pretz and freshman Rolando Bello were then both walked. Senior Ben Prill, with a 3-2 count, hits a bloop single over first to win the game. Bello also went 3-for-3 with a homerun, two walks, two runs batted in and two runs scored. Junior Jim Birch got the win improving his record to 3-3.

Knights softball win their first two conference games of the season against Palm Beach Atlantic College, 6-0 and 9-0. Senior Shannon Sawyer improved her pitching record to a perfect 6-0. Freshman Cheryl Bond hit a two-run homer and went 3-for-3 with a homerun, two runs batted in and 1 run scored, while freshman Alison Balkan went 2-for-3 with two doubles, three runs batted in and two runs scored. Freshman Jenny Ridenoure improved her record to 10-2 by throwing a two-hitter and striking out nine. Senior Sherri Waddell went 2-for-3 with two doubles, three runs batted in and in two runs scored.

THURSDAY, MARCH 25

NSU softball wins their 24th straight against NCAA II Millersville University of Pennsylvania, 5-0 and 8-2. Freshman Cheryl Bond hit a two-run homer and went 2-for-3, while sophomore Diane Ocampo went 3-for-4 with a double and one RBI. Freshman Jenny Ridenoure got the win improving her record to 11-2. In game 2, senior Shannon Sawyer and Ocampo both had two hits apiece. Junior Cameran Morgan picked up her 10th win.

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Nova softball splits double header with Webster College, 2-0 and 2-1. Freshman Jenny Ridenoure picks up the loss in the first game. Former great, Lennox Lewis had dominated the entire fight. Many English fans came to cheer on their fighter. It sounded like a soccer game, with the crowd calling out cheers, as Lewis pumped his jab into Holyfield's face. The victory seemed eminent for Lewis. Nevertheless, as with other boxing fights as of late, the result was again a shocker! Only one judge gave Lewis the edge, while another awarded the bout a draw. The surprising thing was that the last judge, Jean Williams, gave the victory to Holyfield. When asked if she had any second thoughts about her decision, she said "No sir, I scored what I saw when I saw it." My question is, what fight was she seeing and what kind of beverage was she drinking while watching the bout? The fans were in an uproar, and Don King's mug was again present already hyping the rematch.

Before I could even pay the bill for this event, Mr. King was trying to get me to pay for the opportunity to view the next match. I guess he was drinking the same drink as the judge, who gave the decision to Holyfield. Former great, Muhammad Ali, said after the fight, "What occurred once the 12-round event concluded will surely go down in the boxing annals as the biggest fix in fight history." Finally, when the fans think that they are going to have a great fight, which exceeds all expectation, a travesty occurs instead. Boxing was once an exciting professional sport to watch. Stricter regulations must be initiated immediately, like bringing in more experienced judges and forcing the promoters to step out of the spotlight. Let the fighters go to war, and bring back the glory that the sport once portrayed.

RENT IT! "Pecker" An Homage to ‘Real’ Life

by Deana Daneau
Entertainment Editor

Big hair; big women; quirky clothes; quirker actors. These are just a few staples in John Waters' films. In his most recent outrageous feature, Pecker, his signature tackiness is evident, but a bit softer than in his previous cult classic films Pink Flamingos, Polyester, and Hairspray.

Though satire might be his genre, Waters' voice, particularly in Pecker, is not sarcastic nor is he patronizing; his tone, rather, celebrates the idiosyncrasies of blue-collar Baltimore suburbanites by presenting them as sort of a caricature. With love, Waters presents this bizarre perspective in each and every picture based on personal experience... he grew up in Baltimore.

Pecker (title character played by Edward Furlong), is the fable of a young likable Hampden kid who sees life and all its beauty through the eye of his old camera. Pecker, a fitting nickname for a boy who pecks at his food (and you thought otherwise?), goes about town with his aged camera snapping crass characters in candid poses. Pecker's hobby serves as pure entertainment for family and friends alike as his raw black and whites are exhibited in the sandwich shop where he works.

Enter Rory Wheeler (Lili Taylor), the sophisticated art dealer from New York who takes a liking to both Pecker and his art; she launches him to stardom via exhibits in "the Big City." Pecker's subjects- a sugar addicted little sister; a grandmother with devout religious delusions; an obsessive girlfriend (Christina Ricci) soon find that their images have become labeled and exploited. Hampden turns on Pecker and the fame that he's brought upon the town. Since art imitates life and art is ironic, then Pecker --- the artist is irony; he's a spectacle for the art world and a sell-out to his hometown.

The film showcases decent talent with Furlong's performance the most notable. Ricci doesn't seem to stand out and stays rather peripheral, though Martha Plimpton runs wild as Pecker's big-haired sister who adores gay men.

As with each of his films, Waters uses his bizarre characters and the wacky circumstances that surround them to comment on some of our cultural norms and hot social issues. Within Pecker, Waters addresses issues like class, fashion, substance abuse, homosexuality, art, OCD, religion, and pornography. Overindulging the audience with the good, bad, and the ugly of each of these issues, Waters is able to expose the residing humor that we are sometimes so quick to ignore.

Pecker is crudely hysterical and brilliantly executed. With the most innocent feel of any of his films, the audience is sure to get Waters' underlying message that he sentimentally conveys:

"There's no place like home."

Forget It! It's Foolish to Rent "Henry Fool"

by Deana Daneau
Entertainment Editor

What a let down it is when you prepare yourself for a great film and it turns out to be a dud! The video store must make a load of money just on people that have a little too much faith in those emotionally charged summaries printed on the back of the video boxes. Watch out! The new video release of the independent film Henry Fool has one of those summaries that do not match the film.

'Outrageously Funny! Witty!' Blah, blah, blah. Distributed by Sony Classics and directed by Hal Hartly, Henry Fool is the story of a young, quiet garbageman, Simon, who's living a static and unfortunate life with his manic depressive mother and promiscuous sister. Life for the trio is disrupted as a melodramatic drifter, Henry Foole, comes to rent the basement apartment. Foole spouts poetic prose and intellectual offerings to Simon, demanding respect and some free beer. Not only does Simon heed Henry's encouragement to express emotions through the written word, but also everyone in town seems to listen to whatever Henry might suggest. He is a writer!

Before long, Simon is being recognized within his community for writing controversial poetry. A new respect is afforded to the former sanitation worker, as the town's intellectual is losing favor. Henry is soon to see that sharing his goals and dreams with Simon has only helped Simon realize those dreams. Henry is found, then, to be in Simon's place- working his job, living in his home- and Simon has inhabited the life that Henry wanted everyone to believe he had.

Yes, it sounds like a great story but it was not done well. The story takes some strange twists and turns and leaves the audience wondering, "What's going on?" The acting reminds me of that in a play- a boring play. The only actor worthy of mention is "Indie Princess" Parker Posey, playing the promiscuous sister of Simon, but the role was not substantial. Now, my mother always said, "If you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all." Therefore, I think I had better stop here.
The most memorable performances included, Shawn Mostal's rendition of "I Touch Myself," Troy Railsback's juggling routine in which he used his fake breasts as props, and Ricardo Arriaza's (aka Antoinette) unique interpretation of Madonna's "Vogue," complete with an authentic-looking gown and wig. The competition was fierce and with almost every performance, Student Life's Assistant Director of The Flight Deck, Frank Majnerich, received a personal "lap dance" from the male contestants. Francisco Gonzalez (aka Veda Gina Gonzalez or V. Gina) snagged third place with his freely placed lap dances. Troy Railsback (aka Brit-tany Queers) roped in second place with his respectable juggling routine. This year's Possum Queen was Ricardo Arriaza with his all too realistic Madonna routine. First place received $350, second place received $150, and third place received $50. Most of the guys still swear that the "costumes" were not their own.

The Funniest Women contestants were interwoven between the Possum Queens strutting their stuff. The real females that took center stage included, Alison Barker, Anne Ogden, Cathy Pace, Jonnie Johnson, and Dana Deis. The business services and student relations at NSU, as well as personal relationships, yielded main topics for this year's jokes. The competition was fierce and the laughs plentiful. Alison Barker was crowned as this year's Funniest Woman at Nova, receiving $500. Two dollar donations were collected at the door. All proceeds benefited the Women's Resource Institute of Nova Southeastern University.

Dear Small Cup,

Everybody is built differently. Wouldn’t it be boring if we all looked the same? If you think that being a larger size will truly improve your self esteem then go ahead and get the implants. I am sure you are beautiful the way you are. Remember that fashions change all the time and chances are that some day you might feel uncomfortable with an extra large chest.

Sincerely,

Lady Gwnevere

Dear Lady Gwnevere,

For the most part I am happy with the way I look. However, I am a small B cup and most of my friends are pretty voluptuous. I feel like a little girl next to them so I have been considering getting breast implants.

Sincerely,

Small Cup
