April 2016

Dymun Fengshui (Jonathan Back)

Jonathan D. Back
Nova Southeastern University

Follow this and additional works at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions

Part of the Illustration Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions/vol13/iss1/23

This Artwork is brought to you for free and open access by the CAHSS Journals at NSUWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Digressions Literary Magazine by an authorized editor of NSUWorks. For more information, please contact nsuworks@nova.edu.
Dymun Fengshui (Jonathan Back)

Author Note
The smart take from the strong.

This artwork is available in Digressions Literary Magazine: https://nsuworks.nova.edu/digressions/vol13/iss1/23
I push my way towards the bar.
Catching your attention.
The bartender slides me a drink,
As you drop a toxin.
Fruity and sweet, it trickles down,
Spreading throughout my veins.
You approach me with your ice eyes,
As it sweeps to my brain.
Slurred words tainted with rohypnol.
You catch me as I fall.
Compromised by your seduction,
Trapped behind dry wall.
Trying to scream with empty air.
Laughing, you strip my clothes.
Paralyzed. Unable to escape,
As blood seeps from my nose.
Chained to the pole, you stand above
Smirking. You strike a match,
As kerosene burns through my skin,
Helpless, itching to scratch.
I cry from misery and pain.
A moment of despair.
The lights fade, as I slip away.
My lungs burst red air.
In the bar, victims lose their way.
His pattern does not change.
He lures her in, and takes her home.
She is placed in the range.
Her body packed under the stairs,
One more girl last in line.
Hidden bodies throughout his home.
Content, his classic shrine.
Documenting his victims’ deaths
With photographs and heads.
On display, he opens his house
Welcoming the unwed.

The House of Bodies
Tory Njardvik

Dymun Fengshui (Jonathan Back)
Jonathan Back